THE CODE COMMITTEE CHANGES ITS MIND AS REGARDS BOARDS

Hostile Criticism Causes It to Make New Provision For Couucils—Boards of Review Are Favored.

From a Staff Correspondent.

Columbus, October 17.—The code conference committee has reversed itself again. Thursday night it changed the code so that the bi-partisan board of public safety, to be of either two or four members, council to determine the number, is to be appointed by the mayor, subject to confirmation of council. Two days before the committee provided that this board should be appointed by the sinking fund commission, which is to be appointed by the mayor.

This act met with such hostile criticism that the committee concluded it would be a good thing to change it. It was also decided to provide for rotary councils. Instead of the entire council going out of office at the same time a part will go out one year and part the next. There will be no change in the manner of selecting councilmen.

There will be no police court legislation, as the Democrats will not vote for the judiciary bill to provide for this, and without their help it cannot pass. The committee also abolished city boards of equalization and substituted therefore boards of review, to be appointed by the state auditor upon application of the county auditor. The Longworth act passed last winter created boards of review.

It has not been agreed whether the Guerin bill passed by the house or the Royer bill passed by the senate, each for the repeal of the Royer act shortening the power of the supreme court, will be adopted. There is little difference between them. Failure of the legislature to pass a repeal measure is causing the circuit courts much inconvenience and is tying up litigation.

The code committee will hardly report before Monday or Tuesday now. It is expected that the bill will be put to a final vote on Tuesday.

Senator Hanna, while passing through the city yesterday, took occasion to express his dislike for the bill. He thinks it should not pass in its present form.

THE SNAKE CHARMER MADE MANY THREATS

Mademoiselle Zera Got Away With Paraphernalia Despite Replevin Writ.

Constable Powell met with a cold bluff yesterday afternoon when he attempted to preempt the property of the Taylor snake show, which had been attached by the Columbian park management. Mademoiselle Zera, the snake charmer, was in an unamiable state of mind when the constable called and she gave vent to her feelings by giving him a tongue lashing. She did not attempt to use her wiles, but threatened if he laid hands on her property she would lay him out with the hammer she was holding. She managed to get away with a box of snakes, two trunks and some other stuff, in spite of the constable's presence.

"If that constable had touched that box of snakes, he'd be in bed today," said Mademoiselle this morning. "I'd have hit him with that hammer and laid him out flat. Why, do you know how much we've taken in since we've been here?" she replied. "Two dollars and ninety-five cents! The walkin's going to be crowded for some of those side show people," she concluded.

The box of snakes and trunks were on the wharf boat this morning.

VERDICTS OF GUILTY

Reached in the Case of Henry Mellon, Wellsville, And Edward Allen, Salem.

Lisbon, October 17.—(Special)—Three criminal cases were to have been heard in common pleas court yesterday, but owing to the absence of important witnesses court was late in starting, and the case of Henry Mellon, of Wellsville, dragged out nearly the remainder of the day. The arguments were conducted about 5:30, and court adjourned till 7 o'clock.

The jury brought in a verdict of not guilty, and the court proceeded with the hearing of Edward Allen, the Salem pickpocket. The state had a plain case, and by 9 o'clock the jury brought in a verdict of guilty. Judge Hole sentenced him to two years in the penitentiary.

TOWBOAT SUNK

EAST LIVERPOOL MAN NARROWLY ESCAPED WITH HIS LIFE.

Finally Rescued By Means of a Rope in the Nick of Time.

The towboat Fred Wilson, which left Pittsburg last Monday with over 30 barges of coal in tow, met with an accident near Cattlettsburg, Ky., yesterday and the Consolidated Coal & Coke company, of Pittsburg, suffered a loss of 150,000 bushels of coal, aggregating in cash over $12,000.

The boat missed the channel and her front barges swinging around struck the end of the dike, becoming immediately submerged. Rutherford Sellers and Howard James, two young men of the southeastern part of the state, but who have resided in East Liverpool for several months, were aboard the ill-fated boat when the disaster occurred, and it is said that James had a very narrow escape from a watery grave. He was on one of the barges that got loose, and in attempting to land on one side of the secured boats fell into the river. A line was thrown to him and after sinking once he was able to seize it. He was rescued nearly exhausted.

BURNING PITCH

Started a Blaze at East Liverpool Pottery Which Threatened Much Damage.

A destructive fire was narrowly averted at the plant of the East Liverpool pottery at 10 o'clock this morning.

Workmen were engaged in applying pitch to a portion of the roof of the building, and had five gallons of the stuff in a large tank, under which a fire had been lighted. The pitch spilled over the edge and caught fire. For a time the blaze threatened to destroy the building. It burned fiercely, and in an attempt to extinguish the fire the man in charge of the work had his right hand and arm badly burned.

As the burning tar had almost reached the factory, J. J. Langley, dipper at the plant, jumped from the window of the dipping house, and after a great deal of hard work succeeded in putting out the fire with the aid of a hose. The fire department was called, but the blaze had been put out before it arrived.

SOUGHT TO DEFEAT FARM CONVEYANCE

Pennsylvania Concern Brought an Action Against a Woman Near Bayard.

LARGE SUM WAS INVOLVED

And the Question of the Constitutionality of an Act of 1898 Was Raised. Action of Wife Taken in Good Faith Held Valid.

Lisbon, October 17.—(Special.)—While the court was waiting for witnesses in the criminal cases yesterday an interesting civil case was argued before Judge Hole. It was the case of the Wolf company, a Pennsylvania manufacturing concern, against Hattie W. Hahn, near Bayard, this county.

The Wolf company brought action to set aside the conveyance of a farm near Bayard, made by John W. Hahn to his wife last spring. The paintiffs claimed the conveyance was made to defraud creditors, setting forth that they had obtained a judgment against the husband, which transaction they sought to defeat. They asked the court to set aside the conveyance and appoint a trustee to the sell the property and apply the proceeds to the payment of all debts of John W. Hahn.

This action was brought under a statute passed in 1898, making void a conveyance made by anyone insolvent with intent to prefer any creditors. Attorney J. A. Martin, of Lisbon, answered for the defendant, saying that she had lent her husband $5,000 in 1893 to buy a farm and that he had given her a judgment note for it. The defense maintained the loan was made under the conditions that obtained before the passage of the act of 1898, and that under the laws then in force one might prefer his creditors.

Mrs. Hahn took judgment against her husband on this cognovit note last spring in this court for $9,000, and then in pursuance of the contract for preference he deeded her the property for $7,000, receiving a receipt for that amount. The defendant't attorney held that the act of 1898, forbidding preference of creditors, is unconstitutional and void in so far as it interferes with her right to a preference under the contract made witn her husband in 1893, being in conflict with a provision of the constitution declaring the legislature shall have no power to pass laws impairing the provisions of a contract. He asked that if the conveyance were set aside her receipt for $7,000 on this judgment be likewise cancelled and that she be given a first lien of $9,000 on the farm by virtue of her judgment.

The court overruled the demurrer to this defense, holding that a judgment taken in good faith on a cognovit note given in 1893 would constitute a valid lien, but sustained the demurrer to the defense that the act of 1898 was unconstitutional, for the reason the petition failed to allege that the contract was in writing. Attorneys Clark & Clark, of Canton, represented the plaintiffs.

WILLIAM JONES ON THE WARPATH

With Club and Stones He Was Spreading Terror When Apprehended.

FRIGHTENED MANY PEOPLE

Before He Was Seized By Officers And Taken to the Police Station—Mayor Gave Him a Fine And Warning of the Penalty Next Time.

Howling mad and raving like a maniac, William Jones, who when asked where he lives said, "Any old place I hang my hat is home, sweet home, to me," was arrested last evening by Officers McDermott and Saulsberry on Second street. Filled to the neck with red eye Jones was uncontrollable and for a short time had terrorized the residents. He secured a club and a handful of rocks and threatened the lives of every one on the street.

From on eside of the street to the other the man in his crazed condition ran, swinging his club and defying the best man in the city. A number of people, not realizing that he was simply drunk, became terribly frightened and made themselves scarce.

When about ready to center an attack on a passerby Jones was discovered by the officers and taken in charge, but not without a struggle. He was determined that he would not sleep in the city bastile and fought desperately for liberty, but he was small potatoes alongside of the two nervy policemen. Mayor Davidson assessed him $6.60 this morning and warned him that if he is ever arrested again on a similar cnarge he will get the full penalty, which is $50 and costs, with a workhouse sentence attached.

FRIGHTFUL EXPERIENCE

Woman Fell Through Floor And Was in a Vault Over an Hour.

There was an hour or more of intense excitement yesterday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Bower, on Florence street. Mrs. Bower's mother, Mrs. Denning, who lives in the West End, was a visitor at the house and about 4 o'clock, while in a rear building, by the breaking of a floor, fell into the vault eight feet beneath. Mrs. Denning cried out for some time before the people in the house heard her. They hastened to her assistance.

A rope was first tried, but she could not stand the strain. Finally a ladder was secured and she got out after over an hour of frightful experience. The shock greatly affected her.

SCRAP IN POSTOFFICE

Mrs. Minnis Resented Some Harsh Things Alleged to Have Been Said of Her.

Mrs. Hattie Minnis and Miss Sadie Harvey, two colored women, met in the postoffice last evening about 5 o'clock. Mrs. Minnis took Miss Sadie to task for some hard things she alleged her to have said about her and Miss Sadie denied the soft impeachment. Mrs. Minnis was not convinced and a war of words followed, much to the amusement of the people in the postoffice at the time.

The affair took a more serious turn, however, when they came to blows. It is not known who hit first but in the interchange of blows both received several hard ones. They were not molested by the police.

CLERKS AGREE

TO THE TERMS OFFERED BY THE LOCAL MERCHANTS.

Stores to Close at 5 p. m. During Four Months of the Year—The Compromise.

A joint meeting of the retail clerks and the merchants' association was held last night at city hall. There were 30 members of the clerks' union present and about 40 business men.

The counter proposition sumbitted to the clerks yesterday was accepted by them at the meeting, and while it contains a few minor changes from the original demand of the clerks, the latter organization considers it a fairly good compromise.

The agreement adopted calls for the closing of all stores at 5 p. m. during the months of January, February, July and August. It also asked that the stores remain open until 9 o'clock on Monday evening, but eliminates the former request that the five and ten cent stores be allowed to remain open until 11 o'clock on Saturday evenings.

The settlement is gratifying to both the merchants and the clerks, as it was thought at one time it would be impossiblle to adjust the matter without a fight.

POWELL VS. HOWELL

Lisbon, October 17.—(Special)—Richard Howell, of Wellsville, was placed on trial this morning for drawand appropriating a fellow workman's pay. He and a man named Abner Powell were in the employ of the Vulcan Clay company, of Wellsville. It is alleged that when the paymaster called Powell's name on a certain pay day, Howell received the envelope which contained $45.15. Later, when Powell complained that he had not got his pay, Howell's envelope containnig $1.60 was found in the office.

Howell denied having drawn the pay of Howell, and then disappeared before he could be arrested. He was captured soon afterward, and has been in jail since some time in July.

FINE RACES YESTERDAY

Speed Trials at Columbian Park Proved to Be Most Pleasing Events.

TWO LOCAL HORSES ENTERED

Around Which Much Interest Centered and Lively Betting Resulted.

H. S. RINEHART'S VICTORY

As a result of Wednesday's excellent program, fully 3,000 people filed into Columbian park yesterday afternoon and their anticipation of a repetition of pleasing events was realized. The races, special performances, music and the many other attractions on the grounds met the approval of all and the management received much praise.

The hillside was literally packed by lovers of horse flesh and the waving of handkerchiefs, together with vociferous applause as a favorite would come under the wire showed the general satisfaction. Owing to the fact that two horses belonging to East Liverpool men raced in the 2:22 pace interest centered mostly on that race.

Robert L, owned by George Larkins, and Redmond, owned by Harrison Rinehart, were the two of interest. Each horse had hundreds of admirers and when both left the wire for the first heat the crowd was almost breathless. In the first heat Robert L. was held back, owing to his getting a poor start and Redmond won the heat in a walk. In the second heat both horses ran for life. Redmond continued his gait, which is just a little too fast for Robert L. and again won the heat with Robert L. a close second. The latter's backers were yet unconvinced of Redmond's superiority and when the third heat was called they persisted in shouting for their favorite.

A prettier heat was never witnessed. The horses started off well and came in as in the second heat, the winner making it in 2:22½. On this race large sums of money changed hands, Mr. Rinehart alone winning over $1,000. He made one of the most daring bets or record in local history. Before the race started he, it is said, bet $400 that his horse would win the first three heats. Had his horse lost a shoe or brokeen a couple of times the $400 would have gone. Luckily for him the animal took the trio and made him easy money.

The 2:30 pace was also a very interesting event. There were six starters in the race and six heats were necessary to decide which of three was the best. Kitty Wilkes, owned by a man in Londenderry, won the first heat with Litutenant Garcia, owned by Dr. Kinsey, of Wheeling, second and Roan View, owned by Kelly, of Charleroi, third. Lieutenant Garcia won the next two heats and all were confident that she had the race handicapped. Roan view came to the front, however, in the next and won the heat, with Lieutenant Garcia second.

In the next the latter horse was held back and Roan View again won a heat with Callot Boy second. The sixth heat was opened with only three starters, those not winning a place being barred. Betting ran high on this heat, but not at the poolsellers' stand. They held that it was an even toss between Lieuterant Garcia and Roan View and offered odds that did not suit the crowd. Roan View got a little the best of the start and took every advantage of it, keeping ahead of Lieutenant Garcia at all times.

Owing to the close approach of darkness but two heats in the free for all were allowed. Pilot Boy won them both from Texas Queen, but he had to put forth every energy.

Cute, the famous pacer and known as the guideless wonder, broke the track record by making a mile in 2:13. The record at the park is 2:21. She was driven by Mrs. Strong, who drove her in at Port Henry three weeks ago and broke the world's record at 2:10½. It is said that had not Mrs. Strong lost her whip on the last quarter Cute would have made it yesterday in 2:10.

Prof. Spoerhase with his three beautiful horses, tandem style, made a pretty performance.

General Manager George Smith announces that the races will be continued to Saturday, owing to the fact that it has been impossible to finish the races scheduled. The races to be

WITH THE WORKMEN IN THE CLAY PLANTS

POTTER ROBBED AND STABBED.

Fred Weaver, a young man employed at the pottery at Ford City, Pa., was on his way home yesterday in broad daylight with his wages, amounting to $53, in his pocket, when he saw two men standing in the road. Weaver paid no attention to them, but in passing he was struck over the head with a slung shot and staggered. As he recovered he sprang at the man who struck him and kicked him, when the other thug drew a knife and struck Weaver twice on the right breast, cutting him severely, the knife glancing the ribs. Weaver, however, held onto his pocket containing the money and the pocket was torn from his trousers in the scuffle. After securing the $53 the highwaymen threw Weaver over the river bank and left him for dead. He was found later and a doctor dressed his wounds, which are not serious, though painful.

WALKED FROM SMITH'S FERRY.

A number of the boys at the McNicol plant are laughing over the plight of a prominent physician who came across on the ferry the other night from Georgetown just in time to see the East Liverpool train disappear around a curve. WENDLING'S LECTURE

Noted Orator Captivates a Large Audience By His Eloquence—Bible His Theme.

A large and enthusiastic audience assembled at the Grand opera house last evening to hear Hon. George R. Wendling deliver an eloquent lecture on "The Imperial Book."

Supt. R. E. Rayman, in a fitting manner, introduced the speaker of the evening, who, in the very beginning captured the audience by repeating those immortal lines of Shakespeare's Hamlet:

"To be, or not to be; that is the question;
Whether 'tis nobler in the mind to suffer
The slings and arrows of outrageous fortune
Or to take arms against a sea of troubles,
And by opposing end them."

After quoting fro mgreat and learned Socrates, he said: "But let me tell you a story which has been told in the many tongues of all the world." It was then, in choice and beautiful words that he told the pathetic story of the "Prodigal Son." Neither Shakespeare nor Socrates with all their eloquence shall outlive the bible —"The Imperial Book."

Then with wonderful word picturing and powerful expression, the speaker presented the place which is occupied by the bible in all nations. "Never shall it be decredited nor discarded," said he. Towards the last he pictured what all the world would be without this most wonderful and useful of all books.

Dr. Wendling closed his scholarly address with fitting remarks. The audience was captured and applauded generously.

MINERS' ACCEPTANCE HELPED.

Had Big Influence on Stock Market, Yesterday, as Did Rumor as to Shaw's Intention.

New York, Oct. 17.—The formal announcement that the coal miners' representatives had agreed to submit their difficulties with the coal operators to the board of arbitration appointed by President Roosevelt removed any lingering doubts that existed in Wall street as to a possible hitch in the efforts to bring about a satisfactory solution of the matter. Advices from abroad that the situation was viewed there with great cheerfulness intensified the optimistic feeling and caused heavy buying of the general market. London followed its satisfaction over the outcome by creating a strong and active market for American securities there and supplemented it with some large buying orders here. Prices opened with a rush upward, and huge blocks of stocks were bought at rising prices. The opening in the coalers was wide and there were 6,000 shares of Pennsylvania purchased on a fractional spread. Initial gains were well over a point throughout the active list, and after a temporary setback the rise was renewed with vigor and advances of two and even three points became numerous. The buying movement embraced all of the usual favorites and at times was heavily centered in various groups, particularly in the Pennsylvania group. The pronounced strength of the market brought out the usual crop rumors regarding special stocks, particularly Norfolk and Western, which advanced over six points to 80 over reports of an increased dividend. Much of the heavy buying throughout the list was credited to a heavy operator who has recently returned to the street after an absence abroad. After the first burst of enthusiasm over the favorable aspect of the coal strike situation the street began to regard that incident as a secondary factor in the market and commenced to discount the expected easing up of the monetary situation through the rumored bond purchases of Secretary Shaw. Room shorts showed much concern over the heavy absorption of stocks and covered pretty extensively in many of the leaders.

Monetary conditions yesterday were more favorable to borrowers and there were more liberal offerings of time money below recent rates.

Trading was in immense volume in the closing hour and there were many blocks of a thousand shares and upwards taken, one block of 5,000 shares of Norfolk and Western changing hands at 80. Prices all around were quite generally lifted to the best and the closing was very active and strong.

EAST END

SPORT AT THE PARK

Colored Men Were Having a Big Crap Game But Were Rudely Disturbed.

About a dozen colored men were having a high old time last night in one of the stables at Columbian park. They had improvised a crap table, using several bales of straw and a horse blanket. Two lanterns furnished all the light necessary for them to count the spots on the "bones" and for the money transactions.

One of the drivers happened along and heard the familiar "Two bits he don't nine" and other phrases familiar to the game. In a spirit of levity he shouted, "The cops are coming" and in a moment all was confusion. The lights went out and there was a lively scramble for the open air.

ELEMENTS AT PLAY

Electrical Storm, Presaging Cold Weather, Witnessed in East End This Morning.

Everything was quiet in the East End today, the principal topic of general interest being the electrical storm and the eclipse. The storm began about two o'clock this morning and continued for an hour. The lightening flashes were very sharp and the thunder claps very distinct. There was a slight sprinkle of rain in some places.

One man who witnessed the play of the elemtns said there was usually a storm of this nature every October and that it was a sure sign of colder weather.

Saw the Eclipse.

Captain Terrence, of the East End fire station, witnessed the eclipse of the moon last night. "It began promptly at 11:17, the time scheduled for it by the astronomers," said the captain, "and from then on the dark shadow spead slowly until the moon was completely hidden. One peculiar feature was that the middle portion of the eclipse was much blacker, for on either side I could see the moon's faint light."

Side Show Attached.

Constable Powell, from Justice McCarron's court, served attachment papers yesterday evening upon the effects of the owners of four of the side shows at Columbian park. The attachments were secured by the park management, owing to the failure of the men to pay the privilege fees. The side show men are in hard luck as their patronage so far has been very slim.

Ministers Will Build.

CAME OFF ON TIME

The Eclipse of the Moon Was Watched With Interest By Many.

The moon was obscured by the earth's shadow for almost an hour this morning, causing a phenomenon that was observed with much interest by astronomers in every part of the United States. The lunar eclipse began at East Liverpool at 11:17 o'clock last night, while the beginning of its totality was observed at 12:19, the total ending at about 2 o'clock and the partial eclipse at 2:50 o'clock this morning.

The sky was perfectly clear last night and when fair Luna entered the penumbra of the shadow of Mother Earth many persons in and about the city watched the brilliant disc diminish in size and then apparently melt into black space. A short time before the eclipse started the moon shone brilliantly amid a mountain of white clouds.

Twelve Cars Demolished in a Smashup at New Salisbury.

The breaking down of an old car at New Salisbury, near Irondale, at 12 o'clock Wednesday night, caused a disastrous wreck on the main line of the C. & P. railroad. The two midnight passenger trains were run over the Fort Wayne railroad from Alliance to Rochester.

ANOTHER CAWLEY ARRESTED.

Brother of Wholesale Murderer Confesses to Highway Robbery.

Pittsburg, Oct. 17.—James Cawley, the elder brother of Charles Cawley, who is alleged to have killed his mother, younger brother and two sisters with an ax last Friday morning, was held for court yesterday morning in $1,000 bail on a charge of highway robbery. There was a large crowd present at the hearing for the purpose of seeing this member of this unfortunate family, and they were rather disappointed at the brevity and intense apathy of the whole proceedings.

Like a terrible climax to the Homestead tragedy of last Friday came the arrest of Charles' oldest brother, James Cawley, for highway robbery. The police officials were surprised.

None could rid himself of the thought but that a mistake had been made, but yesterday morning, when he pleaded guilty to the charge, the terrible reality was forced, almost unwillingly, upon them.

In Homestead the surprise caused by his arrest is even greater. James Cawley had been praised as the hero who had overpowered his maniac brother, and turned him over to the police, thus preventing further bloodshed, and had been pitied by all the townspeople for the terrible calamity that had befallen him. In the churches special collections had been taken for his benefit, and sympathy was showered upon him by hundreds. That he was guilty of any crime never entered their minds.

When the case of Cawley was called, it was announced that the prosecutor was Chester Johnson, of Miamisburg, O., who alleged that the defendant was one of a gang of three that attacked him and his companion, William Huff, of Finleyville, at midnight, Saturday, Oct. 4, when Huff was run down and killed by a shifting engine at Glenwood, while escaping from them.

English Commons Suspends O Donnell

London, Oct. 17.—During an exciting scene in the house of commons yesterday Premier Balfour moved the suspension of John O'Donnell, and the latter crossed the floor, stood in front of Mr. Balfour, shouted defiance and shook his fist in the premier's face. Mr. O'Donnell was suspended by a vote of 341 to 51.

Persian Customs.

In Persia, as well as in Turkey and throughout the orient generally, modern waterworks are unknown, and in every Persian town the women and girls may be seen at daybreak on their way to the common wells just as in old Bible times. They carry their pitchers on their shoulders and bring water for the household uses of the day. The well is the general clearing house for news. Another common sight in Persian towns is the tea seller. He carries a big brass teapot in either hand, the one full of hot water, the other of tea. His cups are in a tray, which is fastened to his belt. He cries in a singsong tone: "Hot tea! Sweet tea! Tea of crimson color!". His tea is prepared with herbs and has a delicious thymy odor. Wine is carried about in beefskins, which, plumped out to their original form by the fluid within, present a startling appearance to the novice. It is one of the impossible things for the western barbarian to attain admission to the Persian royal harem, but the rage for photographs has penetrated even that sequestered spot, and photographers have lately been admitted for the purpose of photographing the royal infants.—New York Tribune.

Plants and Gravitation.

The sense of gravitation in plants is that sense, for example, that makes a pine tree grow straight upward. A plant that curves assumes that position because its sense of gravitation makes it take the one best suited to its needs. Some flower stalks are very curiously guided by the gravitation sense. The narcissus is an example. At first there is a straight shaft piercing the ground with its compact pointed flower bud, but as the flower opens the stalk bends close to the top and brings the flower tube into a roughly horizontal position, where it shows off its bright colored crown to attract the insects, on the visits of which it depends for fertilization. The flowers are guided to the right position by the gravitation sense, and they increase or diminish the angular bend in their stalk until the right position is attained.

Hugo and the Poets.

"One day," said Turgeneff in his "Reminiscences," "we were discussing German poetry. Victor Hugo, who did not like others to monopolize the talk when he was by, interrupted me with a disquisition upon Goethe. 'His best work,' he remarked in an Olympian tone, 'is "Wallenstein."'

"'Pardon me, cher maitre, "Wallenstein" is not Goethe's, but Schiller's.'

"'No matter; I have read neither of these authors, but I understand their spirit better than those who know them by heart.'

"What could I reply?"

Cheerful Prospect.

Patient—Tell me candidly, doctor, do you think I'll pull through?

Doctor—Oh, you are bound to get well. You can't help yourself. The Medical Record shows that out of a hundred cases like yours one recovers invariably.

"That's a cheerful prospect."

"What more do you want? I've treated ninety-nine cases, and every one of them died. Why, man alive, you can't die if you try! There's no humbug about statistics!"

Sagacious Bird.

Mexico has a clever bird, called the melanarpes, which has discovered a use for the telegraph pole. At the foot of the post this bird makes a large hole, in which it rears its family. Somewhat higher up the post it makes an observatory, from which bored holes permit it to observe the horizon in every direction. Still higher this sagacious bird makes its storehouse, and thus the pole serves as its home, fortress and warehouse.

Instinct of the Mudfish.

The remarkable instinct of the mudfish to roll himself in a ball of mud when the dry season approaches is a wonderful provision of nature intended solely, it would seem, to prevent the extinction of the species. The most interesting fact about this fish is that it breathes by means of its gills when in its native element and by means of lungs during its voluntary imprisonment in the mud cocoon.

A Light Sentence?

A gentleman now living in New York tells the following story of a negro in Tennessee whose son had been convicted of killing a fellow workman. A few days after the trial the father was asked what disposition had been made of the case.

"Oh," he answered, "dey done send Johnson to jail for a mont."

"That's a light sentence for killing a man, don't you think?"

"Yes," answered the darky, "but at de end of de mont dey done goin' to hang 'im."—New York Times.

HEAD OF SHIP COMBINE.

C. A. Griscom, Who Has Long Been a Power In Maritime Affairs.

Clement A. Griscom of Philadelphia, who has just been elected president of the new shipping combine, has for many years been president of the International Navigation company, which is the center of the new combination recently organized by J. Pierpont Morgan.

The name of the new combination is the International Mercantile Marine company, and it has a capital of $120,000,000. The stock will not be quoted in open market, it is said. It has been subscribed and paid for by those interested in the combination.

Clement A. Griscom, the head of the new company, is a native of Philadelphia and is now in his sixty-second year. As a boy he entered the employ of the shipping firm of Peter Wright & Co. in 1857. He studied marine architecture and became so useful to his employers that in 1863 he was made a member of the firm.

He is the founder of the International Navigation company, which owns and operates twenty-six transatlantic steamship lines. As president of this line he bought the Inman line, changing it to the American line. This company also owns practically all the stock of the Red Star line, a Belgian corporation; also the International Navigation company, limited, of Liverpool, and of the Empire Transportation company of Seattle.

Mr. Griscom was the first president of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers and has since been re-elected each year. When the foreign built ships New York and Paris were added to the American line fleet, Mr. Griscom was instrumental in securing special congressional legislation permitting those ships to sail under American register.

Mr. Griscom has been specially honored and decorated by foreign governments, belongs to the principal clubs and commercial organizations and is at the head of leading banks, insurance companies and great industrial corporations.

He was married in 1862 to Miss Frances Canby Biddle. His home is at Haverford, Pa.

Hope For the Future.

"Come, come!" cried the candidate's friend, "don't be disheartened so easily."

"But I'm sure to be beaten," replied the candidate dismally.

TWELVE PAGES.

The retirement from the diplomatic service of Charles S. Francis as minister to Greece has afforded President Roosevelt an opportunity to exemplify the principles of the merit system in the federal service, for which he has stood consistently and tenaciously during his entire public carreer. He has taken advantage of the opportunity in a way that is highly gratifying to civil service reformers and to those who long ago appreciated the fact that it is only through the merit system that our diplomatic and consular service can be raised to the standards maintained by European nations.

England's task in the reconstruction of South Africa is hard enough under the best of conditions, but some of the continental European papers are endeavoring to throw additional obstacles in the way of the reorganizers by telling the Boers to demand more favorable terms than were agreed to in the peace treaty. The war is over and the Boers know it, if their fool friends do not.

Attorney General Knox is one of the ablest lawyers in the country. His views on restraining the powers of trusts are thoroughly practical. He has ppinted out the way to secure relief from existing abuses. There is more sound sense in one paragraph of his recent Pittsburg speech than in all the tirades against corporations that all the Democratic orators have ever uttered.

Fire losses in the country generally have been far less than usual during the past year. Builders have learned that cheap structures are often most costly. In erecting the modern business block or sky-scraper it is sought to make it as nearly fire proof as possible. The result is beginning to tell.

The Republican who abandons his party principles long enough to give a complimentary vote to a Democrat has strange notions of loyalty. Lending aid and comfort to the enemy is just as rash and unwarrantable in political warfare as in warfare of the sterner sort.

Probably the Pennsylvania soldiers will be just as glad to be sent home as the people of the mining region will be to see them depart.

It is time for action in the direction of arousing interest in the coming election and arranging to get the vote out. Is the Republican city executive committee doing all it ought and should along that line? Now is the time that effort will count.

Santos-Dumont proposes, if a $200,000 prize is put up, to try to travel from Paris to San Francisco by airship. Somebody may call his bluff, then what will the poor hot air operator do?

Neither Tom Johnson nor his newspaper organs are able to acquit the Cleveland mayor of the charge of tax-dodging. The great Democratic apostle of tax reform stands convicted.

Grover Cleveland has not abandoned hope for the Democracy, but he fails to furnish an accurate diagram of the base on which he erects the statue of the gentle goddess.

George F. Baer has been reelected president of the Reading railroad. Had it been a political office for which he was running all his money would not have saved him.

More atrocities by Turks against Christians are reported. The sooner the so-called Turkish government is obliterated the better for Christianity and cilvilization.

The eclipse of the moon was a very complete affair, but nothing to equal the eclipse the Democratic party will suffer November 4.

Tom Johnson's red automobile now has a breakdown every day. Its owner appears also headed for a political smash.

There is but one issue. That one is: "Shall prosperity continue?"

OBITUARY

David Smith.

Lisbon, October 17.—(Special)—David Smith, a veteran of the civil war, died at the home of his son, Charles, north of town, yesterday, from internal injuries received while at work in a field a few days ago. He was a widower and had lived with his son several years. Deceased was 62 years old, and had lived in this vicinity all his life. He enlisted in company K, 104th O. V. I., August 11, 1862, and served with gallantry until the close of the war. Among the battles in which he participated was Kenesaw Mountain, Atlanta and Nashville. He was a member of Starr post G. A. R. of this city, and it will probably have charge of the funeral.

PURE SALAD OIL

No Corn Oil in This It's Pure Olive Oil.

We have on hand a choice lot of Pure Olive Oil—we know it to be PURE because we have tested it and found it to be so—nothing but pure Olive Oil. We offer it at 25c per bottle. Money back if not satisfied with it.

LEARNING A LANGUAGE.

It Is Comparatively Easy to Acquire a Working Vocabulary.

"It doesn't require any great length of time to learn a language if one has patience," said a man who has mastered several languages, "and when I hear a man regret that he is not able to speak French or German or Spanish or some other language unknown to him I cannot conceal my amusement. In nine cases out of ten I might say that the men who express a regret of this sort handle English very poorly if that happens to be their language.

"The chances are that their vocabularies are extremely limited, and it would probably surprise them to know that despite the advantages of birth and education they could not command more than 600 or 700 words in English if their lives depended upon it. Yet they are able to carry on intelligent conversation, and many of them may become forcible and even axiomatic in their sayings, and they plunge into discussions of literature, art, music and other subjects of such fine elegance and do it rather successfully too.

"Now, how long ought it to take for a man to learn 600 or 700 or even 1,000 words in any language? Certainly it ought not to take any great length of time, and from my own experience I know that it does not. Of course I am not speaking now of mastering so that one can get the full benefit of all the refinements of speech in a particular tongue.

"But I have in mind the idea of speaking intelligibly in a given language and being able to understand perfectly what is said in return. I have a system which I have worked out, and it has been of vast benefit to me and has enabled me to learn a number of languages. It occurred to me while I was in Mexico a few years ago on important business.

"I could not speak a word of Spanish and could not understand the language. I concluded that I would learn the language. My plan was simply this: I made up my mind that I would not retire at the close of any day as long as I was there without learning at least three words in Spanish, how to pronounce them and what they meant. That would give me ninety words per month, or something over 1,000 in a year's time."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

IN MANDALAY.

Mandalay has its own sky, soft and gray and incurving like a tent, with white cloud lines that seem meant for scrolls if one could read. It is the Very Sacred City, the city of contemplation, the city of all the monks. A thousand pagoda bells give tongue to the wind there when the sun goes down; a crumbling thousand more give up to time the testimony of outworn things.

It lies in a curved arm of blue hills, and something broods over it with solicitude. This you suspect from the air of the place and the way the shrill talk of the parrots and the complaint of the goats and the laughter of the people come to you wherever you are sitting. Afterward you go out, as I did that morning with the commissioner, and see under the very zenith, where the low gray sky is caught up, the square of the dark red crenellated walls of the old royal city, three miles each way, and outside the walls the parallel clear moat thinking back at the sky, and then you are sure that over and above the government of India some spirit is in possession here, some spirit that bends in affection over finished and forgotten things.

Seven roofed kiosks stand at intervals over the gates in the wall—they are called pyathat, but they strike the eye like peaceful conclusions—and low white stone bridges raised in the middle span the moat. The buttresses of the gates are painted deep gray and white, and the bank that slants steeply from the wall to the water has here and there a low, twisted, spreading tree on it, purely for decoration. You may stop at a corner and look two ways along the reflecting water, with bridge after bridge receding across, and pyathat after pyathat diminishing above, and each red and gray and white vista so picked out and finished under the quiet light slipping adorably into the near blue of the hills.

Mandalay seemed aware with bunting that day, flags and arches of welcome everywhere and crowds flocking—aware and almost awake—but you looked again and saw that she only turned in her sleep and smiled, as at a dream.—Exchange.

WELLSVILLE

In All Its Features Was the Dance Given By Local 55, N. B. of O. P.

A dance, which for attendance far surpassed any that has been held in this city for a number of years, was held last evening in the city building by the young ladies of local union No. 55, N. B. of O. P. Shenkel's orchestra, of East Liverpool, furnished the music and rendered several new walzes and other selections which were greatly appreciated. Light refreshments were served late in the evening and added much to the success of the occasion.

Fully 250 couples were present. The hall was so crowded that good dancing became difficult. A goodly share of those present were from East Liverpool, while there were also a few present from Toronto, Salineville and New Cumberland. The dance was so successful, financially speaking, that the girls have about decided to hold another one in a month or so.

Plans for New Building.

The improvement committee was given power to act. Plans will be drawn up at once by City Civil Engineer Leith and the committee will advertise for bids within a few days. The new machines have been left out of doors and have been damaged somewhat as a result.

Charged With Robbing a Till.

Jacob Nagle, a lower Main street grocer was robbed of nearly $5 in cash Wednesday evening. It is charged that Merritt Jacobs, of the West End, went behind the counter and opened the till and immediately began to rid the drawer of its contents of about $10 or $12. He had succeeded in getting about $4.50 when Mrs. Nagle came suddenly into the room and started after the young man. He escaped and a warrant is out for him.

Some new Monte Carlo coats came in and they are the "prettiest ever." We advise any lady who wishes a very stylish, exclusive garment at a moderate price to come in and see them. The Leader, Washington street.

A Useful Rhyme.

If poisoned, take mustard or salt, tablespoon.
In a cup of warm water and swallow right soon.
For burns try borax and a wet bandage, too;
If blistered, then oil and dry flannel will do.
For children's convulsions warm baths are the rule;
With castor oil dose, too, but keep the head cool.
Give sirup of ipecac when croup is in store;
For fainting stretch patient right out on the floor.
To soak in hot water is best for a sprain;
Remember these rules, and 'twill save you much pain.

COUNCIL MEETING

LIGHTS FURNISHED THE TOWN MUCH CRITICISED.

Attorney Ingram Objects to Ten Councilmen for Chester—Other Discussions.

At the meeting of Chester council last night all the members were present. Mayor Shrader reported that the railroad company wished to have another day set for a meeting with the street committee in regard to the First street grade crossing. The matter will receive attention the latter part of next week.

The light committee's report indicated that it was disgusted with some of the lights. Mr. Johnston stated that he was not in favor of paying for lights that did not give light. Riley and Wetzel also criticised the lights.

General business was then taken up and a bill of Street Commissioner Severs was read. The total was $336.96, and it was ordered paid.

Mr. Goppert, of lower Chester, was present and asked council to look after a road leading to his mother's house. Some discussion arose as to whether the council had any jurisdiction over the road. Mr. Johnston thought it had been annuled. Mr. Riley thought it still public. The matter was finally left for the street committee to look into.

Attorney G. D. Ingram was present and in an eloquent little speech opposed the action taken by the council at the last meeting in the matter of having five wards and ten councilmen. He said in part:

"I oppose it as a citizen and doubt its legality. I regard so many councilmen as dangerous to the welfare and best interests of the town. I am sure it will be difficult to get ten men in this town who are competent and interested in the best welfare of the town of Chester.

"You know that men who have large interests here and men seeking office can far more easily direct the action of 10 councilmen than five. I do not refer to any individual, but to all. I ask your honorable body to give this matter careful thought, and after due consideration I hope you will vote to reconsider this action."

The subject was then discussed by all members of council, but no action taken.

E. S. Good notified council to keep the surface water off his property. His request caused some sharp discussion.

SUPPOSED SHOOTERS

Arrested By Chester Officers—One Demands Requisition Papers Before Leaving Ohio.

"Slim" Storm and William Scott, colored men supposed to be implicated in the shooting on a Chester street car, were arrested in East Liverpool yesterday by Chief Allison, of Chester. Storm refused to go without requisition papers. Scott went and before 'Squire Johnston was acquitted on giving bond to appear as a witness. Slim is locked up and requisition papers will be secured.

Preserve Factory.

A. R. Campbell, of Wheeling, and others have organized a stock company to build a preserve factory at Kenilworth this county. Captain John Porter will give three cars of brick to the enterprise, which will be located on his land. The charter has been obtained and is on record in this county. Ten per cent of the stock has been paid in. Something like a thousand dollars' worth of stock has been taken by New Cumberland people and more will be taken.

Will Go to Louisiana.

Rev. J. D. Donehoo and son James have been the guests of Senator Donehoo and family at New Cumberland for the past week. Rev. Mr. Donehoo will shortly go to Monroe, La., where he will have charge of the finest parish in the state. He has been located at Marshall, Mo., for the past ten years.

ANGRY MAN'S CRIMES.

WIFE SUED HIM FOR DIVORCE.

Read Papers Filed Then Went to His Father-In-Law's and Shot Wife's Father and Mother—Then Hurried Home, Killed Child and Shot Self.

Mt. Pleasant, Mich., Oct. 17.—Archie Woodin, in a fit of jealous rage, yesterday, killed his father-in-law and mother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gulick; his own 1-year-old child, and attempted to kill himself.

Woodin's wife had left him and sued for divorce. After seeing the papers filed in the suit, he went to his father-in-law's home and killed his wife's parents; then he went to his own home and killed his child. Then he wounded himself, but not fatally. His wife was working at a neighbor's.

GOVERNOR LIKELY TO APPOINT.

Claimed He Will Name Safety Boards For Many Ohio Cities, if Provision Is Adopted.

Columbus, O., Oct. 17.—At the meeting yesterday afternoon of the conference committee having in charge the municipal code, the amendment adopted Wednesday placing the appointment of the members of the board of public safety in the hands of the commissioners of the sinking fund was stricken from the bill and in its stead was inserted a provision that this board, to consist of two or four members, as council may determine, is to be appointed by the mayor and confirmed by a vote of two-thirds of all members elected to the council. If council fails to confirm within 30 days after the nominations are made the governor is to appoint.

This provision, it is claimed, practically provides that almost every city in the state, more especially those with Democratic mayors, are to have boards of public safety appointed by the governor. In few, if any, of the municipalities of the state will either party have two-thirds of the council, and all that will be necessary in Democratic cities to insure the appointment of the fire and police boards by the governor, will be for the Republican members of the council to vote against confirmations of the appointments made by the mayors.

The sections relating to the city councils were redrafted and provision made for rotation in office of councilmen.

UNION PARTY TURNED DOWN.

Dauphin, Pa., Judge Decides All Nominations Illegal.

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 17.—The certificates of the state nominees of the Pattison and Pennypacker factions of the Union party were declared invalid by the Dauphin county court in an opinion filed by Judge Simonton yesterday.

The nominees of the Pattison faction were Robert E. Pattison, of Philadelphia, for governor; George W. Guthrie, of Pittsburg, for lieutenant governor, and Lewis Emery, Jr., of Bradford, for secretary of internal affairs.

The candidates of the Pennypacker faction were Samuel W. Pennypacker, of Philadelphia, for governor; William M. Brown, of Lawrence, for lieutenant governor, and Isaac B. Brown, of Erie, for secretary of internal affairs.

TO SUPREME COURT.

Controversy About Corner Stone Laying Will Be Taken There Soon.

Bellaire, October 17.—That Bellaire cornerstone matter, it seems, is not to end in the Belmont county common pleas court. It will be readily recalled that at the time arrangements were being made to lay the stone upon which was cut a certain inscription, Judge Hollingsworth issued what was supposed to be a temporary restraining order to to prevent its being laid until such time as all the facts in the case could be laid before the court. The actual laying of the forbidden stone and the subsequent contempt cases are of too recent occurrence to require re-publication.

As matters have stood since the contempt cases were dismissed, those who were opposed to the laying of the stone seems to have been defeated without an opinion as to the merits of the case ever having been rendered. In order to have this opinion, it has been decided to take the case to the highest court in the state.

The motion which involves making permanent the temporary restraining order issued by Judge Hollingsworth will come up for argument at an early date. The case will then be taken to the circuit court and from there to the supreme court.

The national organization of the Knights of St. John are behind the movement to have the highest tribunal in the state to pass upon the matter. Supreme President O'Connor, of Buffalo, was in St. Clairsville, Tuesday, in consultation with Attorneys Nary and Rees who have had charge of the case and who will follow it up.

EDUCATIONAL WORK

And Temperance Discussed By Synod —Beal And Anti-Canteen Laws Endorsed.

The Ohio Presbyterian Synod at Steubenville yesterday took up the theme of aid for schools and colleges. The annual report for Wooster university was read and an able address was made by President Holton in behalf of this famous Presbyterian colleges. In the report of the trustees they make the statement that as soon as possible they will begin a campaign for $500,000 endowment, and that owing to concentration upon rebuilding of the university, the annual deficit still remains a debt upon the nistitution to the extent of $16,881.65. Upon the completion of the new buildings there will be eleven buildings devoted to college and preparatory work.

These buildings, with the campus, comprising 30 acres, valued at $20,000, make up the real estate owned by the University of Wooster. With over a half million invested in this educational plant and $142,000 invested endowment, the college will begin the year 1902, under favorable auspices.

Rev. Trumbull Lee read a resolution to increase the gift of the synod last year from $1,500 for the aid of colleges to $2,500. This created a hot discussion from the friends of Wooster and it was modified to extend general aid to other colleges without pledging the synod to a special amount.

The report of the committee on temperance and Sabbath observance was as follows: "We rejoice in the passage of the Beal law and all members are asked to co-operate to have it apply to other towns. We emphatically approve of the anti canteen law and disapprove of attempts to interfere with its effective operation."

The work of the Anti-Saloon League was indorsed. Delegates to the Anti-Saloon League convention at Washington, D. C., are F. A. Wilbur, of Zanesville, Rev. W. F. McCauley, of Youngstown; Rev. James T. Black, of Dayton.

Rev. E. Layort, D. D., addressed the synod in the interest of the American Bible Society.

The Ultimate End of the Watch.

A prominent watch manufacturer is said to be continually deluged with questions as to where all the watches go. This country makes them at the rate of 8000 a day, and this rate is kept up year in and year out, added to by countless importations.

"I never was able to answer the question," said the manufacturer. "Nobody in the trade ever tries to. We find that the life of a watch is but five years, yet if you will stop fifty men and ask how long they have carried their watches forty-nine of them will say they have only had one watch in their entire lives.

"We cannot explain the disappearance of watches. They do not go into the ash bins. I remember when the New Jersey watch factories closed that in ten years we could not find one of their watches anywhere. They had disappeared off the face of the earth, yet millions had been made. Look at the key watches. Up to some twenty years ago we made nothing else. In that twenty years these millions and millions of key winding watches have disappeared, and the question asked unremittingly, 'What becomes of the watches?' remains unanswered to this day."—Jewelers' Circular-Weekly.

Fine Flour and Teeth.

Why do colored people as a rule have such splendid teeth? Mostly because they have lived on coarse food, which made demands on the teeth. People as a rule now do not want to do any chewing. They demand meat which is so tender that it will melt in the mouth, etc. Nature, prodigal as she is, never bestows anything where it is not used, and the result is that the civilized races are losing their teeth. If the style continues to forbid our teeth to do any grinding, our progeny of, say, 2002 A. D. will be born toothless or with only rudimentary teeth. As individuals we cannot grow good teeth in our heads by eating coarse food. We are beginning to get bad teeth by heredity. But there is almost no tooth or bone forming material in fine white flour, and the avoidance of coarse foods undoubtedly hastens the decaying of our teeth. Perhaps the millers and the dentists are in a secret league to work for mutual interests. Who knows?

PERPETUAL FRANCHISE

Tom Johnson the Only Ohio Man With Any.

The Sweeping Bill the State Senate Rejected For Him — The Cleveland Perpetual Franchise He Signed For Standard Oil.

The first perpetual franchise granted by any city in this state, so far as is known, is that secured and signed for the Standard Oil company by Mayor Johnson of Cleveland, for piping natural gas into that city.

The only act ever submitted in the Ohio legislature for a perpetual municipal franchise was Senate Bill No. 34, with the amendment to it made personally by Tom L. Johnson to give all electric railroads a franchise without limit of time; with no protection to the people in the way of revenue, without anything said about any revision, either periodical or otherwise, and without a word about the referendum. It did provide for giving the electric railroads a right refused them now, that of eminent domain so as to condemn even public highways, and took away from the people their present right to petition for or against electric roads by the frontage of their properties. The Republicans rejected this in the senate.

Mayor Johnson of Cleveland and Tom L. Johnson, the party responsible for this bill, are one and the same, and it is the identical Johnson who is now parading up and down the state talking against "perpetual franchises," and although a tax dodger, talking about "fair taxation." He is the same advocate of "home rule," who goes into Democratic counties and dictates to the local Democrats those on their tickets whom they shall support, and those whom they shall bolt.

This, too, is the same Johnson who talks about 3-cent railroad fare and makes that an issue in state politics in contradiction of his own conduct in Detroit. The full history of that has just come to light in a recent issue of the Street Railway Review, saying that it was Johnson, as principal owner of the Detroit Citizens' railway lines, who fought Mayor Pingree's attempt to introduce 3-cent fares in that city, and carried the case through the city court, the United States district court and circuit court, and the supreme court of the United States. Johnson, it will be observed by this, in going into the United States court by injunction to keep Cuyanoga county out of collecting half a million dollars in back taxes from him, is experienced in his use of the federal courts to keep the people out of what they believe to be their just dues.

FARMERS AND SINGLE TAX.

How Johnsonism In Ohio Would Hit Them Hardest.

In one of his recent circus speeches Tom Johnson attempted to play the farmers for suckers. He told them they should support the single tax proposition, because the burden of taxation would fall upon the valuable land embraced in the cities. Mr. Johnson is either very ignorant of the facts or he was deliberately attempting deceit.

In 1890, the valuations of the two classes of land property were officially returned as follows:

Value of farm lands $494,451,573
Value of lands in cities, villages and hamlets..$371,050,158

And in Seneca county where Johnson made this assertion, the valuations are:

Value of farm lands.....$8,621,846
Value of land in cities, villages and hamlets ...$2,253,874

It is clear then, that a tax on land values would fall most heavily upon the farmers. And the latter must not forget this additional fact—that the single tax theory contemplates virtual confiscation of all lands by imposing an annual tax equal to the full rental value of the land. The farmer might hold the empty title to his land; but the government, under the single tax, would take from him all the land would bring. He would simply be a rent paying tenant, in effect, while the costly buildings in cities, the stocks and bonds and bank credits of the wealthy man would pay no tax whatever. The single tax is so called because it contemplates but one single kind of taxation, that on land values and proposes to tax no other form of property whatever.—Toledo Blade.

More Democratic Evidence.

The Brooklyn Eagle, a Democratic paper, has this to say of Tom Johnson, at one time of Brooklyn, but now of Cleveland: "Candor compels the admission that Johnson will not do. He was largely interested in Brooklyn railroads, but never at any time did he have a word to say about three-cent fares. So long as Mr. Johnson does not own the ox, he is more than willing to have it impaled. It is conceivable that he would favor a one-cent fare, always providing that this fare was not collected in his cars or upon lines in which he had a financial interest. There is no scarcity of humbugs, and among them is the man who would prescribe for others that which he himself would repel if asked to take it, as though it were a pestilence. So Mr. Johnson will not do."

Balzac and Black Coffee.

Balzac was addicted to the use of strong black coffee and depended upon it as a nervous stimulant during the hours which he devoted to composition. Its effect he has himself described in these words:

"The coffee falls into your stomach. Immediately everything starts into action. Your ideas begin to move like Grand Army battalions on the battlefield, and the battle opens. Memories arrive at a run, standards flying; the light cavalry of comparisons breaks into a magnificent gallop; the artillery of logic dashes up and unlimbers; thoughts come rushing up as sharpshooters; characters spring up on all sides; the paper becomes covered with ink, for the struggle has begun and ends in torrents of black water like the battle in black powder."

That Number 13.

So prevalent is the prejudice against the number 13 that car companies in many cities have been obliged to omit it, as the car bearing it did not "earn its living." In St. Joseph, Mo., No. 13 happened to be the car oftenest run over a certain line in a locality chiefly inhabited by negroes. It was discovered after a time that these would walk blocks out of their way to take the cars of a rival line, but as soon as No. 14 was sent down in their district the company's receipts resumed their previous figure. Thirteen as a house number also is looked upon with suspicion, and the expedient of 11, $11\frac{1}{2}$ and then 15 is often employed.—New York Tribune.

One of the Great Dinners of Venice.

Perhaps the most expensive banquet ever given in Venice was that to Henry III. of France. He was feasted in the great hall of the doges' palace, and there were silver plates for 3,000 guests. At another time the same monarch was entertained at a sugar banquet—the napkins, plates, knives, forks and even the bread (so called) were all of sugar. The Venetians were mightily pleased when Henry took his napkin in his hands and to his surprise found that it broke to pieces. At this feast 1,260 different dishes were served, and 300 sugar effigies were distributed among the ladies.

MINISTER MUST QUIT

Christian Church General Board Asks Rev. Brown, of Denver, to Resign.

SENSATIONALISM IS CHARGED.

Big Temperance Rally Continued—A Speaker Says More Women Like Mrs. Nation Are Needed In Kansas. Welcoming Exercises Were Held.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 17.—Probably 1,500 delegates to the national convention of the Disciples of Christ arrived on early trains yesterday. Chairman Payne, of the general committee, had been notified that the Kansas and Missouri delegations would reach the city 5,000 strong during the day Several hundred delegates registered during the morning from Illinois, Kansas, Texas, Oregon, Nevada, Colorado, Wyoming, Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska and California.

The big temperance rally planned for at the convention in Minneapolis last year, which began Wednesday night, was continued yesterday under the leadership of W. H. Boles, of Alma., Olls., chairman of the temporary committee of the Christian church. Dr. George F. Hall, of Chicago, delivered an address on the "Irrepressible Conflict." Dr. Hall said the Christian people of the country were in the conflict for prohibition to stay and that they were laying the foundation for a movement that would make an aggressive fight against the liquor traffic for all time to come.

Ohio Man One of the Speakers.

G. L. Wharton, of Hiram college (Ohio), was the next speaker, his address being on "The Liquor Traffic in Foreign Countries." Dr. Homer J. Hall, of Franklin, Ind., then delivered a discourse on "Alcohol and Medical Science."

Dr. D. R. Dungan, ex-president of the Christian university, of Canton, Mo., had for his subject, "What Shall We Do With the Legalized Saloon?" A prohibition song by "The Beveridges" was followed by an address by W. J. L'Hamon, dean of the Bible college, of Columbia, Mo., on "The Triple Appeal to Prohibition." He was received with a round of cheering that indicated his popularity with his denomination.

Dr. L'Hamon's address concluded the morning session.

At 2 o'clock, after a praise service, S. W. Emerson, of Topeka, the Prohibition candidate for governor of that state, spoke on "The Saloon War in Kansas."

The afternoon session was opened with an address by Mr. Emmerson. He described in detail the conditions existing in Kansas and referred to Mrs. Nation's campaign, remarking that the state needed more women like her. A general discussion followed. Other addresses were delivered.

The first session yesterday was devoted to addresses of welcome and responses.

Minister Asked to Resign.

The general board of the church announced that Rev. Brice Brown, pastor of the Central Christian church of Denver, has been asked to resign on the ground of "sensationalism, confirming action by the local church board of elders. It was stated in connection with the announcement that Mr. Brown has invited to his pulpit laymen to discuss labor and other questions, and that at one time he permitted an avowed enemy of the Christian church o speak from his pulpit, in order that he might combat the man's views in a formal answer.

$800,000 FOR MISSIONS.

American Board Decides This Should Be Minimum Raised Next Year.

Oberlin, O., Oct. 17.—The session yesterday morning of the ninety-third annual meeting of the American board congregational missions was devoted chiefly to reports from committees on the missions and addressed by missionaries. President Albert T. Perry, D. D., Marietta, presented a report on missions in charge of Secretary Barton, and Dean Frank K. Sanders, D. D., New Haven, Conn. made the report on the missions superintended by Secretary Smith.

The report of the committee on home department was presented by the Rev. Willard B. Throp, of Chicago. He advocated the raising of $800,000 next year as a minimum sum, and this proposition was heartily received. The missionary addresses were by Rev. John Howland, Mexico; Rev. C. N. Ransom, South Africa; President C. F. Gates, Harpoot, Turkey, and Rev. George A. Wilder, Mt. Silania Africa.

NARROW ESCAPE FOR THE VICTIM

GOOSE PASTURERS CHASED YOUNG MAN.

The Jokers Were Far More Frightened Than He, Fearing the Man Had Been Killed.

Pennsylvania avenue was the scene of another goose pasture last evening, and the victim narrowly escaped serious if not fatal injuries. He was one of the easiest marks yet taken into the net and the gang that played the game had no end of enjoyment up to the time that he gave evidence of being actually hurt.

Having just recently arrived in the city he was not acquainted with the avenue, and as a result when he started on his mad run for safety he jumped from the frying pan into the fire. The name of the fellow could not be learned, but it is said that he is an amateur elocutionist and hails from the Long Reach settlement.

As usual three young fellows were stationed a short distance above Fisher's bakery and when the victim, accompanied by several youngsters who had promised to make him acquainted with some of East Liverpool's fairest, arrived at the designated spot, they fired a number of pistol shots and burst forth with shouts of "Hold up your hands." One of his companions starting on a run, the victim also took to his heels, and up the avenue he bounded like a frightened hare. The supposed robbers gave chase and when they saw th emark go stumbling into a pile of rocks at the brink of the hill and heard him yell in despair as if he had started over the precipice, matters changed considerably.

Fearing that the worst had been realized they speedily ran to the spot whence the cries came and were joyfully surprised when they found him lying uninjured and only badly scared. He took the joke good naturedly and had the laugh on the gang as they were perhaps more frightened than he.

Another case occurring at about the same time has been reported from Smoky Row. In this one the gang was interrupted by the appearance of Officers McDermott and Saulsberry on the scene. The officers chased the entire bunch up past Thompson's pottery and had they captured them all would have been placed under arrest. There is no doubt that unless radical steps are taken by the police force to stop this work of the two well organized gangs there will be a fatality to report one of these days.

OBSTRUCTIONISTS.

Democrats Endeavor to Defeat Anti-Trust Laws.

OPPOSED THEM AT ENACTMENT.

Have Since Thwarted Attempts to Strengthen Statute or Act of Congress or Constitution — Republican Presidents Enforced the Law, Democrats Did Not—Democratic Praise of Sherman Law.

It will not be many weeks until the arraignment in the courts of the beef trust and the Northern Securities company by direction of President Roosevelt to test how far they are amenable to the Sherman anti-trust law will be in the course of actual hearing. The period intervening since the cases were filed has been occupied by the department of justice in gathering and arranging the material for the proper trial of the cases, and it is fair to presume that litigation will be pushed to its conclusion with no more delay than is incident to the process of a suit in court.

We have the assurance of one of the most distinguished attorneys among the Ohio Democrats, given at a great Democratic mass meeting, that this Sherman law is amply adequate to check the onward movement of any illegal combination. This is gratifying indorsement, because the Sherman law from first to last has been purely a Republican measure. It was the first bill introduced into the senate of the Fifty-first congress and its author was Ohio's distinguished statesman, Hon. John Sherman. Thus it was Republican in its birth and has remained Republican ever since. The Republican senate passed it and on May 1, 1890, William McKinley, another of Ohio's great Republican leaders, from the committee on rules reported an order for its immediate consideration. This was stoutly resisted by the Democrats with adverse speeches by all their great leaders in congress. They said that nothing but free trade would touch the trusts, the same song they are still singing. Nevertheless the Republicans went ahead and passed the bill, and the Republican president, Benjamin Harrison, signed it, making it a law July 2, 1890.

Prosecutions under it began at once by direction of President Harrison and later by President McKinley. Upon this point we also have Mr. Clark's assurance at the Tom Johnson meeting in Columbus, that it is a law that proved effective and has been sustained by the United States supreme court in some of its most essential features. The Democratic president, Grover Cleveland, did nothing under the law, but President Roosevelt is testing its efficacy at this time and will give it a thorough trial.

Thus this is a Republican law, has been administered only by Republicans, and none but Republicans have attempted to make it still stronger. The supreme court at one time pointed out a weak place in it and the Republicans in congress have tried to strengthen that place, but have been thwarted thus far by Democratic opposition. To make the position of the government even stronger than a mere statute, the Republicans have tried to secure the enactment of an amendment to the constitution that would shut up the last loophole of escape to the trade combinations, but the Democrats in this, too, have been obstructionists only. This is briefly the record of the two parties in regard to the law that this Democratic orator has so highly and justly commended.

JUDGE BY THE FRUITS.

The Policies and Performances of the Parties Contrasted.

Senator Lodge in his speech to the Massachusetts Republican convention said: Few remember many even of the leading names connected with the last Democratic administration, but nobody forgets that its four years were years of the lean kind, and the thin years of hard times and low wages, of mills closed, of capital alarmed, of reduced employment, of the old story of collapse so true and so often told. And yet the men to whom the policy that wrought this result was due were honest men, and the republic was able to endure their government—for their allotted term. But not longer.

Then came the policy of the Republican party. Then came McKinley. As if by magic, as if it were a flood of sunshine, came the most prosperous years the country has known. They have not put a silver spoon in everybody's mouth, but what an improvement, and who would set it back? That prosperity is the direct result of the policies and principles of the Republican party, and while the republic will survive their suspension, it has learned that they are the very spring of its present industrial and commercial greatness and glory.

Republicans, Democrats and independents alike are concerned in prosperity. It means business, bread-and-butter, work and wages. It will make good living for the poor and luxury for the rich.—Troy Press.

Campaign Explanations Deny His Sworn Statement.

Tom Johnson's Haughty Defiance to All to Find His Untaxed Millions. Was He a Citizen of Ohio or New York—Tax Dodging Difficulties.

Was or was not Tom L. Johnson a citizen of Ohio, and even entitled to vote in this state at the time of his being a candidate for mayor of Cleveland? That was in April, 1901. Nov. 8, 1899, in his petition in the United States circuit court to enjoin the treasurer of Cuyahoga county from collecting nearly a half million dollars of delinquency in taxes and the penalties thereupon, claimed from Mr. Johnson, the latter alleged that he had not been served with a legal notice, but that he had received a notice in the city of New York where he was then residing. He made this the basis for a farther claim that County Treasurer Lander, unless restrained, would act illegally by proceeding to collect by distraint, taxes on Johnson's property for the years 1894, '95, '96, '97, '98, '99, and the injunction was asked for on that account.

Mr. Johnson's own sworn statement therefore at the end of 1899, was that he then resided in New York, and not in Ohio. A year later and not quite two years ago Mr. Johnson told a distinguished citizen of Ashtabula county, Hon. Henry Apthorp, in New York city that he lived in that city. Mr. Apthorp said, "I thought you lived in Cleveland?" To this Mr. Johnson replied. "I keep my residence there, but my business interests are here." Then it would seem from the turn of his words that he claimed a sort of technical residence in Cleveland, but he was out of politics at that time and was attending strictly to the street car business on an immense scale in Brooklyn.

If Mr. Johnson in his talk with Mr. Apthorp considered himself technically a citizen of Ohio, what did he mean in his sworn petition to the United States court that he was a resident of New York, and if he was a resident of New York when under oath, what right had he to run for office in Ohio. It will be remembered that the Cleveland Plain Dealer opposed the talk worked up there for Johnson's nomination for mayor openly on the ground that he was a non-resident, and no answer was ever made to this assertion. If he was a non-resident there was not his conduct a violation of the election laws of Ohio? If he was a citizen of Cleveland was not his petition to the federal court a falsehood? And if it was not a falsehood, how can he escape his responsibility for taxation which he sought to dodge through that petition?

One point more about Mr. Johnson's taxes in the very form of his defense. His Brooklyn properties appear to have been sold, realizing several million dollars, and yet the mayor of Cleveland returns for taxes in Cleveland this year under oath only $13,080. Most of this is for the furnishings of Mrs. Johnson's house, for he owns no real estate. Only $3,000 of it is cash in hand, and not a cent of it for stocks or bonds, or for any other form of wealth—nothing for poor Tom to live on.

Worse than that, he defies the people to find his untaxed millions. His closest personal newspaper organ says: "Johnson has repeatedly told the men who have brought the suit that he will pay not only the taxes claimed in full, but will give them half the property if they will find it for him." It seems to think this smart; but it sounds very much like Boss Tweed's defiance of public indignation, when his one answer was to the wrath against the Tammany ring: "What are you going to do about it?"

With a franchise grabber like Tom Johnson making anti-monopoly speeches throughout Ohio it would seem that the acme of demagoguery had been reached.

Congressman Griggs, chairman of the Democratic congressional committee declares that Roosevelt is the strongest speaker for the Democrats in the field. No doubt of it. No doubt of it. He is defending the rights of all the people, and what is good for Republicans and everybody else, is likewise good for Democrats.—St. aMry's Graphic.

Fifty-two per cent of the families of Ohio live in homes owned by themselves. Are the heads of those families willing to vote for a ticket headed by Rev. Herbert Bigelow, who is Johnson's lieutenant in the single tax crusade? Do they feel like supporting men who demand a taxation policy which would virtually confiscate their farms and homes?—Toledo Blade.

Some of the supposedly devoted subjects of the Johnson-Bigelow oligarchy are now in open revolt against the self-appointed leaders who suppose that wealth, cheek and a batch of cranky ideas constitute a combination that the Ohio Democracy can not resist. If to be a present-day Democrat means to wear the Johnsonian tag, we do not wonder that rebellion has begun in dead earnest.—Mt. Vernon Republican.

"You may try the system of protection by any test you will, I care not what it is, and it meets every emergency, it answers every demand. More than that, it has not been against the government, either in peace or in war. Free trade results in giving our money, our manufactures and our markets to other nations; protection keeps money, markets and manufactures at home.—William McKinley.

The imperialism of Tom L. Johnson is enough to alarm even those who favor the imperialism of expansion. The new Democratic boss brooks no opposition to his will. His word is the supreme law of his organization. He does not concede the right of free thought and free speech. Free moral agency is a thing of the past. Johnson demands to be allowed to do the thinking, speaking and acting for the whole Johnson party. — Zanesville Times-Recorder.

The last Republican legislature cut down the state taxes nearly one-half and doubled the rate on railroads. The Democrats never passed a law to reduce state taxes or to increase the railroad tax rate. Yet Tom Johnson, who refuses to pay his taxes on his millions, because they were increased by the tax appraisers, is going around the state with a hippodrome, telling the people that the railroads don't pay their proportion of taxes, and is thus seeking to make it appear that he and the Democratic party are in favor of lower tax rates on the people and higher rates for the millionaires and monopolies. The gall of the man is amazing.—Bellefontaine Republican.

Gained Thirty Pounds in Thirty Days.

For several months our younger brother had been troubled with indigestion. He tried several remedies but got no benefit from them. TO THE THOUSANDS SUFFERING FROM

Dispensia, Liver and Kidney Troubles, Impoverished Blood and General Exhaustion.

During the last year thousands of Americans have flocked to Germany, to avail themselves of the wonderful curative powers of the famed

TRAUBENKUR OR GRAPE CURE

The fame of these cures for such diseases is world-wide and the astonishing results have been recognized by physicians the world over. There can be no doubt or no quibbling. The grape cures have restored health to many thousands of Americans. Their absolute worth is no longer questioned, but only a few can afford the time and expense of a visit to the Traubenkur. It has remained for an American Chemical Co., the Lightning Medicine Co., of Rock Island, to combine all the best elements of the Traubenkur in and it has now been placed on general sale throughout America in drug stores at only 50 cents per bottle, so the suffering of all classes have the full benefit of these great curative agents.

Think what it mens to you if you are suffering from any of these troubles. It is the most important development in a medical way in America for a decade.

WORTH ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.

LOUIS BONHART of Lawrence, Neb., says: "I have been afflicted with stomach trouble for the past three years. At times it grew so severe and annoying that I was compelled to quit work for two or three days each week, when the pains in my stomach were beyond endurance. I took but three bottles and am today perfectly well. I used nothing else but Mull's Grape Tonic. To me it is more than worth its weight in gold."

If you are suffering from dyspepsia, constipation, liver or kidney trouble, or nervous exhaustion you owe it to yourself to give Mull's Grape Tonic a trial. The cost is small, and you will be astounded and gratified at the results. Our faith in it is so absolute that those who buy it and get no benefit may have their money back.

MITCHELL ACCEPTED.

Sent a Message to the President Agreeing to the Arbitration Board.

MINERS TO MEET MONDAY.

They Will Then Vote Upon Time to Return to Work—General Resumption Likely by Thursday—Operators Getting Ready.

WILKESBARRE, PA., OCT. 17.—PRESIDENT MITCHELL HAS NOTIFIED PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT OF THE ACTION OF THE THREE EXECUTIVE BOARDS. HE WILL NOT GIVE OUT THE TEXT OF THE MESSAGE.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 17.—The executive board of the three anthracite districts of the United Mine Workers of America, in joint session yesterday, unanimously decided to recommend to a delegate convention of striking miners the acceptance of the arbitration proposition submitted by the president of the United States and it is reasonably certain that the advice will be followed and the great struggle brought to a close. The convention will be convened in this city next Monday morning, and it is the hope and the belief of the officers of the union that the mining of coal will be resumed before the close of next week, after a suspension of more than five months.

Miners Not Rejoicing Yet.

While the great "third party" is satisfied with the promise of an early coal supply, it cannot be truly said there is great rejoicing among the striking mine workers at this time over the result. They admit the near ending of the long idleness is extremely satisfactory to them and that they have won a great victory in gaining arbitration, but they feel that the real reward in putting up such a stubborn struggle is still to come in the award of the arbitration commission. The citizens of the entire region, however, are much elated that the strife is almost over, because business in the coal fields has been practically paralyzed since the strike began.

From the time the news was received, late Wednesday night, until about 10 o'clock yesterday morning, there was some doubt as to how the miners would receive the modified plan. President Mitchell was asked to make some expression on the proposition, but he steadfastly refused. He was pressed by the correspondents for a statement, and finally at 10 o'clock he cleared up the situation by issuing the following bulletin.

Statement Issued by Mitchell.

"Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 16, 1902.

"Appreciating the anxiety and impatience of the public and the mine workers for some authoritative statement from this office, I issue this bulletin to say that I was unalterably opposed to the acceptance of or acquiescence in the form of settlement proposed by the coal operators, because it restricted the president of the United States in selecting the men who were to determine the questions involved in the strike.

"These restrictions having been removed and a representative given to organized labor, as well as to organized capital, I am now prepared to give my personal approval to a settlement of the issues involved in this strike by the commission selected by the president; and shall recommend to the executive officers of Districts 1, 7 and 9, in their meeting today, that an immediate call be issued for a convention, whose authorization is necessary to declare the strike at an end.

"In the meantime I trust that the people of our country will be as patient as possible, as we are moving as rapidly as the interests of our people will permit.

JOHN MITCHELL,
"President United Mine Workers of America."

When this was read to the arriving district leaders and groups of miners who came to headquarters to learn the news, general satisfaction was expressed that Mr. Mitchell was willing to accept the modified plan, and from that time on there was no doubt that the strike would be brought to a speedy close. It was not until 2 o'clock that the 37 members of the three district boards were called into session, which lasted 2 hours and 15 minutes. There was some opposition manifested in the meeting against certain features of the plan, but after a full discussion of the objectionable parts a unanimous vote was taken to recommend to the convention on the acceptance of the proposition. As the conference was held behind closed doors and a bond of secrecy was placed on every man present, the specific objections were not officially announced. These are the same executive boards which, on May 8 last, ordered the strike to begin, which action was approved, in the face of Mr. Mitchell's opposition, by the Hazleton convention a few days later. It is expected that some objection will be raised on the floor of the convention, but the officers of the union are confident that opposition will disappear when President Mitchell explains all the features of the modified proposition to the delegates.

A question was raised yesterday as to whether Commissioner Wright, who will be the recorder of the commission, shall have the right to vote in case the six other members of the board are equally divided on any question in connection with a settlement. Mr. Mitchell, when asked, did not appear to be sure that he had not, and other officials of the union were also uncertain of Mr. Wright's status. The matter of the term of years that the agreement shall be in force was also a source of much inquiry. The union was strongly opposed to the operators fixing the term of years. One district president said this feature had been left to the discretion of the commission, as suggested in Mr. Mitchell's proposition, while other officials did not know anything about it. President Mitchell, for some reason, did not care to discuss any feature of the arbitration agreement while the matter was still in the hands of the miners.

May All Resume by Thursday.

If the plans of the strike leaders are not disarranged a general resumption of mining will take place about next Thursday. It is expected the convention will last two days and that there will be an interval of one day from the time the convention adjourns until the time set for the men to go back to the mines. If the convention should be in session on Wednesday, it is probable that resumption would not take place until Friday. There will not be much work at first for all the strikers, as it is the intention of the companies not to dismiss the non-union men who have stood by them during the strife. The organization will take care of such other men as are unable to immediately find work. It is estimated that all the strikers will not find work until two or three months have elapsed. This is due to the condition of the mines. Some of them are wholly or partially flooded and others need repairs.

GENERAL JAMES H. WILSON.

One of Arbitrators Appointed by the President.

It was a lively day around strike headquarters. From early morning until after the announcement was made that a convention would be called a crowd was congregated at the place. Mr. Mitchell spent an extremely busy day. In the morning he had many callers, who congratulated him, and in the afternoon he was engaged with the three district boards. Telegrams of congratulation from all parts of the country came to the leaders of the miners during the day.

GALLEY TWO—Strike

Companies Prepare to Resume.

The coal companies, anticipating the end of the strike next week, are busily engaged in preparing for resumption. Tens of thousands of coal cars are in the regions ready for loading and extra efforts will be made in moving them to the large distributing centers once mining is resumed. It is estimated that more than 200 of the 300 collieries will be in operation by the end of next week, and will produce enough coal to relieve the situation. An authority in coal mining said yesterday the coal companies, as a result of the strike, are 30,000,000 of tons behind.

There is considerable talk heard that the withdrawal of the troops will begin in a day or two, but this cannot be confirmed. The soldiers are spending their time quietly in the camps. Major General Miller, in command of the entire force in the field, inspected the camp of the Ninth regiment here yesterday and also those of the Eighth, which is divided between Nanticoke and Plymouth.

Official Call For Convention.

Wilkesbarre, Oct. 17.—The following is the official call for the delegate convention of the anthracite districts of the United Mine Workers of America, to be held here next Monday:

"Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 16, 1902.

"To the Officers and Members of all Local Unions in Districts 1, 7 and 9.

"Gentlemen: At a meeting of the executive boards of Districts 1, 7 and 9 it was unanimously agreed to issue a call for a delegate convention and recommend to that convention that all mine workers now on strike return to their former positions and working places, and submit to the commission appointed by the president of the United States all questions at issue between the operators and mine workers of the anthracite coal fields.

"In pursuance whereof you are hereby notified that a convention will be held in the city of Wilkesbarre, Pa., beginning at 10 a. m., Monday, Oct. 20.

"The purpose of the convention will be to act upon the proposition submitted by the president of the United States.

"Local unions will hold meetings not later than Friday night and elect delegates to attend said convention.

Basis of Representation.

"The basis of representation will be one vote for each 100 members or less, and an additional one for each additional 100 members or major fraction thereof. The president and secretary of each local union will fill out one credential and one duplicate credential for each delegate elected. The duplicate credential should be given to the delegate elected and the original should be placed in the hands of the district board members not later than Saturday night. The district board members are instructed to have all credentials in the hands of the credential committee Sunday afternoon.

"It is recommended that delegates be given full power and authority to act in behalf of their local unions.

"The name of the hall in which the convention will be held will be announced later. Hotel accommodations are being arranged and will be announced to delegates upon their arrival.

SOME APPOINTEES ACCEPTED!

President Roosevelt Received a Long Telegram From President Mitchell Yesterday.

Washington, Oct. 17.—There was received at the White House last night quite a long telegram from Mr. Mitchell, of the Mine Workers' union, in reply to a message the president had wired him Wednesday, giving the final result of the strike agreement, with certain suggestions from the president, that had been accomplished. It was the president's wish to have a speedy resumption of mining. Mr. Mitchell's response gave what had been done in Wilkesbarre yesterday toward declaring the strike off.

It was not made public last night.

Acceptance of places on the commission have been received from Mr. Parker and some other members of the commission.

OPERATOR IS PLEASED.

Likes President's Appointees—Illinois Man Praises Spalding.

New York, Oct. 17.—During yesterday afternoon Presidents Truesdale, Fowler and Underwood and Chairman Thomas called at Mr. Morgan's office. President Underwood was asked what he thought of the commission appointed Wednesday night by President Roosevelt.

"It is a good commission," he said. "Nobody could have appointed a better one."

Asked if that was the general opinion of the operators, Mr. Underwood replied:

"I don't know. I haven't seen any of the operators since the appointment was made.

The president of a coal road was asked how soon the coal stringency would be relieved by the developments of the last couple of days.

"The stringency is ended now," he said. "You must remember that everybody has been holding up in case of an emergency until certain of a supply from the mines. All this stored coal will now be released and will be brought to New York."

Asked how soon New York might receive this supply, the speaker said: "In about two weeks, I should say."

Robert C. Grier, secretary of the Peoria (Ills.) board of trade, was seen yesterday afternoon in Wall street. He was asked regarding the appointment of Bishop Spalding as one of the commission to arbitrate the coal difficulties.

"Protestants and Catholics alike," he said, "in the vicinity of Peoria will commend the appointment of Bishop Spalding. No better ecclesiastical selection could have been made. He is a man of great charity and of wide influence throughout the soft coal district, of which Peoria is a center. I saw Bishop Spaulding less than a week ago and he expressed at that time great sympathy with the coal miners."

GAIN AN ADVANTAGE.

President Castro's Artillery Reduced From 15 to 4 Guns.

Willemstad, Oct. 17.—The battle near La Victoria, Venezuela, between the army commanded by President Castro and the revolutionary forces, which began Monday morning and resulted in the retirement of President Castro to La Victoria Tuesday afternoon, was resumed again fiercely at 5 o'clock Wednesday morning. At that time the president had over 6,000 men engaged against 7,000 revolutionists.

The artillery played a part never before seen in Venezuela. Shortly before 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon the revolutionists appeared to have gained a slight advantage. The president's artillery, which numbered 15 guns, had been reduced to four guns. La Victoria was crowded with wounded, and there were no provisions in the town.

Little Creatures About Our Homes

By LE ROY WELD

VIII.—House Flies and Other Flies.

Of the diptera, or two winged insects, the common house fly is probably the best known, for it is found wherever man makes his home. This last fact is so well authenticated that were a roving crew of some vessel to find the domestic fly on some newly discovered island in midocean they would be safe in concluding that the island was then inhabited by human beings or that it had been so inhabited at no very distant period. In spite of this fact, but comparatively few persons ever pay any attention to this little domestic pest except to devise some means of ridding themselves of its presence in their homes. If very strong green tea be well sweetened, flies will sip it with avidity, and it is a sure poison to them, but good screens and absolute cleanliness are the surest preventives.

Despite its being seemingly an "unmitigated nuisance," the fly is a very interesting little creature when studied. The body is divided by well marked constrictions into head, thorax and abdomen. The head is large and is supplied with two very large compound eyes, made up of about 8,000 simple eyes, or ocelli. Besides these compound eyes, it has three simple eyes above and between the others. The mouth is only a little tube or proboscis, which is bent backward under the body when not in use. There is a fleshy, tonguelike organ, ending in two soft, flat organs somewhat rough on the under surface, and it is these which tickle the top of a bald head or other exposed spot when the fly licks the surface to obtain the matter thrown out through the pores of the skin. There are also two rather short antennæ, or feelers, three-jointed and having feathery ends. To the thorax are attached the two wings and six slender legs. The wings are transparent and are moved very rapidly in flight, about twice as rapidly as the wings of a bee and forty times as fast as those of the butterfly, or between 300 and 400 times a second. The feet have two claws facing each other, and between these are two soft pads covered with hairlike tubes which secrete a sticky fluid. The claws enable them to hold firmly to rough surfaces, and the sticky secretion to smooth surfaces, though some authors contend that air pressure rather than adhesion is the force that enables the fly to walk back downward on a smooth surface and others that the two forces act together.

The fly, like other insects, does not breathe through the mouth, but through little holes in the surface of the body. These are called spiracles and are so guarded by interlacing fibers that foreign matter cannot enter. The spiracles open into little tubes, which are kept from collapsing by minute spiral springs, and some of them lead to little air sacks or rudimentary lungs, while others ramify and are distributed to all parts of the body, even the membranous wings, where they are easily traced. What we see in the wings, however, are blood vessels, each having a still smaller air tube inside of it, so that the blood is aerated while circulating through the system.

The eggs of the house fly are laid in dung and soon hatch into little maggots, which feed upon the organic matter surrounding them and grow very rapidly. In fact, the entire growth of the insect is made during this stage of its existence. This accounts for the fact that the house flies which we see are nearly all of the same size. Of course we see small flies and large flies, but they are not of the same species.

Flies live on liquid food, which they lap up with the fleshy tongue. They are very fond of sweet things, which, when found in a solid state like sugar, they dissolve with their own saliva and then lap up the sirupy fluid. A few flies manage to get into some place where they survive the rigor of our winters, and it is thought that these are the progenitors of the swarms that annoy us the following summer. It is possible, however, that some of the maggots, or some of the pupæ, live through the winter and assist in the propagation of the species.

The house fly has a body about three-eighths of an inch long. The maggots grow to a little more than that length, and then the soft white skin hardens and changes to a very light brown color. This pupa form lies apparently dormant for a time, but during this period a wonderful change is wrought. The wingless, legless and almost headless maggot has changed to the lively creature we have been endeavoring to describe, and it comes forth from its pupa case full grown and fully matured to sip a few sweets, propagate its species and die.

Flies make their appearance in considerable numbers during July, and by the end of August they have multiplied enormously and are then the pest of the household, especially if the house be located near stables or manure piles.

There is another species closely resembling the common domestic fly. Its proboscis is longer and more slender, and it is not quite so large. It is known as the stable fly. It is a wicked little creature and torments animals most cruelly by its piercing bite, for by the aid of little lancets much finer than a needle point it will penetrate their thick skins and cause a smarting pain. It frequently attacks mankind and will immediately return to the attack when driven away. We seldom see it about our houses except late in summer or early in autumn, when it is most common. Sometimes it is driven into houses for shelter on the approach of foul weather. Like the house fly, it lays its eggs in dung, and the young are hatched there and pass through the same changes from larva, or maggot, to pupa and from pupa to imago, or mature insect.

In all the lower orders of insects we find that the female is careful to deposit her eggs where the young when hatched will be likely to find an abundance of the kind of food they need, and many of the insect larvæ, being flesh eaters, become important to man as scavengers. Among the scavengers of the insect tribes some of the flies rank very high. Linnæus is authority for the statement that the larvæ, or maggots, from three females of the species of flies commonly known as bluebottles will devour the carcass of a horse as quickly as a lion would, and when we consider the fact that the flesh fly, a near relative of the bluebottle, is very prolific, so much so that a single female will produce 20,000 larvæ, each of which will, under favorable circumstances, increase in weight two hundred fold in twenty-four hours, we can easily see how the above statement may be true. Few fully realize how much we owe to insects for devouring decaying animal matter. In this order of insects (diptera) the one most injurious to man from a pecuniary point of view is probably the Hessian fly. This fly, though very small, does an immense amount of damage to the wheat crop of the United States annually, some years destroying many millions of dollars' worth. Nor is this all, for rye and barley are also much injured by it.

The body of this little fly is not more than one-tenth of an inch long, and its abdomen is about two-thirds of that length. The legs and the many jointed feelers, surrounded by whorls of short hairs, are long and slender. The wings are almost without veins. The balancers—two little rods with knobs on the outer ends—situated just back of the wings, are very prominent, considering the size of the insect. In form it resembles the crane fly, which looks so much like a gigantic mosquito. The specific name of the Hessian fly is destructor. It lays about twenty eggs in the crease of the wheat leaf over the midrib when the plant is only a few inches in height. These are hatched in about a week into little footless maggots, which crawl down the leaf into the sheath around the stalk and there live on the juices of the plant. Two or three of these maggots will suck the life out of a wheat plant, and it soon withers and dies. The pupæ resembles flaxseed in form and color. These in some cases are found in the straw, but they are usually left in the stubble. The best known method of destroying this pest is by burning the stubble soon after harvest. The Hessian fly should not be considered identical with the wheat fly, so destructive to that grain in England and at one time in the eastern part of this country. The wheat fly deposits its eggs in the corolla of the wheat flower, and the maggots eat out the heart of the flower and render it abortive. The Hessian fly was first seen in this country in 1776 on Long island and is thought to have been imported in some straw brought over by the Hessian soldiers; hence the name.

There are three species of diptera, closely related and called respectively the botfly, the gadfly and the breeze fly, which demand attention.

The botfly glues its eggs to the hairs on the legs and sides of the horse where they can be reached by the horse's tongue and leaves them to their fate. When about ready to hatch, the licking of the horse breaks the egg, and the little maggot adheres to the tongue and is swallowed with the food passing into the stomach of the horse, where it fastens itself by two little hooks and there remains until full grown. It then releases itself and passes on out of the body and completes its metamorphosis in the ground.

The gadfly pierces the skin of the ox, sometimes of the horse, in several places and deposits an egg in each puncture. When the egg hatches, the irritation caused by the maggot under the skin of the ox causes swelling and the formation of pus, upon which the maggot feeds until ready to enter into the pupa state, then it backs out of the hole which it has kept open for the admission of air and drops to the ground, where it finishes its transformation into a fly.

The breeze fly lays its eggs in the nostrils of the sheep, and the young maggots stay in the sinuses of the sheep's head until full grown and then drop to the ground to complete those mysterious changes that awaken our wonder and admiration. None of these animals is very much injured by the insects.

As there are more than 20,000 species of diptera, or flies, the field is certainly large enough to furnish new and interesting facts to any who care to investigate.

FACTS NOT FICTION

A Plain Statement of a Bad Condition And a Cure That Never Fails.

Mr. Cyrus Hanselman, of No. 279 Sugar street, East Liverpool, Ohio says: 'Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills are a fine medicine. It has done for me more to cure my old rheumatism than anything I ever took. The rheumatism had hung on for five or six years and was all in the legs and shoulders. I could not sleep and at times could not move with pain. I was told of the Nerve Pills and got them at Larkins' Drug Store and they took hold finely, something nothing else ever did—the pain and stiffness is about gone. I am feeling strong and get about and sleep well. It won't take many more to cure me completely."

CURING CONSUMPTION.

When Scott's Emulsion makes the consumptive gain flesh it is curing his consumption.

Exactly what goes on inside to make the consumptive gain weight when taking Scott's Emulsion is still a mystery.

Scott's Emulsion does something to the lungs too that reduces the cough. More weight and less cough always mean that consumption is losing its influence over the system.

Scott's Emulsion is a reliable help.

NOTABLE COLLEGE EVENT.

How Princeton Is to Be Honored at Inauguration of Its President.

The inauguration of Dr. Woodrow Wilson as president of Princeton university, which is to take place Oct. 25, will be made notable by the presence of President Roosevelt and ex-President Cleveland. President Roosevelt will be on the platform with ex-President Cleveland, Dr. Patton, the late head of Princeton, and Dr. Wilson. The latter three will make addresses. President Roosevelt may speak, but that has not been definitely fixed.

After the inaugural exercises Dr. Wilson will turn the first soil for a dormitory to be erected by the class of

'79. The members of the class will reserve the first right to the rooms for their sons who will enter Princeton.

Dr. Wilson's election to the presidency of Princeton last June was the surprise of the college commencement season. Up to the time of its occurrence there had been no intimation that Dr. Patton intended to resign.

Dr. Woodrow Wilson is a native of Staunton, Va., where he first saw the light forty-six years ago. He was a member of the famous class of '79 at Princeton. It was only recently that this class did what no other class has done. It presented to the university a dormitory to cost $100,000.

After his graduation Dr. Wilson studied law and for a time practiced at Atlanta, Ga. He then took a postgraduate course at Johns Hopkins university. After leaving Johns Hopkins he became professor of history at Bryn Mawr college, and from 1888 to 1890 he was professor of history and political economy at Wesleyan university. In 1890 he returned to Princeton as professor of politics and jurisprudence, which chair he retained until his election as president.

Dr. Wilson was married in June, 1885, to Miss Ellen Louise Axson. They have three children, all girls.

Knew What to Do With It.

A miserly landlord was going round collecting his rents the other day. At one house he was greatly interested in a little girl who watched, open mouthed and open eyed, the business of paying over the money and accepting the receipt.

He patted her on the head and started out to search his pockets, saying, "I must see what I have got for you." After searching his pockets for some time he at last brought from a remote corner a peppermint. As he handed it to the girl he said, "And now what will you do with that?"

The little girl looked at it, then at him and replied, "Wash it."—London Answers.

OHIO REPORTS GOOD RESULTS.

Republican Rule Results In Reduced Taxation.

OVER $3,000,000 A YEAR SAVED.

More Than Half the State Tax Rate Taken Off the People and Put Upon Corporations Under Laws Resisted by Democrats.

Governor George K. Nash in his speech at Sidney talks entirely about state affairs, making a most complete report of the results of Republican rule. Other parts will be printed later, the present quotation being of the part of the address relating directly to taxation. Governor Nash, upon this point, stated these facts, which are, absolutely beyond all controversy:

In the Democratic platform it is asserted that "under the long continued control of the Republican party in this state, monopoly has been fostered and protected, the farmer and the small home owner have been burdened with excessive taxes, that the beneficiaries and favorites of that party might be permitted to escape their just share of the public burdens." As to how much truth there is in this allegation, let us judge by the votes and acts of the Democratic members of the general assembly of Ohio at the session of that general assembly commencing on the first Monday in January of this year and ending on the 12th day of May. A scheme of taxation was devised by the Republican members of that body and put in force by the enactment of various laws by which it was possible to reduce the rate of taxation for state purposes upon the personal property of the citizens of Ohio, and upon the real estate, including the lands of the "farmer and the small home owner," from 28 9-10 cents per $100 to 13½ cents. By this reduction of the state levy the owners of personal property, the owners of real property, of farms and small homes in Ohio, will be relieved during each of the ensuing two years of paying the enormous sum of $3,080,000.

This was made possible, partly by not raising more money than the state actually needed; partly by compelling the insurance companies doing business in Ohio to pay 2½ per cent of their gross receipts into the state treasury; partly by levying upon domestic corporations a tax of one-tenth of 1 per cent upon their issued and outstanding capital stock; partly by levying upon foreign corporations a tax of one-tenth of 1 per cent upon their capital stock employed in doing business in Ohio, and partly by an excise law which will compel, during the next year, electric light companies, artificial gas companies, natural gas companies, street railway companies, waterworks companies, express companies, telephone companies, telegraph companies, sleeping car and freight line companies and railway companies to pay 1 per cent of their gross earnings, which will this year amount to the sum of $1,429,818, to the support of the state government. Every one of these bills was made a law against the solid vote of the Democratic members of the house of representatives except three.

That part of the Democratic platform which I have just quoted is untrue. During the last session of the general assembly the burden of taxatiton upon personal property and real estate, upon the farm and upon the small home, was materially reduced, and the burden was transferred in great part to the corporations of the state and to foreign corporatiotns. All this was done against the protests and the votes of the Democratic members of the general assembly.

I regret to say that all the people of Ohio do not receive the benefit of the reduction made by the state of Ohio, 15 4-10 cents upon the $100, in her rate of taxation. In the city of Cleveland during the ensuing year the rate of taxation per $100 will be $3.05; in the city of Toledo it will be $2.96; in the city of Columbus it will be $2.75, and in the city of Cincinnati it will be $2.31. In Cleveland, where Mayor Tom L. Johnson reigns supreme, the rate of taxation last year was $2.67 upon the $100. Under his management the 15 4-10 cents upon the $100 has been entirely consumed by local taxation and has been increased 38 cents upon the $100. In one year local taxation in Cleveland has been increased 53 4-10 cents upon the $100.

In Toledo the rate of taxation last year was $3.04 on the $100, in Columbus $2.85 and in Cincinnati $2.48. In Toledo, where Samuel M. Jones, a "Simon pure" Democrat of the new school, is mayor, the rate of taxation for local purposes has been increased 7 4-10 cents upon the $100, and all but 8 cents upon the $100 given by the state has been consumed. In Columbus, where J. N. Hinkle, a Democrat, is mayor, local taxation has been increased 5 cents upon the $100, and the people have been deprived of all but 10¼ cents upon the $100 of the benefit conferred upon them by the state. In Cincinnati, where Julius Fleischmann, a Republican, is mayor, surrounded by Republican officials, the people get the benefit of all the reduction made by the state, and in addition thereto the local taxation is shows that Treasurer Lander in the following February (1900) filed his answer, in which he said the property had been placed on the duplicate after a full hearing of Johnson's attorneys. Johnson had been notified, said Lander, but had failed to appear before the auditor and show he did not own the property with which he was charged. Later Johnson's attorneys filed a reply to that answer, purely technical in its character, and there the matter has rested.

Johnson's apologists now claim that it is up to Cuyahoga county to make the next move, but if he has dodged no taxes and has turned in the millions of personal property which he claims to own, instead of concealing it, the way of an honest man, frank and open, would be to go into the matter at once, without any three years' delay or any intervention of attorneys, and show that his hands are clean and without one "damned spot" upon them.

Instead, Johnson practically acknowledges his immense wealth. The amount of it claimed as concealed from taxation was, in 1894, $850,000; 1895, $1,000,000; 1896, $1,200,000; 1897, $1,450,000; 1898, $2,350,000; 1899, $3,054,000. Even on the basis of the railroads, according to Tom's own speeches, this would rate him as worth $15,000,000 in 1899. Since then he is understood to have sold his immense Brooklyn street railroad interests, amounting to many millions, but none of it has ever got upon the Ohio tax duplicate, not one cent.

Three more years are thus to be accounted for. This year, while mayor of Cleveland, he made his tax return under oath, putting in less than $15,000, and only $3,000 of it was in cash, with no stocks or bonds or any of the other things required under the statutes of Ohio, which he, as mayor of its largest city, has taken special oath to maintain and defend. If ever there was a clear case of concealment of property from tax appraisement and payment, here it is. It is the most flagrant tax-dodging that Ohio has known, considering the official position of the offender, and his campaign for "just taxation" addressed to the entire state. No wonder that his followers are worried to death about it and want nothing said about it befor the voters.

Johnson's attitude, however, is one of defiance. His closest newspaper organ uses these words: "Johnson has repeatedly told the men who have brought the suit that he will not only pay the taxes claimed in full, but will give them half the property if they will find it for him." He don't deny its existence by this, but simply says that "I have got it hid away so carefully, so completely, that no one can get at it. I have plenty of money for all kinds of purposes, millions of it, but not one cent for just taxation."

WHEN MILLS WERE IDLE.

Shall Over-Confidence Call Those Times Back Again?

In his speech at Steubenville, Senator Hanna, referred to the evidences of tarift and prosperity wherever he had gone, particularly all through that section, and said:

If there is any danger in this campaign in Ohio or in the United States, it is because the people are too well satisfied with their environment; too apt to be apathetic; too apt to forget their duty. Therefore, I say, if I have any work to do in this campaign, it is not only to admonish the boys to stand pat, but to admonish every Republican who has any interest at stake to realize the responsibility that rests upon him and him only. This responsibility, which so affects our well being, good government and good morals, is a responsibility that can not be divided. Your neighbor's shoulders are not broad enough to help you. Therefore let us at the opening of this campaign realize the responsibility, and yet appreciating the good things that have come to us at the hands of the Republican party and the prosperity which has only just begun, if we are faithful to our trust and which is the price of vigilance and duty, and the continuation of which must be had by the action of the people themselves.

I come only to sound that note of warning to my fellow citizens, to avoid the apathetic conditions that sometimes follow closely after great victories. Don't feel that your victory is done, nor half done, for it is not. The duty you owe to society and your neighbors is just as much a part of politics as the success of the candidates. Aye more. If the principles of your party have brought results satisfactory to the country; if the promises made through all these years have been faithfully kept; is it not enough of an inspiration for every man to take home to his fireside?

Change that house of representatives and give over the control of that body to the Democratic party, and what will follow? I will wait, you will wait, to see the effect of it. Every man who is engaged in any enterprise or business will wait to see how that change will affect his interest, what will be the effect on the money market, and that waiting will slow down the wheels of industry, and the waiting will continue just as long as that house is Democratic. Therefore, people of Ohio, take warning and don't indulge in the fallacy that it would make but little difference to your conditions if that result should follow.

"The Democratic party has neither a man to lead nor a principal to espouse this year."—William C. Whitney, Democratic Secretary of the Navy, 1885-1897.

MEET OF THE W. C. T. U.

THE COMING CONVENTION TO BE HELD IN PORTLAND, ME.

Spread of the Movement Over the World—How Lady Henry Somerset Became Interested—Signed the Pledge With Her Tenants.

Among all the noted temperance advocates and workers for improved social conditions who will meet in Portland, Me., on Oct. 17, at the convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance union none is better known or will be more warmly received than Lady Henry Somerset, president of the British Woman's Temperance association. Lady Somerset comes as a delegate from the English organization, which is the largest in Great Britain.

The Woman's Christian Temperance union originated in the United States twenty-eight years ago. It was the Hillsboro (O.) antisaloon crusade, followed by similar movements in Fredonia, N. Y., and Washington Court House, O., which led to the foundation of the organization at Chautauqua in 1874.

For ten years the organization was confined to this country, and not until 1885 did England follow the example of the American women by establishing a similar society. The British Woman's Temperance association was founded by Mrs. Margaret Bright-Lucas, the sister of John Bright, the great statesman. The movement gained much favor in that country and found many supporters among the ladies of the English aristocracy.

Lady Henry Somerset became so interested in one of the late Frances Willard's books that she began to correspond with the author and soon became one of the most active workers of the young organization. When Mrs. Lucas because of ill health was compelled to resign, Lady Henry Somerset was elected president. She invited Miss Willard to be her guest in England, and during the year the American organizer spent with Lady Somerset the British society was fashioned after the American pattern.

Although the English organization carried on its work with considerable success, the American association took the initiative in every effort to extend the movement beyond the limits of the United States and England. With this object in view the first missionary was sent out, Mrs. Mary Clement Leavitt of Boston, who devoted six years of labor to the interests of the cause. She visited India, Japan, South America and other countries and met with encouraging success.

Thanks to the unceasing efforts of the mother organization, there are at present similar organizations in nearly every country of the world.

The rapid increase of the movement during the first ten years of its existence suggested the idea of uniting the various organizations into a world's union and a convention of delegates representing the branch societies. Again the American women took the initiative and called a world's convention of the Women's Christian Temperance unions, which was held in Boston in 1891. There the world's organization was founded and an agreement reached to hold biennial world's conventions, in which all branches of the organization should be represented by delegates.

Isabel, Lady Mary Somerset, is the eldest daughter of the Earl and Countess of Somers and is fifty-one years old. She was married in 1872 to Lord Henry Somerset and since 1885 has been active in temperance and philanthropic work. She began the crusade against the liquor traffic which has given her worldwide fame by publicly signing the pledge with forty of her tenants in the village of Ledbury.

Her tenants in London, numbering nearly 100,000, next claimed her attention, and by doing mission work in the London slums and giving fetes at Eastnor castle to as many as 10,000 at a time she did a noble work. As editor of the Woman's Signal and leader of the Temperance association she has exerted a great influence.

WILCOX'S LETTER RECEIVED.

Tells President Miners Are Restraining Interstate Commerce.

Washington, Oct. 11.—President Roosevelt has received the communication from David Wilcox, of the Delaware and Hudson Railroad company, and has referred it, together with the former one, of which Mr. Wilcox speaks, to the attorney general.

New York, Oct. 11.—David Wilcox, vice president and counsel for the Delaware and Hudson Railroad company, and one of those present at the recent conference, called by President Roosevelt, at Washington, has sent to President Roosevelt a letter demanding that the federal government proceed against the miners' organization in the courts on the ground that it is a conspiracy to prevent interstate commerce.

Mr. Wilcox, it is said on authority, represents all the coal operators in this action, and was selected as their spokesman. The letter was made public in this city yesterday, together with a letter written several months ago to the president along the same lines.

The Earth's Other Motion.

The earth, in addition to its diurnal and annual revolutions, has a slow wabbling of its axis, a motion seldom mentioned even in the textbooks of astronomy. This curious motion may be properly likened to that imparted to a top by a touch of the finger on its rim when it is in rapid movement, the touch causing the upper end of the top's stem to describe a small circle. So, too, the mighty sun lays hold of the rim of the great terrestrial top, and it begins to oscillate in the long period of 21,000 years—that is to say, on Dec. 21, 1248, the earth made its nearest approach to the sun, and it will approach equally near in 10,500 years from that time, or on the 21st day of June in the year 11,748. This has all to do with climate both north and south of the equatorial line.

In the period comprising the first our northern winters are short and mild and our summers are long and sunny. But during the period of which the year 11,748 will be the middle our winters will be awful in their severity and our summers short and cool. Even now the northern hemisphere is slowly but surely losing its long, sunny summers, and if you should live until the winter of the year 11,748-49 you could tell a story of cold and snows that would pale to insignificance the stories of the cold winter of 1833-34, for the whole northern hemisphere will then be in the midst of its great and terrible winter.

The Kingfisher.

Koskomenos, the kingfisher, still burrows in the earth like his reptile ancestors. Therefore the other birds call him outcast and will have nothing to do with him. But he cares little for that, being a clattering, rattle headed, self satisfied fellow, who seems to do nothing all day long but fish and eat. As you follow him, however, you note with amazement that he does some things marvelously well—better, indeed, than any other of the wood folk. To locate a fish accurately in still water is difficult enough when one thinks of light refraction, but when the fish is moving and the sun glares down into the pool and the wind wrinkles its face into a thousand flashing, changing furrows and ridges, then the bird that can point a bill straight to his fish and hit him fair just behind the gills must have more in his head than the usual chattering gossip that one hears from him on the trout streams.—Country Life In America.

The Next Speaker

Men Who Would Wield the Gavel Henderson Is to Lay Down : : :

THE unexpected refusal of Speaker David B. Henderson to become a candidate for re-election in the Third congressional district of Iowa, which has ten times sent him to congress, has given rise to much speculation among Republicans as to his probable successor as speaker of the house of representatives.

Among Republicans, who expect to control the Fifty-eighth congress, there is much talk of Henderson's successor. Some of the names most frequently mentioned are J. G. Cannon of Illinois, James S. Sherman of New York, T. E. Burton of Ohio, Charles E. Littlefield of Maine and J. W. Babcock of Wisconsin. Besides these C. H. Grosvenor of Ohio and E. H. Bingham and John Dalzell of Pennsylvania have been discussed as possibilities for the high position.

Mr. Sherman of New York was the principal opponent of Henderson three years ago, but the candidacy of Sereno E. Payne, also of New York, made it impossible for an Empire State man to land the place.

Mr. Sherman is one of the best presiding officers the house has ever had, as he has had ample opportunities to show as chairman of the committee of the whole house on the state of the Union.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon was a candidate three years ago, but A. J. Hopkins of the same state also came out for speaker and divided the Illinois delegation, thus killing Cannon's chances.

Littlefield, the "man from Maine," is regarded by some as too new a member to be invested with the dignity and power of the speakership. Besides, he has not always acted with his party. He opposed the Porto Rico bill and the Cuban reciprocity measure, and the Republicans, if they control the next house, may not feel like putting him forward. Still, he is a strong possibility.

Burton of Ohio is not fully in accord with Mr. Hanna and might find it difficult to get the delegation from his state. Burton is serving his fifth term in congress and is chairman of the rivers and harbors committee. Congressman Grosvenor of Ohio is serving his eighth term in congress. His ability and experience fit him for the position, but he has the handicap of age, having begun his seventieth year.

The two Pennsylvania men, Dalzell and Bingham, are both veterans in congress. Mr. Bingham has seen nearly a quarter of a century of service in the house, having been elected continuously since he entered the Forty-sixth congress. Mr. Bingham is the "father of the house." Mr. Dalzell is serving his eighth term and is considered a strong man. He ranks second on the ways and means committee.

Babcock of Wisconsin is a man who must be reckoned with. He is in a strong position, and the contest may be between him and Cannon. They are about equal as to parliamentary skill.

Mr. Babcock is chairman of the congressional campaign committee of his party and in that place has put a number of men under obligations to him. He fairly represents the sentiment out west on the tariff and trust issues.

Cannon and Babcock are men of about the same intellectual caliber. Neither is brilliant; both are hardheaded, common sense men with very few illusions about anything.

But should the Republican expectations be wrong and the Democrats win the house there will be no lack of aspirants for the speaker's job. Mr. Richardson of Tennessee was the party candidate against Henderson in the last and in this congress. He is an admirable presiding officer, having often been tried in that capacity. It is not likely, however, that he would have a walkover for the speakership.

Mr. De Armond of Missouri was Mr. Richardson's opponent for the minority nomination for speaker last year. He has been mentioned as the possible successor of Henderson should the Democrats win. Whether or not he could land it is an open question.

Mr. Griggs of Georgia, chairman of the Democratic campaign committee, will undoubtedly be pushed by his friends in case of victory for the Democrats. Mr. Underwood of Georgia, the Democratic whip, will also have a chance should there be a deadlock among the leaders in the race.

Williams of Mississippi is said to be also in the field. He is a man of education, a fine lawyer, a thorough parliamentarian and a finished orator. He is thoroughly qualified for the position should it come his way.

Since the adoption of the constitution there have been thirty-three speakers formally elected, besides several who have been appointed speakers pro tempore for a period of ten days. The speaker of the First congress was Frederick Augustus Conrad Muhlenburg of Pennsylvania. He was also speaker of the Third congress.

The most distinguished of the early speakers and the man who was oftenest elected to that office was Henry Clay of Kentucky. He entered the house in the Twelfth congress after having already served short periods in the senate. He was chosen speaker on the first day of his appearance as a member of the house and is the only man who never sat in that body except as speaker. Twice he resigned from the house, but on re-entering that body was elected speaker again, quite as a matter of course. Altogether Clay was elected speaker in six congresses.

The next oftenest was Andrew Stevenson of Virginia, who was elected four times, resigning the last time to go as minister to England. The only speakers to have three full consecutive terms and no more were Nathaniel Macon of North Carolina, Schuyler Colfax of Indiana, James G. Blaine of Maine and John G. Carlisle of Kentucky. Thomas B. Reed of Maine has had three terms, but two congresses intervened between his first and second terms.

Samuel J. Randall of Pennsylvania was elected speaker three times successively, but the first time was for the second or short session of the Forty-fourth congress as the successor of Michael C. Kerr of Indiana, who had died during the recess of that congress.

Those who have had two consecutive terms and no more were Jonathan Dayton of New Jersey, Joseph B. Varnum of Massachusetts, James K. Polk of Tennessee, Linn Boyd of Kentucky, Charles F. Crisp of Georgia and David B. Henderson of Iowa. Henderson was the first congressman from west of the Mississippi to be elected speaker. The other speakers had one term only.

DIPLOMATIC CORPS.

HOW IT IS AFFECTED BY EMBASSADOR WHITE'S RETIREMENT.

Shifting of Our Representatives Abroad Is In Each Case a Promotion—New Minister to Brazil Was Once a Day Laborer.

The recent changes in the diplomatic service, by which five experienced representatives of the United States in foreign countries receive new portfolios and one man is appointed from private life to enter the field of diplomacy, are the direct results of the retirement of Embassador Andrew D. White from the post at Berlin.

The appointments, which go into effect Nov. 1, are promotions for merit in the case of the men already in the service, while the new man, although lacking diplomatic experience, is not unknown in public life.

In pursuance of his policy of recognizing the merit system in this branch of the public service, President Roosevelt has advanced Charlemagne Tower, now embassador to Russia, to the more important portfolio in Germany to be vacated by Mr. White. Robert S. McCormick goes from Austria-Hungary to Russia. Bellamy Storer, minister to Spain, becomes embassador to the Austrian empire. Arthur S. Hardy moves from Switzerland to Spain. Charles Page Bryan graduates from Brazil to Switzerland. The new man, David C. Thompson of Nebraska, follows Mr. Bryan to Brazil.

Charlemagne Tower of Philadelphia belongs to a well known family of that city and is descended from John Tower of Norfolk, England, who settled in Hingham, Mass., in 1637. Mr. Tower, who is now in his fifty-fifth year, is a graduate of Harvard university.

In 1878 he was admitted to the bar of Pennsylvania, but has not given much time to the practice of his profession. He is a director of the Lehigh Coal company and of the Reading Coal and Iron company. Mr. Tower is the author of a work on the "Marquis de Lafayette In the American Revolution." President McKinley nominated Mr. Tower for minister to Austria-

CHARLEMAGNE TOWER.

Hungary in March, 1897, and on Jan. 10, 1899, he was appointed embassador to Russia.

Robert S. McCormick of Chicago is a son of the great reaper manufacturer. He is about fifty years old and has always been prominent in literary circles. He rose from work as a reporter on the Chicago Tribune to an editorial post and married a daughter of Joseph Medill, proprietor of that paper, and since Mr. Medill's death has been associated with Robert Patterson, the other son-in-law, in the ownership and management of the property.

He was nominated for envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Austria-Hungary by President McKinley on March 6, 1901, was promptly confirmed by the senate and commissioned the next day. Largely through his representations the post was raised to the dignity of an embassadorship on March 27 of this year. Mr. McCormick is at present in this country.

The new embassador to Austria-Hungary, Bellamy Storer of Cincinnati, is a native of Ohio and is fifty-five years old. He is a lawyer and made his first entry into public life as a member of the Fifty-second congress. He was re-elected to the Fifty-third and was a member of the foreign affairs committee. He is a man of large private means. He was made minister to Spain in 1899.

Charles Page Bryan is a native of Chicago, but spent his youth in Washington, his father for many years being one of the commissioners of the District of Columbia. He is a graduate of the University of Virginia and of the Columbian law school, Washington. In 1897 President McKinley appointed him minister to China, but at his own request he was sent to Brazil instead, Mr. Conger being transferred from Brazil to China.

David E. Thompson of Nebraska is now in his forty-ninth year. Born on a farm in Michigan, he was left an orphan before his ninth birthday. Until his thirteenth year he worked on the farm and went to school. Then four years were spent in a jeweler's shop. Close confinement injured his health, and he entered the service of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad in June, 1872, as truckman in the freighthouse at Lincoln, Neb. The record of his rise from this position to a place among the most wealthy, influential and successful business men of the west reads like a fairy tale. On March 19, 1901, he was nominated by the Republicans for the short term in the United States senate.

SENATORS QUAY CASSATT.

Rumor They Conferred With Him, In Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Oct. 11.—Senators Quay and Penrose arrived here from New York last evening and immediately disappeared. It was reported but the rumor could not be verified, that they were in consultation with President Cassat, of the Pennsylvania railroad, until a late hour.

Up to midnight Senator Quay had not appeared at the Hotel Walton, his stopping place in this city, nor did he present himself at Republican state headquarters.

Shortly before the arrival of the senators President Cassat met President Baer, of the Reading company, on the latter's return from New York. After a brief conversation Mr. Baer went to his home.

Senator Penrose was scheduled last night to attend a meeting of business men at Pottsville, at which Secretary of the Treasury Shaw delivered an address. Mr. Penrose, however, did not go to Pottsville, which adds strength to the belief that matters of importance pertaining to the miners' strike were considered by the senators after their arrival here.

No one saw Senator Quay leave the railroad station, although it is known that Senator Penrose proceeded to his home, where he remained only a few minutes.

Needed For Other Purposes.

A Georgia justice recently married a runaway couple who drove up to his house and went through the ceremony without descending from the carriage. When the ceremony was over, says the Atlanta Constitution, the groom fumbled in his pockets and fished up thirty-six cents.

"Jedge," he said, "this here's all the money I got in the world. Ef you've a mind to take it, you kin, but I'll say now that I done set it aside fer the honeymoon expenses."

Her Opportunity.

"They say she isn't happy," commented the neighbor, "but I don't see why."

"Oh, some people never are satisfied."

"That's right, and it's her own fault if she isn't happy, because she's able to buy clothes that will make all the other women envious."—Chicago Post.

THE CODE COMMITTEE CHANGES ITS MIND AS REGARDS BOARDS

Hostile Criticism Causes It to Make New Provision For Couucils—Boards of Review Are Favored.

From a Staff Correspondent.

Columbus, October 17.—The code conference committee has reversed itself again. Thursday night it changed the code so that the bi-partisan board of public safety, to be of either two or four members, council to determine the number, is to be appointed by the mayor, subject to confirmation of council. Two days before the committee provided that this board should be appointed by the sinking fund commission, which is to be appointed by the mayor.

This act met with such hostile criticism that the committee concluded it would be a good thing to change it. It was also decided to provide for rotary councils. Instead of the entire council going out of office at the same time a part will go out one year and part the next. There will be no change in the manner of selecting councilmen.

There will be no police court legislation, as the Democrats will not vote for the judiciary bill to provide for this, and without their help it cannot pass. The committee also abolished city boards of equalization and substituted therefore boards of review, to be appointed by the state auditor upon application of the county auditor. The Longworth act passed last winter created boards of review.

It has not been agreed whether the Guerin bill passed by the house or the Royer bill passed by the senate, each for the repeal of the Royer act shortening the power of the supreme court, will be adopted. There is little difference between them. Failure of the legislature to pass a repeal measure is causing the circuit courts much inconvenience and is tying up litigation.

The code committee will hardly report before Monday or Tuesday now. It is expected that the bill will be put to a final vote on Tuesday.

Senator Hanna, while passing through the city yesterday, took occasion to express his dislike for the bill. He thinks it should not pass in its present form.

THE SNAKE CHARMER MADE MANY THREATS

Mademoiselle Zera Got Away With Paraphernalia Despite Replevin Writ.

Constable Powell met with a cold bluff yesterday afternoon when he attempted to preempt the property of the Taylor snake show, which had been attached by the Columbian park management. Mademoiselle Zera, the snake charmer, was in an unamiable state of mind when the constable called and she gave vent to her feelings by giving him a tongue lashing. She did not attempt to use her wiles, but threatened if he laid hands on her property she would lay him out with the hammer she was holding. She managed to get away with a box of snakes, two trunks and some other stuff, in spite of the constable's presence.

"If that constable had touched that box of snakes, he'd be in bed today," said Mademoiselle this morning. "I'd have hit him with that hammer and laid him out flat. Why, do you know how much we've taken in since we've been here?" she replied. "Two dollars and ninety-five cents! The walkin's going to be crowded for some of those side show people," she concluded.

The box of snakes and trunks were on the wharf boat this morning.

Reached in the Case of Henry Mellon, Wellsville, And Edward Allen, Salem.

Lisbon, October 17.—(Special)—Three criminal cases were to have been heard in common pleas court yesterday, but owing to the absence of important witnesses court was late in starting, and the case of Henry Mellon, of Wellsville, dragged out nearly the remainder of the day. The arguments were conducted about 5:30, and court adjourned till 7 o'clock.

The jury brought in a verdict of not guilty, and the court proceeded with the hearing of Edward Allen, the Salem pickpocket. The state had a plain case, and by 9 o'clock the jury brought in a verdict of guilty. Judge Hole sentenced him to two years in the penitentiary.

TOWBOAT SUNK

EAST LIVERPOOL MAN NARROWLY ESCAPED WITH HIS LIFE.

Finally Rescued By Means of a Rope in the Nick of Time.

The towboat Fred Wilson, which left Pittsburg last Monday with over 30 barges of coal in tow, met with an accident near Cattlettsburg, Ky., yesterday and the Consolidated Coal & Coke company, of Pittsburg, suffered a loss of 150,000 bushels of coal, aggregating in cash over $12,000.

The boat missed the channel and her front barges swinging around struck the end of the dike, becoming immediately submerged. Rutherford Sellers and Howard James, two young men of the southeastern part of the state, but who have resided in East Liverpool for several months, were abcard the ill-fated boat when the disaster occurred, and it is said that James had a very narrow escape from a watery grave. He was on one of the barges that got loose, and in attempting to land on one side of the secured boats fell into the river. A line was thrown to him and after sinking once he was able to seize it. He was rescued nearly exhausted.

BURNING PITCH

Started a Blaze at East Liverpool Pottery Which Threatened Much Damage.

A destructive fire was narrowly averted at the plant of the East Liverpool pottery at 10 o'clock this morning.

Workmen were engaged in applying pitch to a portion of the roof of the building, and had five gallons of the stuff in a large tank, under which a fire had been lighted. The pitch spilled over the edge and caught fire. For a time the blaze threatened to destroy the building. It burned fiercely, and in an attempt to extinguish the fire the man in charge of the work had his right hand and arm badly burned.

As the burning tar had almost reached the factory, J. J. Langley, dipper at the plant, jumped from the window of the dipping house, and after a great deal of hard work succeeded in putting out the fire with the aid of a hose. The fire department was called, but the blaze had been put out before it arrived.

SOUGHT TO DEFEAT FARM CONVEYANCE

Pennsylvania Concern Brought an Action Against a Woman Near Bayard.

LARGE SUM WAS INVOLVED

And the Question of the Constitutionality of an Act of 1898 Was Raised. Action of Wife Taken in Good Faith Held Valid.

Lisbon, October 17.—(Special.)—While the court was waiting for witnesses in the criminal cases yesterday an interesting civil case was argued before Judge Hole. It was the case of the Wolf company, a Pennsylvania manufacturing concern, against Hattie W. Hahn, near Bayard, this county.

The Wolf company brought action to set aside the conveyance of a farm near Bayard, made by John W. Hahn to his wife last spring. The paintiffs claimed the conveyance was made to defraud creditors, setting forth that they had obtained a judgment against the husband, which transaction they sought to defeat. They asked the court to set aside the conveyance and appoint a trustee to the sell the property and apply the proceeds to the payment of all debts of John W. Hahn.

This action was brought under a statute passed in 1898, making void a conveyance made by anyone insolvent with intent to prefer any creditors. Attorney J. A. Martin, of Lisbon, answered for the defendant, saying that she had lent her husband $5,000 in 1893 to buy a farm and that he had given her a judgment note for it. The defense maintained the loan was made under the conditions that obtained before the passage of the act of 1898, and that under the laws then in force one might prefer his creditors.

Mrs. Hahn took judgment against her husband on this cognovit note last spring in this court for $9,000, and then in pursuance of the contract for preference he deeded her the property for $7,000, receiving a receipt for that amount. The defendant't attorney held that the act of 1898, forbidding preference of creditors, is unconstitutional and void in so far as it interferes with her right to a preference under the contract made witn her husband in 1893, being in conflict with a provision of the constitution declaring the legislature shall have no power to pass laws impairing the provisions of a contract. He asked that if the conveyance were set aside her receipt for $7,000 on this judgment be likewise cancelled and that she be given a first lien of $9,000 on the farm by virtue of her judgment.

The court overruled the demurrer to this defense, holding that a judgment taken in good faith on a cognovit note given in 1893 would constitute a valid lien, but sustained the demurrer to the defense that the act of 1898 was unconstitutional, for the reason the petition failed to allege that the contract was in writing. Attorneys Clark & Clark, of Canton, represented the plaintiffs.

WILLIAM JONES ON THE WARPATH

With Club and Stones He Was Spreading Terror When Apprehended.

FRIGHTENED MANY PEOPLE

Before He Was Seized By Officers And Taken to the Police Station—Mayor Gave Him a Fine And Warning of the Penalty Next Time.

Howling mad and raving like a maniac, William Jones, who when asked where he lives said, "Any old place I hang my hat is home, sweet home, to me," was arrested last evening by Officers McDermott and Saulsberry on Second street. Filled to the neck with red eye Jones was uncontrollable and for a short time had terrorized the residents. He secured a club and a handful of rocks and threatened the lives of every one on the street.

From on eside of the street to the other the man in his crazed condition ran, swinging his club and defying the best man in the city. A number of people, not realizing that he was simply drunk, became terribly frightened and made themselves scarce.

When about ready to center an attack on a passerby Jones was discovered by the officers and taken in charge, but not without a struggle. He was determined that he would not sleep in the city bastile and fought desperately for liberty, but he was small potatoes alongside of the two nervy policemen. Mayor Davidson assessed him $6.60 this morning and warned him that if he is ever arrested again on a similar cnarge he will get the full penalty, which is $50 and costs, with a workhouse sentence attached.

FRIGHTFUL EXPERIENCE

Woman Fell Through Floor And Was in a Vault Over an Hour.

There was an hour or more of intense excitement yesterday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Bower, on Florence street. Mrs. Bower's mother, Mrs. Denning, who lives in the West End, was a visitor at the house and about 4 o'clock, while in a rear building, by the breaking of a floor, fell into the vault eight feet beneath. Mrs. Denning cried out for some time before the people in the house heard her. They hastened to her assistance.

A rope was first tried, but she could not stand the strain. Finally a ladder was secured and she got out after over an hour of frightful experience. The shock greatly affected her.

SCRAP IN POSTOFFICE

Mrs. Minnis Resented Some Harsh Things Alleged to Have Been Said of Her.

Mrs. Hattie Minnis and Miss Sadie Harvey, two colored women, met in the postoffice last evening about 5 o'clock. Mrs. Minnis took Miss Sadie to task for some hard things she alleged her to have said about her and Miss Sadie denied the soft impeachment. Mrs. Minnis was not convinced and a war of words followed, much to the amusement of the people in the postoffice at the time.

The affair took a more serious turn, however, when they came to blows. It is not known who hit first but in the interchange of blows both received several hard ones. They were not molested by the police.

CLERKS AGREE

TO THE TERMS OFFERED BY THE LOCAL MERCHANTS.

Stores to Close at 5 p. m. During Four Months of the Year—The Compromise.

A joint meeting of the retail clerks and the merchants' association was held last night at city hall. There were 30 members of the clerks' union present and about 40 business men.

The counter proposition sumbitted to the clerks yesterday was accepted by them at the meeting, and while it contains a few minor changes from the original demand of the clerks, the latter organization considers it a fairly good compromise.

The agreement adopted calls for the closing of all stores at 5 p. m. during the months of January, February, July and August. It also asked that the stores remain open until 9 o'clock on Monday evening, but eliminates the former request that the five and ten cent stores be allowed to remain open until 11 o'clock on Saturday evenings.

The settlement is gratifying to both the merchants and the clerks, as it was thought at one time it would be impossiblle to adjust the matter without a fight.

POWELL VS. HOWELL

Lisbon, October 17.—(Special)—Richard Howell, of Wellsville, was placed on trial this morning for drawand appropriating a fellow workman's pay. He and a man named Abner Powell were in the employ of the Vulcan Clay company, of Wellsville. It is alleged that when the paymaster called Powell's name on a certain pay day, Howell received the envelope which contained $45.15. Later, when Powell complained that he had not got his pay, Howell's envelope containnig $1.60 was found in the office.

Howell denied having drawn the pay of Howell, and then disappeared before he could be arrested. He was captured soon afterward, and has been in jail since some time in July.

FINE RACES YESTERDAY

Speed Trials at Columbian Park Proved to Be Most Pleasing Events.

TWO LOCAL HORSES ENTERED

H. S. RINEHART'S VICTORY

As a result of Wednesday's excellent program, fully 3,000 people filed into Columbian park yesterday afternoon and their anticipation of a repetition of pleasing events was realized. The races, special performances, music and the many other attractions on the grounds met the approval of all and the management received much praise.

The hillside was literally packed by lovers of horse flesh and the waving of handkerchiefs, together with vociferous applause as a favorite would come under the wire showed the general satisfaction. Owing to the fact that two horses belonging to East Liverpool men raced in the 2:22 pace interest centered mostly on that race.

Robert L, owned by George Larkins, and Redmond, owned by Harrison Rinehart, were the two of interest. Each horse had hundreds of admirers and when both left the wire for the first heat the crowd was almost breathless. In the first heat Robert L. was held back, owing to his getting a poor start and Redmond won the heat in a walk. In the second heat both horses ran for life. Redmond continued his gait, which is just a little too fast for Robert L. and again won the heat with Robert L. a close second. The latter's backers were yet unconvinced of Redmond's superiority and when the third heat was called they persisted in shouting for their favorite.

A prettier heat was never witnessed. The horses started off well and came in as in the second heat, the winner making it in 2:22½. On this race large sums of money changed hands, Mr. Rinehart alone winning over $1,000. He made one of the most daring bets or record in local history. Before the race started he, it is said, bet $400 that his horse would win the first three heats. Had his horse lost a shoe or brokeen a couple of times the $400 would have gone. Luckily for him the animal took the trio and made him easy money.

The 2:30 pace was also a very interesting event. There were six starters in the race and six heats were necessary to decide which of three was the best. Kitty Wilkes, owned by a man in Londenderry, won the first heat with Litutenant Garcia, owned by Dr. Kinsey, of Wheeling, second and Roan View, owned by Kelly, of Charlerol, third. Lieutenant Garcia won the next two heats and all were confident that she had the race handicapped. Roan view came to the front, however, in the next and won the heat, with Lieutenant Garcia second.

In the next the latter horse was held back and Roan View again won a heat with Callot Boy second. The sixth heat was opened with only three starters, those not winning a place being barred. Betting ran high on this heat, but not at the poolsellers' stand. They held that it was an even toss between Lieuterant Garcia and Roan View and offered odds that did not suit the crowd. Roan View got a little the best of the start and took every advantage of it, keeping ahead of Lieutenant Garcia at all times.

Owing to the close approach of darkness but two heats in the free for all were allowed. Pilot Boy won them both from Texas Queen, but he had to put forth every energy.

Cute, the famous pacer and known as the guideless wonder, broke the track record by making a mile in 2:13. The record at the park is 2:21. She was driven by Mrs. Strong, who drove her in at Port Henry three weeks ago and broke the world's record at 2:10½. It is said that had not Mrs. Strong lost her whip on the last quarter Cute would have made it yesterday in 2:10.

Prof. Spoerhase with his three beautiful horses, tandem style, made a pretty performance.

General Manager George Smith announces that the races will be continued to Saturday, owing to the fact that it has been impossible to finish the races scheduled. The races to be

WITH THE WORKMEN IN THE CLAY PLANTS

POTTER ROBBED AND STABBED.

Fred Weaver, a young man employed at the pottery at Ford City, Pa., was on his way home yesterday in broad daylight with his wages, amounting to $53, in his pocket, when he saw two men standing in the road. Weaver paid no attention to them, but in passing he was struck over the head with a slung shot and staggered. As he recovered he sprang at the man who struck him and kicked him, when the other thug drew a knife and struck Weaver twice on the right breast, cutting him severely, the knife glancing the ribs. Weaver, however, held onto his pocket containing the money and the pocket was torn from his trousers in the scuffle. After securing the $53 the highwaymen threw Weaver over the river bank and left him for dead. He was found later and a doctor dressed his wounds, which are not serious, though painful.

WALKED FROM SMITH'S FERRY.

A number of the boys at the McNicol plant are laughing over the plight of a prominent physician who came across on the ferry the other night from Georgetown just in time to see the East Liverpool train disappear around a curve. The medical gentleman had to walk to town, and remembering a former experience, did not rely on his physical prowess for protection, but secured a trusty Smith & Wesson.

WENDLING'S LECTURE

Noted Orator Captivates a Large Audience By His Eloquence—Bible His Theme.

A large and enthusiastic audience assembled at the Grand opera house last evening to hear Hon. George R. Wendling deliver an eloquent lecture on "The Imperial Book."

Supt. R. E. Rayman, in a fitting manner, introduced the speaker of the evening, who, in the very beginning captured the audience by repeating those immortal lines of Shakespeare's Hamlet:

"To be, or not to be; that is the question;
Whether 'tis nobler in the mind to suffer
The slings and arrows of outrageous fortune
Or to take arms against a sea of troubles,
And by opposing end them."

After quoting fro mgreat and learned Socrates, he said: "But let me tell you a story which has been told in the many tongues of all the world." It was then, in choice and beautiful words that he told the pathetic story of the "Prodigal Son." Neither Shakespeare nor Socrates with all their eloquence shall outlive the bible —"The Imperial Book."

Then with wonderful word picturing and powerful expression, the speaker presented the place which is occupied by the bible in all nations. "Never shall it be decredited nor discarded," said he. Towards the last he pictured what all the world would be without this most wonderful and useful of all books.

Dr. Wendling closed his scholarly address with fitting remarks. The audience was captured and applauded generously.

MINERS' ACCEPTANCE HELPED.

Had Big Influence on Stock Market, Yesterday, as Did Rumor as to Shaw's Intention.

New York, Oct. 17.—The formal announcement that the coal miners' representatives had agreed to submit their difficulties with the coal operators to the board of arbitration appointed by President Roosevelt removed any lingering doubts that existed in Wall street as to a possible hitch in the efforts to bring about a satisfactory solution of the matter. Advices from abroad that the situation was viewed there with great cheerfulness intensified the optimistic feeling and caused heavy buying of the general market. London followed its satisfaction over the outcome by creating a strong and active market for American securities there and supplemented it with some large buying orders here. Prices opened with a rush upward, and huge blocks of stocks were bought at rising prices. The opening in the coalers was wide and there were 6,000 shares of Pennsylvania purchased on a fractional spread. Initial gains were well over a point throughout the active list, and after a temporary setback the rise was renewed with vigor and advances of two and even three points became numerous. The buying movement embraced all of the usual favorites and at times was heavily centered in various groups, particularly in the Pennsylvania group. The pronounced strength of the market brought out the usual crop rumors regarding special stocks, particularly Norfolk and Western, which advanced over six points to 80 over reports of an increased dividend. Much of the heavy buying throughout the list was credited to a heavy operator who has recently returned to the street after an absence abroad. After the first burst of enthusiasm over the favorable aspect of the coal strike situation the street began to regard that incident as a secondary factor in the market and commenced to discount the expected easing up of the monetary situation through the rumored bond purchases of Secretary Shaw. Room shorts showed much concern over the heavy absorption of stocks and covered pretty extensively in many of the leaders.

Monetary conditions yesterday were more favorable to borrowers and there were more liberal offerings of time money below recent rates.

Trading was in immense volume in the closing hour and there were many blocks of a thousand shares and upwards taken, one block of 5,000 shares of Norfolk and Western changing hands at 80. Prices all around were quite generally lifted to the best and the closing was very active and strong.

EAST END

SPORT AT THE PARK

Colored Men Were Having a Big Crap Game But Were Rudely Disturbed.

About a dozen colored men were having a high old time last night in one of the stables at Columbian park. They had improvised a crap table, using several bales of straw and a horse blanket. Two lanterns furnished all the light necessary for them to count the spots on the "bones" and for the money transactions.

One of the drivers happened along and heard the familiar "Two bits he don't nine" and other phrases familiar to the game. In a spirit of levity he shouted, "The cops are coming" and in a moment all was confusion. The lights went out and there was a lively scramble for the open air.

ELEMENTS AT PLAY

Electrical Storm, Presaging Cold Weather, Witnessed in East End This Morning.

Everything was quiet in the East End today, the principal topic of general interest being the electrical storm and the eclipse. The storm began about two o'clock this morning and continued for an hour. The lightening flashes were very sharp and the thunder claps very distinct. There was a slight sprinkle of rain in some places.

One man who witnessed the play of the elemtns said there was usually a storm of this nature every October and that it was a sure sign of colder weather.

Saw the Eclipse.

Captain Terrence, of the East End fire station, witnessed the eclipse of the moon last night. "It began promptly at 11:17, the time scheduled for it by the astronomers," said the captain, "and from then on the dark shadow spead slowly until the moon was completely hidden. One peculiar feature was that the middle portion of the eclipse was much blacker, for on either side I could see the moon's faint light."

Side Show Attached.

Constable Powell, from Justice McCarron's court, served attachment papers yesterday evening upon the effects of the owners of four of the side shows at Columbian park. The attachments were secured by the park management, owing to the failure of the men to pay the privilege fees. The side show men are in hard luck as their patronage so far has been very slim.

CAME OFF ON TIME

The Eclipse of the Moon Was Watched With Interest By Many.

The moon was obscured by the earth's shadow for almost an hour this morning, causing a phenomenon that was observed with much interest by astronomers in every part of the United States. The lunar eclipse began at East Liverpool at 11:17 o'clock last night, while the beginning of its totality was observed at 12:19, the total ending at about 2 o'clock and the partial eclipse at 2:50 o'clock this morning.

The sky was perfectly clear last night and when fair Luna entered the penumbra of the shadow of Mother Earth many persons in and about the city watched the brilliant disc diminish in size and then apparently melt into black space. A short time before the eclipse started the moon shone brilliantly amid a mountain of white clouds.

Twelve Cars Demolished in a Smashup at New Salisbury.

The breaking down of an old car at New Salisbury, near Irondale, at 12 o'clock Wednesday night, caused a disastrous wreck on the main line of the C. & P. railroad. Twelve cars were piled up and demolished, and it took the three wreck crews from Conway, Alliance and Wellsville 12 hours to clear the track.

The two midnight passenger trains were run over the Fort Wayne railroad from Alliance to Rochester.

ANOTHER CAWLEY ARRESTED.

Brother of Wholesale Murderer Confesses to Highway Robbery.

Pittsburg, Oct. 17.—James Cawley, the elder brother of Charles Cawley, who is alleged to have killed his mother, younger brother and two sisters with an ax last Friday morning, was held for court yesterday morning in $1,000 bail on a charge of highway robbery. There was a large crowd present at the hearing for the purpose of seeing this member of this unfortunate family, and they were rather disappointed at the brevity and intense apathy of the whole proceedings.

Like a terrible climax to the Homestead tragedy of last Friday came the arrest of Charles' oldest brother, James Cawley, for highway robbery. The police officials were surprised.

None could rid himself of the thought but that a mistake had been made, but yesterday morning, when he pleaded guilty to the charge, the terrible reality was forced, almost unwillingly, upon them.

In Homestead the surprise caused by his arrest is even greater. James Cawley had been praised as the hero who had overpowered his maniac brother, and turned him over to the police, thus preventing further bloodshed, and had been pitied by all the townspeople for the terrible calamity that had befallen him. In the churches special collections had been taken for his benefit, and sympathy was showered upon him by hundreds. That he was guilty of any crime never entered their minds.

When the case of Cawley was called, it was announced that the prosecutor was Chester Johnson, of Miamisburg, O., who alleged that the defendant was one of a gang of three that attacked him and his companion, William Huff, of Finleyville, at midnight, Saturday, Oct. 4, when Huff was run down and killed by a shifting engine at Glenwood, while escaping from them.

English Commons Suspends O Donnell

London, Oct. 17.—During an exciting scene in the house of commons yesterday Premier Balfour moved the suspension of John O'Donnell, and the latter crossed the floor, stood in front of Mr. Balfour, shouted defiance and shook his fist in the premier's face. Mr. O'Donnell was suspended by a vote of 341 to 51.

Persian Customs.

In Persia, as well as in Turkey and throughout the orient generally, modern waterworks are unknown, and in every Persian town the women and girls may be seen at daybreak on their way to the common wells just as in old Bible times. They carry their pitchers on their shoulders and bring water for the household uses of the day. The well is the general clearing house for news. Another common sight in Persian towns is the tea seller. He carries a big brass teapot in either hand, the one full of hot water, the other of tea. His cups are in a tray, which is fastened to his belt. He cries in a singsong tone: "Hot tea! Sweet tea! Tea of crimson color!". His tea is prepared with herbs and has a delicious thymy odor. Wine is carried about in beefskins, which, plumped out to their original form by the fluid within, present a startling appearance to the novice. It is one of the impossible things for the western barbarian to attain admission to the Persian royal harem, but the rage for photographs has penetrated even that sequestered spot, and photographers have lately been admitted for the purpose of photographing the royal infants.—New York Tribune.

Plants and Gravitation.

The sense of gravitation in plants is that sense, for example, that makes a pine tree grow straight upward. A plant that curves assumes that position because its sense of gravitation makes it take the one best suited to its needs. Some flower stalks are very curiously guided by the gravitation sense. The narcissus is an example. At first there is a straight shaft piercing the ground with its compact pointed flower bud, but as the flower opens the stalk bends close to the top and brings the flower tube into a roughly horizontal position, where it shows off its bright colored crown to attract the insects, on the visits of which it depends for fertilization. The flowers are guided to the right position by the gravitation sense, and they increase or diminish the angular bend in their stalk until the right position is attained.

Hugo and the Poets.

"One day," said Turgeneff in his "Reminiscences," "we were discussing German poetry. Victor Hugo, who did not like others to monopolize the talk when he was by, interrupted me with a disquisition upon Goethe. 'His best work,' he remarked in an Olympian tone, 'is "Wallenstein."'

"'Pardon me, cher maitre, "Wallenstein" is not Goethe's, but Schiller's.'

"'No matter; I have read neither of these authors, but I understand their spirit better than those who know them by heart.'

"What could I reply?"

Cheerful Prospect.

Patient—Tell me candidly, doctor, do you think I'll pull through?

Doctor—Oh, you are bound to get well. You can't help yourself. The Medical Record shows that out of a hundred cases like yours one recovers invariably.

"That's a cheerful prospect."

"What more do you want? I've treated ninety-nine cases, and every one of them died. Why, man alive, you can't die if you try! There's no humbug about statistics!"

Sagacious Bird.

Mexico has a clever bird, called the melanarpes, which has discovered a use for the telegraph pole. At the foot of the post this bird makes a large hole, in which it rears its family. Somewhat higher up the post it makes an observatory, from which bored holes permit it to observe the horizon in every direction. Still higher this sagacious bird makes its storehouse, and thus the pole serves as its home, fortress and warehouse.

Instinct of the Mudfish.

The remarkable instinct of the mudfish to roll himself in a ball of mud when the dry season approaches is a wonderful provision of nature intended solely, it would seem, to prevent the extinction of the species. The most interesting fact about this fish is that it breathes by means of its gills when in its native element and by means of lungs during its voluntary imprisonment in the mud cocoon.

A Light Sentence?

A gentleman now living in New York tells the following story of a negro in Tennessee whose son had been convicted of killing a fellow workman. A few days after the trial the father was asked what disposition had been made of the case.

"Oh," he answered, "dey done send Johnson to jail for a mont."

"That's a light sentence for killing a man, don't you think?"

"Yes," answered the darky, "but at de end of de mont dey done goin' to hang 'im."—New York Times.

HEAD OF SHIP COMBINE.

C. A. Griscom, Who Has Long Been a Power In Maritime Affairs.

Clement A. Griscom of Philadelphia, who has just been elected president of the new shipping combine, has for many years been president of the International Navigation company, which is the center of the new combination recently organized by J. Pierpont Morgan.

The name of the new combination is the International Mercantile Marine company, and it has a capital of $120,000,000. The stock will not be quoted in open market, it is said. It has been subscribed and paid for by those interested in the combination.

Clement A. Griscom, the head of the new company, is a native of Philadelphia and is now in his sixty-second year. As a boy he entered the employ of the shipping firm of Peter Wright & Co. in 1857. He studied marine architecture and became so useful to his employers that in 1863 he was made a member of the firm.

He is the founder of the International Navigation company, which owns and operates twenty-six transatlantic steamship lines. As president of this line he bought the Inman line, changing it to the American line. This company also owns practically all the stock of the Red Star line, a Belgian corporation; also the International Navigation company, limited, of Liverpool, and of the Empire Transportation company of Seattle.

Mr. Griscom was the first president of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers and has since been re-elected each year. When the foreign built ships New York and Paris were added to the American line fleet, Mr. Griscom was instrumental in securing special congressional legislation permitting those ships to sail under American register.

Mr. Griscom has been specially honored and decorated by foreign governments, belongs to the principal clubs and commercial organizations and is at the head of leading banks, insurance companies and great industrial corporations.

He was married in 1862 to Miss Frances Canby Biddle. His home is at Haverford, Pa.

Hope For the Future.

"Come, come!" cried the candidate's friend, "don't be disheartened so easily."

"But I'm sure to be beaten," replied the candidate dismally.

The retirement from the diplomatic service of Charles S. Francis as minister to Greece has afforded President Roosevelt an opportunity to exemplify the principles of the merit system in the federal service, for which he has stood consistently and tenaciously during his entire public carreer. He has taken advantage of the opportunity in a way that is highly gratifying to civil service reformers and to those who long ago appreciated the fact that it is only through the merit system that our diplomatic and consular service can be raised to the standards maintained by European nations.

England's task in the reconstruction of South Africa is hard enough under the best of conditions, but some of the continental European papers are endeavoring to throw additional obstacles in the way of the reorganizers by telling the Boers to demand more favorable terms than were agreed to in the peace treaty. The war is over and the Boers know it, if their fool friends do not.

Attorney General Knox is one of the ablest lawyers in the country. His views on restraining the powers of trusts are thoroughly practical. He has pointed out the way to secure relief from existing abuses. There is more sound sense in one paragraph of his recent Pittsburg speech than in all the tirades against corporations that all the Democratic orators have ever uttered.

Fire losses in the country generally have been far less than usual during the past year. Builders have learned that cheap structures are often most costly. In erecting the modern business block or sky-scraper it is sought to make it as nearly fire proof as possible. The result is beginning to tell.

The Republican who abandons his party principles long enough to give a complimentary vote to a Democrat has strange notions of loyalty. Lending aid and comfort to the enemy is just as rash and unwarrantable in political warfare as in warfare of the sterner sort.

Probably the Pennsylvania soldiers will be just as glad to be sent home as the people of the mining region will be to see them depart.

It is time for action in the direction of arousing interest in the coming election and arranging to get the vote out. Is the Republican city executive committee doing all it ought and should along that line? Now is the time that effort will count.

Santos-Dumont proposes, if a $200,000 prize is put up, to try to travel from Paris to San Francisco by airship. Somebody may call his bluff, then what will the poor hot air operator do?

Neither Tom Johnson nor his newspaper organs are able to acquit the Cleveland mayor of the charge of tax-dodging. The great Democratic apostle of tax reform stands convicted.

Grover Cleveland has not abandoned hope for the Democracy, but he fails to furnish an accurate diagram of the base on which he erects the statue of the gentle goddess.

George F. Baer has been reelected president of the Reading railroad. Had it been a political office for which he was running all his money would not have saved him.

More atrocities by Turks against Christians are reported. The sooner the so-called Turkish government is obliterated the better for Christianity and cilvilization.

The eclipse of the moon was a very complete affair, but nothing to equal the eclipse the Democratic party will suffer November 4.

Tom Johnson's red automobile now has a breakdown every day. Its owner appears also headed for a political smash.

There is but one issue. That one is: "Shall prosperity continue?"

LEARNING A LANGUAGE.

It Is Comparatively Easy to Acquire a Working Vocabulary.

"It doesn't require any great length of time to learn a language if one has patience," said a man who has mastered several languages, "and when I hear a man regret that he is not able to speak French or German or Spanish or some other language unknown to him I cannot conceal my amusement. In nine cases out of ten I might say that the men who express a regret of this sort handle English very poorly if that happens to be their language.

"The chances are that their vocabularies are extremely limited, and it would probably surprise them to know that despite the advantages of birth and education they could not command more than 600 or 700 words in English if their lives depended upon it. Yet they are able to carry on intelligent conversation, and many of them may become forcible and even axiomatic in their savings, and they plunge into discussions of literature, art, music and other subjects of such fine elegance and do it rather successfully too.

"Now, how long ought it to take for a man to learn 600 or 700 or even 1,000 words in any lauguage? Certainly it ought not to take any great length of time, and from my own experience I know that it does not. Of course I am not speaking now of mastering so that one can get the full benefit of all the refinements of speech in a particular tongue.

"But I have in mind the idea of speaking intelligibly in a given language, and being able to understand perfectly what is said in return. I have a system which I have worked out, and it has been of vast benefit to me and has enabled me to learn a number of languages. It occurred to me while I was in Mexico a few years ago on important business.

"I could not speak a word of Spanish and could not understand the language. I concluded that I would learn the language. My plan was simply this: I made up my mind that I would not retire at the close of any day as long as I was there without learning at least three words in Spanish, how to pronounce them and what they meant. That would give me ninety words per month, or something over 1,000 in a year's time."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

IN MANDALAY.

Thousands of Pagoda Bells Ring at the Setting of the Sun.

Mandalay has its own sky, soft and gray and incurving like a tent, with white cloud lines that seem meant for scrolls if one could read. It is the Very Sacred City, the city of contemplation, the city of all the monks. A thousand pagoda bells give tongue to the wind there when the sun goes down; a crumbling thousand more give up to time the testimony of outworn things.

It lies in a curved arm of blue hills, and something broods over it with solicitude. This you suspect from the air of the place and the way the shrill talk of the parrots and the complaint of the goats and the laughter of the people come to you wherever you are sitting. Afterward you go out, as I did that morning with the commissioner, and see under the very zenith, where the low gray sky is caught up, the square of the dark red crenellated walls of the old royal city, three miles each way, and outside the walls the parallel clear moat thinking back at the sky, and then you are sure that over and above the government of India some spirit is in possession here, some spirit that bends in affection over finished and forgotten things.

Seven roofed kiosks stand at intervals over the gates in the wall—they are called pyathat, but they strike the eye like peaceful conclusions—and low white stone bridges raised in the middle span the moat. The buttresses of the gates are painted deep gray and white, and the bank that slants steeply from the wall to the water has here and there a low, twisted, spreading tree on it, purely for decoration. You may stop at a corner and look two ways along the reflecting water, with bridge after bridge receding across, and pyathat after pyathat diminishing above, and each red and gray and white vista so picked out and finished under the quiet light slipping adorably into the near blue of the hills.

Mandalay seemed aware with bunting that day, flags and arches of welcome everywhere and crowds flocking—aware and almost awake—but you looked again and saw that she only turned in her sleep and smiled, as at a dream.—Exchange.

WELLSVILLE

In All Its Features Was the Dance Given By Local 55, N. B. of O. P.

A dance, which for attendance far surpassed any that has been held in this city for a number of years, was held last evening in the city building by the young ladies of local union No. 55, N. B. of O. P. Shenkel's orchestra, of East Liverpool, furnished the music and rendered several new walzes and other selections which were greatly appreciated. Light refreshments were served late in the evening and added much to the success of the occasion.

Fully 250 couples were present. The hall was so crowded that good dancing became difficult. A goodly share of those present were from East Liverpool, while there were also a few present from Toronto, Salineville and New Cumberland. The dance was so successful, financially speaking, that the girls have about decided to hold another one in a month or so.

Plans for New Building.

The improvement committee was given power to act. Plans will be drawn up at once by City Civil Engineer Leith and the committee will advertise for bids within a few days. The new machines have been left out of doors and have been damaged somewhat as a result.

Charged With Robbing a Till.

Jacob Nagle, a lower Main street grocer was robbed of nearly $5 in cash Wednesday evening. It is charged that Merritt Jacobs, of the West End, went behind the counter and opened the till and immediately began to rid the drawer of its contents of about $10 or $12. He had succeeded in getting about $4.50 when Mrs. Nagle came suddenly into the room and started after the young man. He escaped and a warrant is out for him.

Some new Monte Carlo coats came in and they are the "prettiest ever." We advise any lady who wishes a very stylish, exclusive garment at a moderate price to come in and see them. The Leader, Washington street.

A Useful Rhyme.

If poisoned, take mustard or salt, tablespoon,
In a cup of warm water and swallow right soon.
For burns try borax and a wet bandage, too;
If blistered, then oil and dry flannel will do.
For children's convulsions warm baths are the rule;
With castor oil dose, too, but keep the head cool.
Give sirup of ipecac when croup is in store;
For fainting stretch patient right out on the floor.
To soak in hot water is best for a sprain;
Remember these rules, and 'twill save you much pain.

"That," answers the thoughtful wife, "is the new health food."

"It ought to be healthy," declares the husband. "I'll bet no germ of any sense would try to live on it!"—Baltimore American.

COUNCIL MEETING

LIGHTS FURNISHED THE TOWN MUCH CRITICISED.

Attorney Ingram Objects to Ten Councilmen for Chester—Other Discussions.

At the meeting of Chester council last night all the members were present. Mayor Shrader reported that the railroad company wished to have another day set for a meeting with the street committee in regard to the First street grade crossing. The matter will receive attention the latter part of next week.

The light committee's report indicated that it was disgusted with some of the lights. Mr. Johnston stated that he was not in favor of paying for lights that did not give light. Riley and Wetzel also criticised the lights.

General business was then taken up and a bill of Street Commissioner Severs was read. The total was $336.96, and it was ordered paid.

Mr. Goppert, of lower Chester, was present and asked council to look after a road leading to his mother's house. Some discussion arose as to whether the council had any jurisdiction over the road. Mr. Johnston thought it had been annuled. Mr. Riley thought it still public. The matter was finally left for the street committee to look into.

Attorney G. D. Ingram was present and in an eloquent little speech opposed the action taken by the council at the last meeting in the matter of having five wards and ten councilmen. He said in part:

"I oppose it as a citizen and doubt its legality. I regard so many councilmen as dangerous to the welfare and best interests of the town. I am sure it will be difficult to get ten men in this town who are competent and interested in the best welfare of the town of Chester.

"You know that men who have large interests here and men seeking office can far more easily direct the action of 10 councilmen than five. I do not refer to any individual, but to all. I ask your honorable body to give this matter careful thought, and after due consideration I hope you will vote to reconsider this action."

The subject was then discussed by all members of council, but no action taken.

E. S. Good notified council to keep the surface water off his property. His request caused some sharp discussion.

SUPPOSED SHOOTERS

Arrested By Chester Officers—One Demands Requisition Papers Before Leaving Ohio.

"Slim" Storm and William Scott, colored men supposed to be implicated in the shooting on a Chester street car, were arrested in East Liverpool yesterday by Chief Allison, of Chester. Storm refused to go without requisition papers. Scott went and before 'Squire Johnston was acquitted on giving bond to appear as a witness. Slim is locked up and requisition papers will be secured.

A. R. Campbell, of Wheeling, and others have organized a stock company to build a preserve factory at Kenilworth, this county. Captain John Porter will give three cars of brick to the enterprise, which will be located on his land. The charter has been obtained and is on record in this county. Ten per cent of the stock has been paid in. Something like a thousand dollars' worth of stock has been taken by New Cumberland people and more will be taken.

Will Go to Louisiana.

Rev. J. D. Donehoo and son James have been the guests of Senator Donehoo and family at New Cumberland for the past week. Rev. Mr. Donehoo will shortly go to Monroe, La., where he will have charge of the finest parish in the state. He has been located at Marshall, Mo., for the past ten years.

ANGRY MAN'S CRIMES.

WIFE SUED HIM FOR DIVORCE.

Read Papers Filed Then Went to His Father-In-Law's and Shot Wife's Father and Mother—Then Hurried Home, Killed Child and Shot Self.

Mt. Pleasant, Mich., Oct. 17.—Archie Woodin, in a fit of jealous rage, yesterday, killed his father-in-law and mother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gulick; his own 1-year-old child, and attempted to kill himself.

Woodin's wife had left him and sued for divorce. After seeing the papers filed in the suit, he went to his father-in-law's home and killed his wife's parents; then he went to his own home and killed his child. Then he wounded himself, but not fatally. His wife was working at a neighbor's.

GOVERNOR LIKELY TO APPOINT.

Claimed He Will Name Safety Boards For Many Ohio Cities, if Provision Is Adopted.

Columbus, O., Oct. 17.—At the meeting yesterday afternoon of the conference committee having in charge the municipal code, the amendment adopted Wednesday placing the appointment of the members of the board of public safety in the hands of the commissioners of the sinking fund was stricken from the bill and in its stead was inserted a provision that this board, to consist of two or four members, as council may determine, is to be appointed by the mayor and confirmed by a vote of two-thirds of all members elected to the council. If council fails to confirm within 30 days after the nominations are made the governor is to appoint.

This provision, it is claimed, practically provides that almost every city in the state, more especially those with Democratic mayors, are to have boards of public safety appointed by the governor. In few, if any, of the municipalities of the state will either party have two-thirds of the council, and all that will be necessary in Democratic cities to insure the appointment of the fire and police boards by the governor, will be for the Republican members of the council to vote against confirmations of the appointments made by the mayors.

The sections relating to the city councils were redrafted and provision made for rotation in office of councilmen.

UNION PARTY TURNED DOWN.

Dauphin, Pa., Judge Decides All Nominations Illegal.

The nominees of the Pattison faction were Robert E. Pattison, of Philadelphia, for governor; George W. Guthrie, of Pittsburg, for lieutenant governor, and Lewis Emery, Jr., of Bradford, for secretary of internal affairs.

The candidates of the Pennypacker faction were Samuel W. Pennypacker, of Philadelphia, for governor; William M. Brown, of Lawrence, for lieutenant governor, and Isaac B. Brown, of Erie, for secretary of internal affairs.

TO SUPREME COURT

Controversy About Corner Stone Laying Will Be Taken There Soon.

Bellaire, October 17.—That Bellaire cornerstone matter, it seems, is not to end in the Belmont county common pleas court. It will be readily recalled that at the time arrangements were being made to lay the stone upon which was cut a sertain inscription, Judge Hollingsworth issued what was supposed to be a temporary restraining order to to prevent its being laid until such time as all the facts in the case could be laid before the court. The actual laying of the forbidden stone and the subsequent contempt cases are of too recent occurrence to require re-publication.

As matters have stood since the contempt cases were dismissed, those who were opposed to the laying of the stone seems to have been defeated without an opinion as to the merits of the case ever having been rendered. In order to have this opinion, it has been decided to take the case to the highest court in the state.

The motion which involves making permanent the temporary restraining order issued by Judge Hollingsworth will come up for argument at an early date. The case will then be taken to the circuit court and from there to the supreme court.

The national organization of the Knights of St. John are behind the movement to have the highest tribunal in the state to pass upon the matter. Supreme President O'Connor, of Buffalo, was in St. Clairsville, Tuesday, in consultation with Attorneys Nary and Rees who have had charge of the case and who will follow it up.

EDUCATIONAL WORK

And Temperance Discussed By Synod —Beal And Anti-Canteen Laws Endorsed.

The Ohio Presbyterian Synod at Steubenville yesterday took up the theme of aid for schools and colleges. The annual report for Wooster university was read and an able address was made by President Holton in behalf of this famous Presbyterian college. In the report of the trustees they make the statement that as soon as possible they will begin a campaign for $500,000 endowment, and that owing to concentration upon rebuilding of the university, the annual deficit still remains a debt upon the nistitution to the extent of $16,881.65. Upon the completion of the new buildings there will be eleven buildings devoted to college and preparatory work.

These buildings, with the campus, comprising 30 acres, valued at $30,000, make up the real estate owned by the University of Wooster. With over a half million invested in this educational plant and $142,000 invested endowment, the college will begin the year 1903, under favorable auspices.

Rev. Trumbull Lee read a resolution to increase the gift of the synod last year from $1,500 for the aid of colleges to $2,500. This created a hot discussion from the friends of Wooster and it was modified to extend general aid to other colleges without pledging the synod to a special amount.

The report of the committee on temperance and Sabbath observance was as follows: "We rejoice in the passage of the Beal law and all members are asked to co-operate to have it apply to other towns. We emphatically approve of the anti-canteen law and disapprove of attempts to interfere with its effective operation."

The work of the Anti-Saloon League was indorsed. Delegates to the Anti-Saloon League convention at Washington, D. C., are F. A. Wilbur, of Zanesville; Rev. W. F. McCauley, of Youngstown; Rev. James T. Black, of Dayton.

Rev. E. Layort, D. D., addressed the synod in the interest of the American Bible Society.

The Ultimate End of the Watch.

A prominent watch manufacturer is said to be continually deluged with questions as to where all the watches go. This country takes them at the rate of 8,000 a day, and this rate is kept up year in and year out, added to by countless importations.

"I never was able to answer the question," said the manufacturer. "Nobody in the trade ever tries to. We find that the life of a watch is but five years, yet if you will stop fifty men and ask how long they have carried their watches forty-nine of them will say they have only had one watch in their entire lives.

"We cannot explain the disappearance of watches. They do not go into the ash bins. I remember when the New Jersey watch factories closed that in ten years we could not find one of their watches anywhere. They had disappeared off the face of the earth, yet millions had been made. Look at the key watches. Up to some twenty years ago we made nothing else. In that twenty years these millions and millions of key winding watches have disappeared, and the question asked unremittingly, 'What becomes of the watches?' remains unanswered to this day."—Jewelers' Circular-Weekly.

Fine Flour and Teeth.

Why do colored people as a rule have such splendid teeth? Mostly because they have lived on coarse food, which made demands on the teeth. People as a rule now do not want to do any chewing. They demand meat which is so tender that it will melt in the mouth, etc. Nature, prodigal as she is, never bestows anything where it is not used, and the result is that the civilized races are losing their teeth. If the style continues to forbid our teeth to do any grinding, our progeny of, say, 2902 A. D. will be born toothless or with only rudimentary teeth. As indivjduals we cannot grow good teeth in our heads by eating coarse food. We are beginning to get bad teeth by heredity. But there is almost no tooth or bone forming material in fine white flour, and the avoidance of coarse foods undoubtedly hastens the decaying of our teeth. Perhaps the millers and the dentists are in a secret league to work for mutual interests. Who knows?

PERPETUAL FRANCHISE

Tom Johnson the Only Ohio Man With Any.

The Sweeping Bill the State Senate Rejected For Him — The Cleveland Perpetual Franchise He Signed For Standard Oil.

The first perpetual franchise granted by any city in this state, so far as is known, is that secured and signed for the Standard Oil company by Mayor Johnson of Cleveland, for piping natural gas into that city.

The only act ever submitted in the Ohio legislature for a perpetual municipal franchise was Senate Bill No. 34, with the amendment to it made personally by Tom L. Johnson to give all electric railroads a franchise without limit of time; with no protection to the people in the way of revenue; without anything said about any revision, either periodical or otherwise, and without a word about the referendum. It did provide for giving the electric railroads a right refused them now, that of eminent domain so as to condemn even public highways, and took away from the people their present right to petition for or against electric roads by the frontage of their properties. The Republicans rejected this in the senate.

Mayor Johnson of Cleveland and Tom L. Johnson, the party responsible for this bill, are one and the same, and it is the identical Johnson who is now parading up and down the state talking against "perpetual franchises," and although a tax dodger, talking about "fair taxation." He is the same advocate of "home rule," who goes into Democratic counties and dictates to the local Democrats those on their tickets whom they shall support, and those whom they shall bolt.

This, too, is the same Johnson who talks about 3-cent railroad fare and makes that an issue in state politics in contradiction of his own conduct in Detroit. The full history of that has just come to light in a recent issue of the Street Railway Review, saying that it was Johnson, as principal owner of the Detroit Citizens' railway lines, who fought Mayor Pingree's attempt to introduce 3-cent fares in that city, and carried the case through the city court, the United States district court and circuit court, and the supreme court of the United States. Johnson, it will be observed by this, in going into the United States court by injunction to keep Cuyanoga county out of collecting half a million dollars in back taxes from him, is experienced in his use of the federal courts to keep the people out of what they believe to be their just dues.

FARMERS AND SINGLE TAX.

How Johnsonism In Ohio Would Hit Them Hardest.

In one of his recent circus speeches Tom Johnson attempted to play the farmers for suckers. He told them they should support the single tax proposition, because the burden of taxation would fall upon the valuable land embraced in the cities. Mr. Johnson is either very ignorant of the facts or he was deliberately attempting deceit.

In 1890, the valuations of the two classes of land property were officially returned as follows:

Value of lands in cities, villages and hamlets..$371,050,158

And in Seneca county where Johnson made this assertion, the valuations are:

Value of farm lands.....$8,621,846
Value of land in cities, villages and hamlets ...$2,253,874

It is clear then, that a tax on land values would fall most heavily upon the farmers. And the latter must not forget this additional fact—that the single tax theory contemplates virtual confiscation of all lands by imposing an annual tax equal to the full rental value of the land. The farmer might hold the empty title to his land; but the government, under the single tax, would take from him all the land would bring. He would simply be a rent-paying tenant, in effect, while the costly buildings in cities, the stocks and bonds and bank credits of the wealthy man would pay no tax whatever. The single tax is so called because it contemplates but one single kind of taxation, that on land values and proposes to tax no other form of property whatever.—Toledo Blade.

More Democratic Evidence.

The Brooklyn Eagle, a Democratic paper, has this to say of Tom Johnson, at one time of Brooklyn, but now of Cleveland: "Candor compels the admission that Johnson will not do. He was largely interested in Brooklyn railroads, but never at any time did he have a word to say about three-cent fares. So long as Mr. Johnson does not own the ox, he is more than willing to have it impaled. It is conceivable that he would favor a one-cent fare, always providing that this fare was not collected in his cars or upon lines in which he had a financial interest. There is no scarcity of humbugs, and among them is the man who would prescribe for others that which he himself would repel if asked to take it, as though it were a pestilence. So Mr. Johnson will not do."

Balzac and Black Coffee.

Balzac was addicted to the use of strong black coffee and depended upon it as a nervous stimulant during the hours which he devoted to composition. Its effect he has himself described in these words:

"The coffee falls into your stomach. Immediately everything starts into action. Your ideas begin to move like Grand Army battalions on the battlefield, and the battle opens. Memories arrive at a run, standards flying; the light cavalry of comparisons breaks into a magnificent gallop; the artillery of logic dashes up and unlimbers; thoughts come rushing up as sharpshooters; characters spring up on all sides; the paper becomes covered with ink, for the struggle has begun and ends in torrents of black water like the battle in black powder."

That Number 13.

So prevalent is the prejudice against the number 13 that car companies in many cities have been obliged to omit it, as the car bearing it did not "earn its living." In St. Joseph, Mo., No. 13 happened to be the car oftenest run over a certain line in a locality chiefly inhabited by negroes. It was discovered after a time that these would walk blocks out of their way to take the cars of a rival line, but as soon as No. 14 was sent down in their district the company's receipts resumed their previous figure. Thirteen as a house number also is looked upon with suspicion, and the expedient of 11, $11\frac{1}{2}$ and then 15 is often employed.—New York Tribune.

One of the Great Dinners of Venice.

Perhaps the most expensive banquet ever given in Venice was that to Henry III. of France. He was feasted in the great hall of the doges' palace, and there were silver plates for 3,000 guests. At another time the same monarch was entertained at a sugar banquet—the napkins, plates, knives, forks and even the bread (so called) were all of sugar. The Venetians were mightily pleased when Henry took his napkin in his hands and to his surprise found that it broke to pieces. At this feast 1,260 different dishes were served, and 300 sugar effigies were distributed among the ladies.

MINISTER MUST QUIT

Christian Church General Board Asks Rev. Brown, of Denver, to Resign.

SENSATIONALISM IS CHARGED.

Big Temperance Rally Continued—A Speaker Says More Women Like Mrs. Nation Are Needed In Kansas. Welcoming Exercises Were Held.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 17.—Probably 1,500 delegates to the national convention of the Disciples of Christ arrived on early trains yesterday. Chairman Payne, of the general committee, had been notified that the Kansas and Missouri delegations would reach the city 5,000 strong during the day. Several hundred delegates registered during the morning from Illinois, Kansas, Texas, Oregon, Nevada, Colorado, Wyoming, Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska and California.

The big temperance rally planned for at the convention in Minneapolis last year, which began Wednesday night, was continued yesterday under the leadership of W. H. Boles, of Alma., Olls., chairman of the temporary committee of the Christian church. Dr. George F. Hall, of Chicago, delivered an address on the "Irrepressible Conflict." Dr. Hall said the Christian people of the country were in the conflict for prohibition to stay and that they were laying the foundation for a movement that would make an aggressive fight against the liquor traffic for all time to come.

Ohio Man One of the Speakers.

G. L. Wharton, of Hiram college (Ohio), was the next speaker, his address being on "The Liquor Traffic in Foreign Countries." Dr. Homer J. Hall, of Franklin, Ind., then delivered a discourse on "Alcohol and Medical Science."

Dr. D. R. Dungan, ex-president of the Christian university, of Canton, Mo., had for his subject, "What Shall We Do With the Legalized Saloon?" A prohibition song by "The Beveridges" was followed by an address by W. J. L'Hamon, dean of the Bible college, of Columbia, Mo., on "The Triple Appeal to Prohibition." He was received with a round of cheering that indicated his popularity with his denomination.

Dr. L'Hamon's address concluded the morning session.

At 2 o'clock, after a praise service, S. W. Emerson, of Topeka, the Prohibition candidate for governor of that state, spoke on "The Saloon War in Kansas."

The afternoon session was opened with an address by Mr. Emmerson. He described in detail the conditions existing in Kansas and referred to Mrs. Nation's campaign, remarking that the state needed more women like her. A general discussion followed. Other addresses were delivered.

The first session yesterday was devoted to addresses of welcome and responses.

Minister Asked to Resign.

The general board of the church announced that Rev. Brice Brown, pastor of the Central Christian church of Denver, has been asked to resign on the ground of "sensationalism," confirming action by the local church board of elders. It was stated in connection with the announcement that Mr. Brown has invited to his pulpit laymen to discuss labor and other questions, and that at one time he permitted an avowed enemy of the Christian church o speak from his pulpit, in order that he might combat the man's views in a formal answer.

$800,000 FOR MISSIONS.

American Board Decides This Should Be Minimum Raised Next Year.

Oberlin, O., Oct. 17.—The session yesterday morning of the ninety-third annual meeting of the American board congregational missions was devoted chiefly to reports from committees on the missions and addressed by missionaries. President Albert T. Perry, D. D., Marietta, presented a report on missions in charge of Secretary Barton, and Dean Frank K. Sanders, D. D., New Haven, Conn. made the report on the missions superintended by Secretary Smith.

The report of the committee on home department was presented by the Rev. Willard B. Throp, of Chicago. He advocated the raising of $800,000 next year as a minimum sum, and this proposition was heartily received. The missionary addresses were by Rev. John Howland, Mexico; Rev. C. N. Ransom, South Africa; President C. F. Gates, Harpoot, Turkey, and Rev. George A. Wilder, Mt. Silania Africa.

NARROW ESCAPE FOR THE VICTIM

GOOSE PASTURERS CHASED YOUNG MAN.

The Jokers Were Far More Frightened Than He, Fearing the Man Had Been Killed.

Pennsylvania avenue was the scene of another goose pasture last evening, and the victim narrowly escaped serious if not fatal injuries. He was one of the easiest marks yet taken into the net and the gang that played the game had no end of enjoyment up to the time that he gave evidence of being actually hurt.

Having just recently arrived in the city he was not acquainted with the avenue, and as a result when he started on his mad run for safety he jumped from the frying pan into the fire. The name of the fellow could not be learned, but it is said that he is an amateur elocutionist and hails from the Long Reach settlement.

As usual three young fellows were stationed a short distance above Fisher's bakery and when the victim, accompanied by several youngsters who had promised to make him acquainted with some of East Liverpool's fairest, arrived at the designated spot, they fired a number of pistol shots and burst forth with shouts of "Hold up your hands." One of his companions starting on a run, the victim also took to his heels, and up the avenue he bounded like a frightened hare. The supposed robbers gave chase and when they saw th emark go stumbling into a pile of rocks at the brink of the hill and heard him yell in despair as if he had started over the precipice, matters changed considerably.

Fearing that the worst had been realized they speedily ran to the spot whence the cries came and were joyfully surprised when they found him lying uninjured and only badly scared. He took the joke good naturedly and had the laugh on the gang as they were perhaps more frightened than he.

Another case occurring at about the same time has been reported from Smoky Row. In this one the gang was interrupted by the appearance of Officers McDermott and Saulsberry on the scene. The officers chased the entire bunch up past Thompson's pottery and had they captured them all would have been placed under arrest. There is no doubt that unless radical steps are taken by the police force to stop this work of the two well organized gangs there will be a fatality to report one of these days.

OBSTRUCTIONISTS.

Democrats Endeavor to Defeat Anti-Trust Laws.

OPPOSED THEM AT ENACTMENT.

Have Since Thwarted Attempts to Strengthen Statute or Act of Congress or Constitution — Republican Presidents Enforced the Law, Democrats Did Not—Democratic Praise of Sherman Law.

It will not be many weeks until the arraignment in the courts of the beef trust and the Northern Securities company by direction of President Roosevelt to test how far they are amenable to the Sherman anti-trust law will be in the course of actual hearing. The period intervening since the cases were filed has been occupied by the department of justice in gathering and arranging the material for the proper trial of the cases, and it is fair to presume that litigation will be pushed to its conclusion with no more delay than is incident to the process of a suit in court.

We have the assurance of one of the most distinguished attorneys among the Ohio Democrats, given at a great Democratic mass meeting, that this Sherman law is amply adequate to check the onward movement of any illegal combination. This is gratifying indorsement, because the Sherman law from first to last has been purely a Republican measure. It was the first bill introduced into the senate of the Fifty-first congress and its author was Ohio's distinguished statesman, Hon. John Sherman. Thus it was Republican in its birth and has remained Republican ever since. The Republican senate passed it and on May 1, 1890, William McKinley, another of Ohio's great Republican leaders, from the committee on rules reported an order for its immediate consideration. This was stoutly resisted by the Democrats with adverse speeches by all their great leaders in congress. They said that nothing but free trade would touch the trusts, the same song they are still singing. Nevertheless the Republicans went ahead and passed the bill, and the Republican president, Benjamin Harrison, signed it, making it a law July 2, 1890.

Prosecutions under it began at once by direction of President Harrison and later by President McKinley. Upon this point we also have Mr. Clark's assurance at the Tom Johnson meeting in Columbus, that it is a law that proved effective and has been sustained by the United States supreme court in some of its most essential features. The Democratic president, Grover Cleveland, did nothing under the law, but President Roosevelt is testing its efficacy at this time and will give it a thorough trial.

Thus this is a Republican law, has been administered only by Republicans, and none but Republicans have attempted to make it still stronger. The supreme court at one time pointed out a weak place in it and the Republicans in congress have tried to strengthen that place, but have been thwarted thus far by Democratic opposition. To make the position of the government even stronger than a mere statute, the Republicans have tried to secure the enactment of an amendment to the constitution that would shut up the last loophole of escape to the trade combinations, but the Democrats in this, too, have been obstructionists only. This is briefly the record of the two parties in regard to the law that this Democratic orator has so highly and justly commended.

JUDGE BY THE FRUITS.

The Policies and Performances of the Parties Contrasted.

Senator Lodge in his speech to the Massachusetts Republican convention said: Few remember many even of the leading names connected with the last Democratic administration, but nobody forgets that its four years were years of the lean kind, and the thin years of hard times and low wages, of mills closed, of capital alarmed, of reduced employment, of the old story of collapse so true and so often told. And yet the men to whom the policy that wrought this result was due were honest men, and the republic was able to endure their government—for their allotted term. But nor longer.

Then came the policy of the Republican party. Then came McKinley. As if by magic, as if it were a flood of sunshine came the most prosperous years the country has known. They have not put a silver spoon in everybody's mouth, but what an improvement, and who would set it back? That prosperity is the direct result of the policies and principles of the Republican party, and while the republic will survive their suspension, it has learned that they are the very spring of its present industrial and commercial greatness and glory.

Republicans, Democrats and independents alike are concerned in prosperity. It means business, bread-and-butter, work and wages. It will make good living for the poor and luxury for the rich.—Troy Press.

LIKE LAW BREAKING.

Tom Johnson's Haughty Defiance to All to Find His Untaxed Millions. Was He a Citizen of Ohio or New York—Tax Dodging Difficulties.

Was or was not Tom L. Johnson a citizen of Ohio, and even entitled to vote in this state at the time of his being a candidate for mayor of Cleveland? That was in April, 1901. Nov. 8, 1899, in his petition in the United States circuit court to enjoin the treasurer of Cuyahoga county from collecting nearly a half million dollars of delinquency in taxes and the penalties thereupon, claimed from Mr. Johnson, the latter alleged that he had not been served with a legal notice, but that he had received a notice in the city of New York where he was then residing. He made this the basis for a farther claim that County Treasurer Lander, unless restrained, would act illegally by proceeding to collect by distraint, taxes on Johnson's property for the years 1894, '95, '96, '97, '98, '99, and the injunction was asked for on that account.

Mr. Johnson's own sworn statement therefore at the end of 1899, was that he then resided in New York, and not in Ohio. A year later and not quite two years ago Mr. Johnson told a distinguished citizen of Ashtabula county, Hon. Henry Apthorp, in New York city that he lived in that city. Mr. Apthorp said, "I thought you lived in Cleveland?" To this Mr. Johnson replied: "I keep my residence there, but my business interests are here." Then it would seem from the turn of his words that he claimed a sort of technical residence in Cleveland, but he was out of politics at that time and was attending strictly to the street car business on an immense scale in Brooklyn.

If Mr. Johnson in his talk with Mr. Apthorp considered himself technically a citizen of Ohio, what did he mean in his sworn petition to the United States court that he was a resident of New York, and if he was a resident of New York when under oath, what right had he to run for office in Ohio. It will be remembered that the Cleveland Plain Dealer opposed the talk worked up there for Johnson's nomination for mayor openly on the ground that he was a non-resident, and no answer was ever made to this assertion. If he was a non-resident there was not his conduct a violation of the election laws of Ohio? If he was a citizen of Cleveland was not his petition to the federal court a falsehood? And if it was not a falsehood, how can he escape his responsibility for taxation which he sought to dodge through that petition?

One point more about Mr. Johnson's taxes in the very form of his defense. His Brooklyn properties appear to have been sold, realizing several million dollars, and yet the mayor of Cleveland returns for taxes in Cleveland this year under oath only $13,080. Most of this is for the furnishings of Mrs. Johnson's house, for he owns no real estate. Only $3,000 of it is cash in hand, and not a cent of it for stocks or bonds, or for any other form of wealth—nothing for poor Tom to live on.

Worse than that, he defies the people to find his untaxed millions. His closest personal newspaper organ says: "Johnson has repeatedly told the men who have brought the suit that he will pay not only the taxes claimed in full, but will give them half the property if they will find it for him." It seems to think this smart, but it sounds very much like Boss Tweed's defiance of public indignation, when his one answer was to the wrath against the Tammany ring: "What are you going to do about it?"

With a franchise grabber like Tom Johnson making anti-monopoly speeches throughout Ohio it would seem that the acme of demagoguery had been reached.

Congressman Griggs, chairman of the Democratic congressional committee declares that Roosevelt is the strongest speaker for the Democrats in the field. No doubt of it. No doubt of it. He is defending the rights of all the people, and what is good for Republicans and everybody else, is likewise good for Democrats.—St. aMry's Graphic.

Fifty-two per cent of the families of Ohio live in homes owned by themselves. Are the heads of those families willing to vote for a ticket headed by Rev. Herbert Bigelow, who is Johnson's lieutenant in the single tax crusade? Do they feel like supporting men who demand a taxation policy which would virtually confiscate their farms and homes?—Toledo Blade.

Some of the supposedly devoted subjects of the Johnson-Bigelow oligarchy are now in open revolt against the self-appointed leaders who suppose that wealth, cheek and a batch of cranky ideas constitute a combination that the Ohio Democracy can not resist. If to be a present-day Democrat means to wear the Johnsonian tag, we do not wonder that rebellion has begun in dead earnest.—Mt. Vernon Republican.

More than that, it has not been against the government, either in peace or in war. Free trade results in giving our money, our manufactures and our markets to other nations; protection keeps money, markets and manufactures at home.—William McKinley.

The imperialism of Tom L. Johnson is enough to alarm even those who favor the imperialism of expansion. The new Democratic boss brooks no opposition to his will. His word is the supreme law of his organization. He does not concede the right of free thought and free speech. Free moral agency is a thing of the past. Johnson demands to be allowed to do the thinking, speaking and acting for the whole Johnson party. — Zanesville Times-Recorder.

The last Republican legislature cut down the state taxes nearly one-half and doubled the rate on railroads. The Democrats never passed a law to reduce state taxes or to increase the railroad tax rate. Yet Tom Johnson, who refuses to pay his taxes, on his millions, because they were increased by the tax appraisers, is going around the state with a hippodrome, telling the people that the railroads don't pay their proportion of taxes, and is thus seeking to make it appear that he and the Democratic party are in favor of lower tax rates on the people and higher rates for the millionaires and monopolies. The gall of the man is amazing.—Bellefontaine Republican.

Gained Thirty Pounds in Thirty Days.

For several months our younger brother had been troubled with indigestion. He tried several remedies but got no benefit from them. We purchased some of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and he commenced taking them. Inside of thirty days he had gained forty pounds in flesh. He is now fully recovered. Think What It Means

TO THE THOUSANDS SUFFERING FROM

Dispensia, Liver and Kidney Troubles, Impoverished Blood and General Exhaustion.

During the last year thousands of Americans have flocked to Germany, to avail themselves of the wonderful curative powers of the famed

TRAUBENKUR OR GRAPE CURE

The fame of these cures for such diseases is world-wide and the astonishing results have been recognized by physicians the world over. There can be no doubt or no quibbling. The grape cures have restored health to many thousands of Americans. Their absolute worth is no longer questioned, but only a few can afford the time and expense of a visit to the Traubenkur. It has remained for an American Chemical Co., the Lightning Medicine Co., of Rock Island, to combine all the best elements of the Traubenkur in and it has now been placed on general sale throughout America in drug stores at only 50 cents per bottle, so the suffering of all classes have the full benefit of these great curative agents.

Think what it mens to you if you are suffering from any of these troubles. It is the most important development in a medical way in America for a decade.

WORTH ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.

LOUIS BONHART of Lawrence, Neb., says: "I have been afflicted with stomach trouble for the past three years. At times it grew so severe and annoying that I was compelled to quit work for two or three days each week, when the pains in my stomach were beyond endurance. I took but three bottles and am today perfectly well. I used nothing else but Mull's Grape Tonic. To me it is more than worth its weight in gold."

If you are suffering from dyspepsia, constipation, liver or kidney trouble, or nervous exhaustion you owe it to yourself to give Mull's Grape Tonic a trial. The cost is small, and you will be astounded and gratified at the results. Our faith in it is so absolute that those who buy it and get no benefit may have their money back.

If used with a little chopped ice it will be found a delicious drink.

MITCHELL ACCEPTED.

Sent a Message to the President Agreeing to the Arbitration Board.

MINERS TO MEET MONDAY.

They Will Then Vote Upon Time to Return to Work—General Resumption Likely by Thursday—Operators Getting Ready.

WILKESBARRE, PA., OCT. 17.—PRESIDENT MITCHELL HAS NOTIFIED PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT OF THE ACTION OF THE THREE EXECUTIVE BOARDS. HE WILL NOT GIVE OUT THE TEXT OF THE MESSAGE.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 17.—The executive board of the three anthracite districts of the United Mine Workers of America, in joint session yesterday, unanimously decided to recommend to a delegate convention of striking miners the acceptance of the arbitration proposition submitted by the president of the United States, and it is reasonably certain that the advice will be followed and the great struggle brought to a close. The convention will be convened in this city next Monday morning, and it is the hope and the belief of the officers of the union that the mining of coal will be resumed before the close of next week, after a suspension of more than five months.

Miners Not Rejoicing Yet.

While the great "third party" is satisfied with the promise of an early coal supply, it cannot be truly said there is great rejoicing among the striking mine workers at this time over the result. They admit the near ending of the long idleness is extremely satisfactory to them and that they have won a great victory in gaining arbitration, but they feel that the real reward in putting up such a stubborn struggle is still to come in the award of the arbitration commission. The citizens of the entire region, however, are much elated that the strife is almost over, because business in the coal fields has been practically paralyzed since the strike began.

From the time the news was received, late Wednesday night, until about 10 o'clock yesterday morning, there was some doubt as to how the miners would receive the modified plan. President Mitchell was asked to make some expression on the proposition, but he steadfastly refused. He was pressed by the correspondents for a statement, and finally at 10 o'clock he cleared up the situation by issuing the following bulletin.

Statement Issued by Mitchell.

"Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 16, 1902.

"Appreciating the anxiety and impatience of the public and the mine workers for some authoritative statement from this office, I issue this bulletin to say that I was unalterably opposed to the acceptance of or acquiescence in the form of settlement proposed by the coal operators, because it restricted the president of the United States in selecting the men who were to determine the questions involved in the strike.

"These restrictions having been removed and a representative given to organized labor, as well as to organized capital, I am now prepared to give my personal approval to a settlement of the issues involved in this strike by the commission selected by the president; and shall recommend to the executive officers of Districts 1, 7 and 9, in their meeting today, that an immediate call be issued for a convention, whose authorization is necessary to declare the strike at an end.

"In the meantime I trust that the people of our country will be as patient as possible, as we are moving as rapidly as the interests of our people will permit.

JOHN MITCHELL,
"President United Mine Workers of America."

When this was read to the arriving district leaders and groups of miners who came to headquarters to learn the news, general satisfaction was expressed that Mr. Mitchell was willing to accept the modified plan, and from that time on there was no doubt that the strike would be brought to a speedy close. It was not until 2 o'clock that the 37 members of the three district boards were called into session, which lasted 2 hours and 15 minutes. There was some opposition manifested in the meeting against certain features of the plan, but after a full discussion of the objectionable parts a unanimous vote was taken to recommend to the convention on the acceptance of the proposition. As the conference was held behind closed doors and a bond of secrecy was placed on every man present, the specific objections were not officially announced. These are the same executive boards which, on May 8 last, ordered the strike to begin, which action was approved, in the face of Mr. Mitchell's opposition, by the Hazleton convention a few days later. It is expected that some objection will be raised on the floor of the convention but the officers of the union are confident that opposition will disappear when President Mitchell explains all the features of the modified proposition to the delegates.

A question was raised yesterday as to whether Commissioner Wright, who will be the recorder of the commission, shall have the right to vote in case the six other members of the board are equally divided on any question in connection with a settlement. Mr. Mitchell, when asked, did not appear to be sure that he had not, and other officials of the union were also uncertain of Mr. Wright's status. The matter of the term of years that the agreement shall be in force was also a source of much inquiry. The union was strongly opposed to the operators fixing the term of years. One district president said this feature had been left to the discretion of the commission, as suggested in Mr. Mitchell's proposition, while other officials did not know anything about it. President Mitchell, for some reason, did not care to discuss any feature of the arbitration agreement while the matter was still in the hands of the miners.

May All Resume by Thursday.

If the plans of the strike leaders are not disarranged a general resumption of mining will take place about next Thursday. It is expected the convention will last two days and that there will be an interval of one day from the time the convention adjourns until the time set for the men to go back to the mines. If the convention should be in session on Wednesday, it is probable that resumption would not take place until Friday. There will not be much work at first for all the strikers, as it is the intention of the companies not to dismiss the non-union men who have stood by them during the strife. The organization will take care of such other men as are unable to immediately find work. It is estimated that all the strikers will not find work until two or three months have elapsed. This is due to the condition of the mines. Some of them are wholly or partially flooded and others need repairs.

GENERAL JAMES H. WILSON.

One of Arbitrators Appointed by the President.

It was a lively day around strike headquarters. From early morning until after the announcement was made that a convention would be called a crowd was congregated at the place. Mr. Mitchell spent an extremely busy day. In the morning he had many callers, who congratulated him, and in the afternoon he was engaged with the three district boards. Telegrams of congratulation from all parts of the country came to the leaders of the miners during the day.

GALLEY TWO—Strike

Companies Prepare to Resume.

The coal companies, anticipating the end of the strike next week, are busily engaged in preparing for resumption. Tens of thousands of coal cars are in the regions ready for loading and extra efforts will be made in moving them to the large distributing centers once mining is resumed. It is estimated that more than 200 of the 300 collieries will be in operation by the end of next week, and will produce enough coal to relieve the situation. An authority in coal mining said yesterday the coal companies, as a result of the strike, are 30,000,000 of tons behind.

There is considerable talk heard that the withdrawal of the troops will begin in a day or two, but this cannot be confirmed. The soldiers are spending their time quietly in the camps. Major General Miller, in command of the entire force in the field, inspected the camp of the Ninth regiment here yesterday and also those of the Eighth, which is divided between Nanticoke and Plymouth.

Official Call For Convention.

Wilkesbarre, Oct. 17.—The following is the official call for the delegate convention of the anthracite districts of the United Mine Workers of America, to be held here next Monday:

"Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 16, 1902.

"To the Officers and Members of all Local Unions in Districts 1, 7 and 9.

"Gentlemen: At a meeting of the executive boards of Districts 1, 7 and 9 it was unanimously agreed to issue a call for a delegate convention and recommend to that convention that all mine workers now on strike return to their former positions and working places, and submit to the commission appointed by the president of the United States all questions at issue between the operators and mine workers of the anthracite coal fields.

"In pursuance whereof you are hereby notified that a convention will be held in the city of Wilkesbarre, Pa., beginning at 10 a. m., Monday, Oct. 20.

"The purpose of the convention will be to act upon the proposition submitted by the president of the United States.

"Local unions will hold meetings not later than Friday night and elect delegates to attend said convention.

Basis of Representation.

"The basis of representation will be one vote for each 100 members or less, and an additional one for each additional 100 members or major fraction thereof. The president and secretary of each local union will fill out one credential and one duplicate credential for each delegate elected. The duplicate credential should be given to the delegate elected and the original should be placed in the hands of the district board members not later than Saturday night. The district board members are instructed to have all credentials in the hands of the credential committee Sunday afternoon.

"It is recommended that delegates be given full power and authority to act in behalf of their local unions.

SOME APPOINTEES ACCEPTED

President Roosevelt Received a Long Telegram From President Mitchell Yesterday.

Washington, Oct. 17.—There was received at the White House last night quite a long telegram from Mr. Mitchell, of the Mine Workers' union, in reply to a message the president had wired him Wednesday, giving the final result of the strike agreement, with certain suggestions from the president, that had been accomplished. It was the president's wish to have a speedy resumption of mining. Mr. Mitchell's response gave what had been done in Wilkesbarre yesterday toward declaring the strike off.

It was not made public last night.

Acceptance of places on the commission have been received from Mr. Parker and some other members of the commission.

OPERATOR IS PLEASED.

Likes President's Appointees—Illinois Man Praises Spalding.

New York, Oct. 17.—During yesterday afternoon Presidents Truesdale, Fowler and Underwood and Chairman Thomas called at Mr. Morgan's office. President Underwood was asked what he thought of the commission appointed Wednesday night by President Roosevelt.

"It is a good commission," he said. "Nobody could have appointed a better one."

Asked if that was the general opinion of the operators, Mr. Underwood replied:

"I don't know. I haven't seen any of the operators since the appointment was made.

The president of a coal road was asked how soon the coal stringency would be relieved by the developments of the last couple of days.

"The stringency is ended now," he said. "You must remember that everybody has been holding up in case of an emergency until certain of a supply from the mines. All this stored coal will now be released and will be brought to New York."

Asked how soon New York might receive this supply, the speaker said:

"In about two weeks, I should say."

Robert C. Grier, secretary of the Peoria (Ills.) board of trade, was seen yesterday afternoon in Wall street. He was asked regarding the appointment of Bishop Spalding as one of the commission to arbitrate the coal difficulties.

"Protestants and Catholics alike," he said, "in the vicinity of Peoria will commend the appointment of Bishop Spalding. No better ecclesiastical selection could have been made. He is a man of great charity and of wide influence throughout the soft coal district, of which Peoria is a center. I saw Bishop Spaulding less than a week ago and he expressed at that time great sympathy with the coal miners."

President Castro's Artillery Reduced From 15 to 4 Guns.

Willemstad, Oct. 17.—The battle near La Victoria, Venezuela, between the army commanded by President Castro and the revolutionary forces, which began Monday morning and resulted in the retirement of President Castro to La Victoria Tuesday afternoon, was resumed again fiercely at 5 o'clock Wednesday morning. At that time the president had over 6,000 men engaged against 7,000 revolutionists.

The artillery played a part never before seen in Venezuela. Shortly before 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon the revolutionists appeared to have gained a slight advantage. The president's artillery, which numbered 15 guns, had been reduced to four guns.

La Victoria was crowded with wounded, and there were no provisions in the town.

Little Creatures About Our Homes

VIII.—House Flies and Other Flies.

OF the diptera, or two winged insects, the common house fly is probably the best known, for it is found wherever man makes his home. This last fact is so well authenticated that were a roving crew of some vessel to find the domestic fly on some newly discovered island in midocean they would be safe in concluding that the island was then inhabited by human beings or that it had been so inhabited at no very distant period. In spite of this fact, but comparatively few persons ever pay any attention to this little domestic pest except to devise some means of ridding themselves of its presence in their homes. If very strong green tea be well sweetened, flies will sip it with avidity, and it is a sure poison to them, but good screens and absolute cleanliness are the surest preventives.

Despite its being seemingly an "unmitigated nuisance," the fly is a very interesting little creature when studied. The body is divided by well marked constrictions into head, thorax and abdomen. The head is large and is supplied with two very large compound eyes, made up of about 8,000 simple eyes, or ocelli. Besides these compound eyes, it has three simple eyes above and between the others. The mouth is only a little tube or proboscis, which is bent backward under the body when not in use. There is a fleshy, tonguelike organ, ending in two soft, flat organs somewhat rough on the under surface, and it is these which tickle the top of a bald head or other exposed spot when the fly licks the surface to obtain the matter thrown out through the pores of the skin. There are also two rather short antennæ, or feelers, three-jointed and having feathery ends. To the thorax are attached the two wings and six slender legs. The wings are transparent and are moved very rapidly in flight, about twice as rapidly as the wings of a bee and forty times as fast as those of the butterfly, or between 300 and 400 times a second. The feet have two claws facing each other, and between these are two soft pads covered with hairlike tubes which secrete a sticky fluid. The claws enable them to hold firmly to rough surfaces, and the sticky secretion to smooth surfaces, though some authors contend that air pressure rather than adhesion is the force that enables the fly to walk back downward on a smooth surface and others that the two forces act together.

The fly, like other insects, does not breathe through the mouth, but through little holes in the surface of the body. These are called spiracles and are so guarded by interlacing fibers that foreign matter cannot enter. The spiracles open into little tubes, which are kept from collapsing by minute spiral springs, and some of them lead to little air sacks or rudimentary lungs, while others ramify and are distributed to all parts of the body, even the membranous wings, where they are easily traced. What we see in the wings, however, are blood vessels, each having a still smaller air tube inside of it, so that the blood is aerated while circulating through the system.

The eggs of the house fly are laid in dung and soon hatch into little maggots, which feed upon the organic matter surrounding them and grow very rapidly. In fact, the entire growth of the insect is made during this stage of its existence. This accounts for the fact that the house flies which we see are nearly all of the same size. Of course we see small flies and large flies, but they are not of the same species.

Flies live on liquid food, which they lap up with the fleshy tongue. They are very fond of sweet things, which, when found in a solid state like sugar, they dissolve with their own saliva and then lap up the sirupy fluid. A few flies manage to get into some place where they survive the rigor of our winters, and it is thought that these are the progenitors of the swarms that annoy us the following summer. It is possible, however, that some of the maggots, or some of the pupæ, live through the winter and assist in the propagation of the species.

The house fly has a body about three-eighths of an inch long. The maggots grow to a little more than that length, and then the soft white skin hardens and changes to a very light brown color. This pupa form lies apparently dormant for a time, but during this period a wonderful change is wrought. The wingless, legless and almost headless maggot has changed to the lively creature we have been endeavoring to describe, and it comes forth from its pupa case full grown and fully matured to sip a few sweets, propagate its species and die.

Flies make their appearance in considerable numbers during July, and by the end of August they have multiplied enormously and are then the pest of the household, especially if the house be located near stables or manure piles.

There is another species closely resembling the common domestic fly. Its proboscis is longer and more slender, and it is not quite so large. It is known as the stable fly. It is a wicked little creature and torments animals most cruelly by its piercing bite, for by the aid of little lancets much finer than a needle point it will penetrate their thick skins and cause a smarting pain. It frequently attacks mankind and will immediately return to the attack when driven away. We seldom see it about our houses except late in summer or early in autumn, when it is most common. Sometimes it is driven into houses for shelter on the approach of foul weather. Like the house fly, it lays its eggs in dung, and the young are hatched there and pass through the same changes from larva, or maggot, to pupa and from pupa to imago, or mature insect.

In all the lower orders of insects we find that the female is careful to deposit her eggs where the young when hatched will be likely to find an abundance of the kind of food they need, and many of the insect larvæ, being flesh eaters, become important to man as scavengers. Among the scavengers of the insect tribes some of the flies rank very high. Linnæus is authority for the statement that the larvæ, or maggots, from three females of the species of flies commonly known as bluebottles will devour the carcass of a horse as quickly as a lion would, and when we consider the fact that the flesh fly, a near relative of the bluebottle, is very prolific, so much so that a single female will produce 20,000 larvæ, each of which will, under favorable circumstances, increase in weight two hundred fold in twenty-four hours, we can easily see how the above statement may be true. Few fully realize how much we owe to insects for devouring decaying animal matter. In this order of insects (diptera) the one most injurious to man from a pecuniary point of view is probably the Hessian fly. This fly, though very small, does an immense amount of damage to the wheat crop of the United States annually, some years destroying many millions of dollars' worth. Nor is this all, for rye and barley are also much injured by it.

The body of this little fly is not more than one-tenth of an inch long, and its abdomen is about two-thirds of that length. The legs and the many jointed feelers, surrounded by whorls of short hairs, are long and slender. The wings are almost without veins. The balancers—two little rods with knobs on the outer ends—situated just back of the wings, are very prominent, considering the size of the insect. In form it resembles the crane fly, which looks so much like a gigantic mosquito. The specific name of the Hessian fly is destructor. It lays about twenty eggs in the crease of the wheat leaf over the midrib when the plant is only a few inches in height. These are hatched in about a week into little footless maggots, which crawl down the leaf into the sheath around the stalk and there live on the juices of the plant. Two or three of these maggots will suck the life out of a wheat plant, and it soon withers and dies. The pupæ resembles flaxseed in form and color. These in some cases are found in the straw, but they are usually left in the stubble. The best known method of destroying this pest is by burning the stubble soon after harvest. The Hessian fly should not be considered identical with the wheat fly, so destructive to that grain in England and at one time in the eastern part of this country. The wheat fly deposits its eggs in the corolla of the wheat flower, and the maggots eat out the heart of the flower and render it abortive. The Hessian fly was first seen in this country in 1776 on Long island and is thought to have been imported in some straw brought over by the Hessian soldiers; hence the name.

There are three species of diptera, closely related and called respectively the botfly, the gadfly and the breeze fly, which demand attention.

The botfly glues its eggs to the hairs on the legs and sides of the horse where they can be reached by the horse's tongue and leaves them to their fate. When about ready to hatch, the licking of the horse breaks the egg, and the little maggot adheres to the tongue and is swallowed with the food passing into the stomach of the horse, where it fastens itself by two little hooks and there remains until full grown. It then releases itself and passes on out of the body and completes its metamorphosis in the ground.

The gadfly pierces the skin of the ox, sometimes of the horse, in several places and deposits an egg in each puncture. When the egg hatches, the irritation caused by the maggot under the skin of the ox causes swelling and the formation of pus, upon which the maggot feeds until ready to enter into the pupa state, then it backs out of the hole which it has kept open for the admission of air and drops to the ground, where it finishes its transformation into a fly.

The breeze fly lays its eggs in the nostrils of the sheep, and the young maggots stay in the sinuses of the sheep's head until full grown and then drop to the ground to complete those mysterious changes that awaken our wonder and admiration. None of these animals is very much injured by the insects.

As there are more than 20,000 species of diptera, or flies, the field is certainly large enough to furnish new and interesting facts to any who care to investigate.

A Plain Statement of a Bad Condition And a Cure That Never Fails.

Mr. Cyrus Hanselman, of No. 279 Sugar street, East Liverpool, Ohio, says: "Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills are a fine medicine. It has done for me more to cure my old rheumatism than anything I ever took. The rheumatism had hung on for five or six years and was all in the legs and shoulders. I could not sleep and at times could not move with pain. I was told of the Nerve Pills and got them at Larkins' Drug Store and they took hold finely, something nothing else ever did—the pain and stiffness is about gone. I am feeling strong and get about and sleep well. It won't take many more to cure me completely."

Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills are sold at 50 cents a box at dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. See that portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M. D., are on every package.

NOTABLE COLLEGE EVENT.

How Princeton Is to Be Honored at Inauguration of Its President.

The inauguration of Dr. Woodrow Wilson as president of Princeton university, which is to take place Oct. 25, will be made notable by the presence of President Roosevelt and ex-President Cleveland. President Roosevelt will be on the platform with ex-President Cleveland, Dr. Patton, the late head of Princeton, and Dr. Wilson. The latter three will make addresses. President Roosevelt may speak, but that has not been definitely fixed.

After the inaugural exercises Dr. Wilson will turn the first soil for a dormitory to be erected by the class of

'79. The members of the class will reserve the first right to the rooms for their sons who will enter Princeton.

Dr. Wilson's election to the presidency of Princeton last June was the surprise of the college commencement season. Up to the time of its occurrence there had been no intimation that Dr. Patton intended to resign.

Dr. Woodrow Wilson is a native of Staunton, Va., where he first saw the light forty-six years ago. He was a member of the famous class of '79 at Princeton. It was only recently that this class did what no other class has done. It presented to the university a dormitory to cost $100,000.

After his graduation Dr. Wilson studied law and for a time practiced at Atlanta, Ga. He then took a postgraduate course at Johns Hopkins university. After leaving Johns Hopkins he became professor of history at Bryn Mawr college, and from 1888 to 1890 he was professor of history and political economy at Wesleyan university. In 1890 he returned to Princeton as professor of politics and jurisprudence, which chair he retained until his election as president.

Dr. Wilson was married in June, 1885, to Miss Ellen Louise Axson. They have three children, all girls.

Knew What to Do With It.

A miserly landlord was going round collecting his rents the other day. At one house he was greatly interested in a little girl who watched, open mouthed and open eyed, the business of paying over the money and accepting the receipt.

He patted her on the head and started out to search his pockets, saying, "I must see what I have got for you." After searching his pockets for some time he at last brought from a remote corner a peppermint. As he handed it to the girl he said, "And now what will you do with that?"

The little girl looked at it, then at him and replied, "Wash it."—London Answers.

OHIO REPORTS GOOD RESULTS.

Republican Rule Results In Reduced Taxation.

OVER $3,000,000 A YEAR SAVED.

More Than Half the State Tax Rate Taken Off the People and Put Upon Corporations Under Laws Resisted by Democrats.

Governor George K. Nash in his speech at Sidney talks entirely about state affairs, making a most complete report of the results of Republican rule. Other parts will be printed later, the present quotation being of the part of the address relating directly to taxation. Governor Nash, upon this point, stated these facts, which are absolutely beyond all controversy:

In the Democratic platform it is asserted that "under the long continued control of the Republican party in this state, monopoly has been fostered and protected, the farmer and the small home owner have been burdened with excessive taxes, that the beneficiaries and favorites of that party might be permitted to escape their just share of the public burdens." As to how much truth there is in this allegation, let us judge by the votes and acts of the Democratic members of the general assembly of Ohio at the session of that general assembly commencing on the first Monday in January of this year and ending on the 12th day of May. A scheme of taxation was devised by the Republican members of that body and put in force by the enactment of various laws by which it was possible to reduce the rate of taxation for state purposes upon the personal property of the citizens of Ohio, and upon the real estate, including the lands of the "farmer and the small home owner," from 28 9-10 cents per $100 to 13½ cents. By this reduction of the state levy the owners of personal property, the owners of real property, of farms and small homes in Ohio, will be relieved during each of the ensuing two years of paying the enormous sum of $3,080,000.

This was made possible, partly by not raising more money than the state actually needed; partly by compelling the insurance companies doing business in Ohio to pay 2½ per cent of their gross receipts into the state treasury; partly by levying upon domestic corporations a tax of one-tenth of 1 per cent upon their issued and outstanding capital stock; partly by levying upon foreign corporations a tax of one-tenth of 1 per cent upon their capital stock employed in doing business in Ohio, and partly by an excise law which will compel, during the next year, electric light companies, artificial gas companies, natural gas companies, street railway companies, waterworks companies, express companies, telephone companies, telegraph companies, sleeping car and freight line companies and railway companies to pay 1 per cent of their gross earnings, which will this year amount to the sum of $1,429,818, to the support of the state government. Every one of these bills was made a law against the solid vote of the Democratic members of the house of representatives except three.

That part of the Democratic platform which I have just quoted is untrue. During the last session of the general assembly the burden of taxatiton upon personal property and real estate, upon the farm and upon the small home, was materially reduced, and the burden was transferred in great part to the corporations of the state and to foreign corporatiotns. All this was done against the protests and the votes of the Democratic members of the general assembly.

I regret to say that all the people of Ohio do not receive the benefit of the reduction made by the state of Ohio, 15 4-10 cents upon the $100, in her rate of taxation. In the city of Cleveland during the ensuing year the rate of taxation per $100 will be $3.05; in the city of Toledo it will be $2.96; in the city of Columbus it will be $2.75, and in the city of Cincinnati it will be $2.31. In Cleveland, where Mayor Tom L. Johnson reigns supreme, the rate of taxation last year was $2.67 upon the $100. Under his management the 15 4-10 cents upon the $100 has been entirely consumed by local taxation and has been increased 38 cents upon the $100. In one year local taxation in Cleveland has been increased 53 4-10 cents upon the $100.

In Toledo the rate of taxation last year was $3.04 on the $100, in Columbus $2.85 and in Cincinnati $2.48. In Toledo, where Samuel M. Jones, a "Simon pure" Democrat of the new school, is mayor, the rate of taxation for local purposes has been increased 7 4-10 cents upon the $100, and all but 8 cents upon the $100 given by the state has been consumed. In Columbus, where J. N. Hinkle, a Democrat, is mayor, local taxation has been increased 5 cents upon the $100, and the people have been deprived of all but 10¼ cents upon the $100 of the benefit conferred upon them by the state. In Cincinnati, where Julius Fleischmann, a Republican, is mayor, surrounded by Republican officials, the people get the benefit of all the reduction made by the state, and in addition thereto the local taxation is shows that Treasurer Lander in the following February (1900) filed his answer, in which he said the property had been placed on the duplicate after a full hearing of Johnson's attorneys. Johnson had been notified, said Lander, but had failed to appear before the auditor and show he did not own the property with which he was charged. Later Johnson's attorneys filed a reply to that answer, purely technical in its character, and there the matter has rested.

Johnson's apologists now claim that it is up to Cuyahoga county to make the next move, but if he has dodged no taxes and has turned in the millions of personal property which he claims to own, instead of concealing it, the way of an honest man, frank and open, would be to go into the matter at once, without any three years' delay or any intervention of attorneys, and show that his hands are clean and without one "damned spot" upon them.

Instead, Johnson practically acknowledges his immense wealth. The amount of it claimed as concealed from taxation was, in 1894, $850,000; 1895, $1,000,000; 1896, $1,200,000; 1897, $1,450,000; 1898, $2,350,000; 1899, $3,054,000. Even on the basis of the railroads, according to Tom's own speeches, this would rate him as worth $15,000,000 in 1899. Since then he is understood to have sold his immense Brooklyn street railroad interests, amounting to many millions, but none of it has ever got upon the Ohio tax duplicate, not one cent.

Three more years are thus to be accounted for. This year, while mayor of Cleveland, he made his tax return under oath, putting in less than $15,000, and only $3,000 of it was in cash, with no stocks or bonds or any of the other things required under the statutes of Ohio, which he, as mayor of its largest city, has taken special oath to maintain and defend. If ever there was a clear case of concealment of property from tax appraisement and payment, here it is. It is the most flagrant tax-dodging that Ohio has known, considering the official position of the offender, and his campaign for "just taxation" addressed to the entire state. No wonder that his followers are worried to death about it and want nothing said about it before the voters.

Johnson's attitude, however, is one of defiance. His closest newspaper organ uses these words: "Johnson has repeatedly told the men who have brought the suit that he will not only pay the taxes claimed in full, but will give them half the property if they will find it for him." He don't deny its existence by this, but simply says that "I have got it hid away so carefully, so completely, that no one can get at it. I have plenty of money for all kinds of purposes, millions of it, but not one cent for just taxation."

WHEN MILLS WERE IDLE.

Shall Over-Confidence Call Those Times Back Again?

In his speech at Steubenville, Senator Hanna, referred to the evidences of tnrift and prosperity wherever he had gone, particularly all through that section, and said:

If there is any danger in this campaign in Ohio or in the United States, it is because the people are too well satisfied with their environment; too apt to be apathetic; too apt to forget their duty. Therefore, I say, if I have any work to do in this campaign, it is not only to admonish the boys to stand pat, but to admonish every Republican who has any interest at stake to realize the responsibility that rests upon him and him only. This responsibility, which so affects our well being, good government and good morals, is a responsibility that can not be divided. Your neighbor's shoulders are not broad enough to help you. Therefore let us at the opening of this campaign realize the responsibility, and yet appreciating the good things that have come to us at the hands of the Republican party and the prosperity which has only just begun, if we are faithful to our trust and which is the price of vigilance and duty, and the continuation of which must be had by the action of the people themselves.

I come only to sound that note of warning to my fellow citizens, to avoid the apathetic conditions that sometimes follow closely after great victories. Don't feel that your victory is done, nor half done, for it is not. The duty you owe to society and your neighbors is just as much a part of politics as the success of the candidates. Aye more. If the principles of your party have brought results satisfactory to the country; if the promises made through all these years have been faithfully kept; is it not enough of an inspiration for every man to take home to his fireside?

Change that house of representatives and give over the control of that body to the Democratic party, and what will follow? I will wait, you will wait, to see the effect of it. Every man who is engaged in any enterprise or business will wait to see how that change will affect his interest, what will be the effect on the money market, and that waiting will slow down the wheels of industry, and the waiting will continue just as long as that house is Democratic. Therefore, people of Ohio, take warning and don't indulge in the fallacy that it would make but little difference to your conditions if that result should follow.

"The Democratic party has neither a man to lead nor a principal to espouse this year."—William C. Whitney, Democratic Secretary of the Navy, 1893-1897.

MEET OF THE W. C. T. U.

THE COMING CONVENTION TO BE HELD IN PORTLAND, ME.

Spread of the Movement Over the World—How Lady Henry Somerset Became Interested—Signed the Pledge With Her Tenants.

Among all the noted temperance advocates and workers for improved social conditions who will meet in Portland, Me., on Oct. 17, at the convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance union none is better known or will be more warmly received than Lady Henry Somerset, president of the British Woman's Temperance association. Lady Somerset comes as a delegate from the English organization, which is the largest in Great Britain.

The Woman's Christian Temperance union originated in the United States twenty-eight years ago. It was the Hillsboro (O.) antisaloon crusade, followed by similar movements in Fredonia, N. Y., and Washington Court House, O., which led to the foundation of the organization at Chautauqua in 1874.

For ten years the organization was confined to this country, and not until 1885 did England follow the example of the American women by establishing a similar society. The British Woman's Temperance association was founded by Mrs. Margaret Bright-Lucas, the sister of John Bright, the great statesman. The movement gained much favor in that country and found many supporters among the ladies of the English aristocracy.

Lady Henry Somerset became so interested in one of the late Frances Willard's books that she began to correspond with the author and soon became one of the most active workers of the young organization. When Mrs. Lucas because of ill health was compelled to resign, Lady Henry Somerset was elected president. She invited Miss Willard to be her guest in England, and during the year the American organizer spent with Lady Somerset the British society was fashioned after the American pattern.

Although the English organization carried on its work with considerable success, the American association took the initiative in every effort to extend the movement beyond the limits of the United States and England. With this object in view the first missionary was sent out, Mrs. Mary Clement Leavitt of Boston, who devoted six years of labor to the interests of the cause. She visited India, Japan, South America and other countries and met with encouraging success.

Thanks to the unceasing efforts of the mother organization, there are at present similar organizations in nearly every country of the world.

The rapid increase of the movement during the first ten years of its existence suggested the idea of uniting the various organizations into a world's union and a convention of delegates representing the branch societies. Again the American women took the initiative and called a world's convention of the Women's Christian Temperance unions, which was held in Boston in 1891. There the world's organization was founded and an agreement reached to hold biennial world's conventions, in which all branches of the organization should be represented by delegates.

Isabel, Lady Mary Somerset, is the eldest daughter of the Earl and Countess of Somers and is fifty-one years old. She was married in 1872 to Lord Henry Somerset and since 1885 has been active in temperance and philanthropic work. She began the crusade against the liquor traffic which has given her worldwide fame by publicly signing the pledge with forty of her tenants in the village of Ledbury.

Her tenants in London, numbering nearly 100,000, next claimed her attention, and by doing mission work in the London slums and giving fetes at Eastnor castle to as many as 10,000 at a time she did a noble work. As editor of the Woman's Signal and leader of the Temperance association she has exerted a great influence.

WILCOX'S LETTER RECEIVED.

Tells President Miners Are Restraining Interstate Commerce.

Washington, Oct. 11.—President Roosevelt has received the communication from David Wilcox, of the Delaware and Hudson Railroad company, and has referred it, together with the former one, of which Mr. Wilcox speaks, to the attorney general.

New York, Oct. 11.—David Wilcox, vice president and counsel for the Delaware and Hudson Railroad company, and one of those present at the recent conference, called by President Roosevelt, at Washington, has sent to President Roosevelt a letter demanding that the federal government proceed against the miners' organization in the courts on the ground that it is a conspiracy to prevent interstate commerce.

Mr. Wilcox, it is said on authority, represents all the coal operators in this action, and was selected as their spokesman. The letter was made public in this city yesterday, together with a letter written several months ago to the president along the same lines.

The Earth's Other Motion.

The earth, in addition to its diurnal and annual revolutions, has a slow wabbling of its axis, a motion seldom mentioned even in the textbooks of astronomy. This curious motion may be properly likened to that imparted to a top by a touch of the finger on its rim when it is in rapid movement, the touch causing the upper end of the top's stem to describe a small circle. So, too, the mighty sun lays hold of the rim of the great terrestrial top, and it begins to oscillate in the long period of 21,000 years—that is to say, on Dec. 21, 1248, the earth made its nearest approach to the sun, and it will approach equally near in 10,500 years from that time, or on the 21st day of June in the year 11,748. This has all to do with climate both north and south of the equatorial line.

In the period comprising the first our northern winters are short and mild and our summers are long and sunny. But during the period of which the year 11,748 will be the middle our winters will be awful in their severity and our summers short and cool. Even now the northern hemisphere is slowly but surely losing its long, sunny summers, and if you should live until the winter of the year 11,748-49 you could tell a story of cold and snows that would pale to insignificance the stories of the cold winter of 1833-34, for the whole northern hemisphere will then be in the midst of its great and terrible winter.

The Kingfisher.

Koskomenos, the kingfisher, still burrows in the earth like his reptile ancestors. Therefore the other birds call him outcast and will have nothing to do with him. But he cares little for that, being a clattering, rattle headed, self satisfied fellow, who seems to do nothing all day long but fish and eat. As you follow him, however, you note with amazement that he does some things marvelously well—better, indeed, than any other of the wood folk. To locate a fish accurately in still water is difficult enough when one thinks of light refraction, but when the fish is moving and the sun glares down into the pool and the wind wrinkles its face into a thousand flashing, changing furrows and ridges, then the bird that can point a bill straight to his fish and hit him fair just behind the gills must have more in his head than the usual chattering gossip that one hears from him on the trout streams.—Country Life In America.

The Next Speaker

Men Who Would Wield the Gavel Henderson Is to Lay Down : : :

THE unexpected refusal of Speaker David B. Henderson to become a candidate for re-election in the Third congressional district of Iowa, which has ten times sent him to congress, has given rise to much speculation among Republicans as to his probable successor as speaker of the house of representatives.

Among Republicans, who expect to control the Fifty-eighth congress, there is much talk of Henderson's successor. Some of the names most frequently mentioned are J. G. Cannon of Illinois, James S. Sherman of New York, T. E. Burton of Ohio, Charles E. Littlefield of Maine and J. W. Babcock of Wisconsin. Besides these C. H. Grosvenor of Ohio and E. H. Bingham and John Dalzell of Pennsylvania have been discussed as possibilities for the high position.

DAVID B. HENDERSON.

Mr. Sherman of New York was the principal opponent of Henderson three years ago, but the candidacy of Sereno E. Payne, also of New York, made it impossible for an Empire State man to land the place.

Mr. Sherman is one of the best presiding officers the house has ever had, as he has had ample opportunities to show as chairman of the committee of the whole house on the state of the Union.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon was a candidate three years ago, but A. J. Hopkins of the same state also came out for speaker and divided the Illinois delegation, thus killing Cannon's chances.

Littlefield, the "man from Maine," is regarded by some as too new a member to be invested with the dignity and power of the speakership. Besides, he has not always acted with his party. He opposed the Porto Rico bill and the Cuban reciprocity measure, and the Republicans, if they control the next house, may not feel like putting him forward. Still, he is a strong possibility.

Burton of Ohio is not fully in accord with Mr. Hanna and might find it difficult to get the delegation from his state. Burton is serving his fifth term in congress and is chairman of the rivers and harbors committee. Congressman Grosvenor of Ohio is serving his eighth term in congress. His ability and experience fit him for the position, but he has the handicap of age, having begun his seventieth year.

The two Pennsylvania men, Dalzell and Bingham, are both veterans in congress. Mr. Bingham has seen nearly a quarter of a century of service in the house, having been elected continuously since he entered the Forty-sixth congress. Mr. Bingham is the "father of the house." Mr. Dalzell is serving his eighth term and is considered a strong man. He ranks second on the ways and means committee.

Babcock of Wisconsin is a man who must be reckoned with. He is in a strong position, and the contest may be between him and Cannon. They are about equal as to parliamentary skill.

Mr. Babcock is chairman of the congressional campaign committee of his party and in that place has put a number of men under obligations to him. He fairly represents the sentiment out west on the tariff and trust issues.

Cannon and Babcock are men of about the same intellectual caliber. Neither is brilliant; both are hardheaded, common sense men with very few illusions about anything.

But should the Republican expectations be wrong and the Democrats win the house there will be no lack of aspirants for the speaker's job. Mr. Richardson of Tennessee was the party candidate against Henderson in the last and in this congress. He is an admirable presiding officer, having often been tried in that capacity. It is not likely, however, that he would have a walkover for the speakership.

Mr. De Armond of Missouri was Mr. Richardson's opponent for the minority nomination for speaker last year. He has been mentioned as the possible successor of Henderson should the Democrats win. Whether or not he could land it is an open question.

Mr. Griggs of Georgia, chairman of the Democratic campaign committee, will undoubtedly be pushed by his friends in case of victory for the Democrats. Mr. Underwood of Georgia, the Democratic whip, will also have a chance should there be a deadlock among the leaders in the race.

Williams of Mississippi is said to be also in the field. He is a man of education, a fine lawyer, a thorough parliamentarian and a finished orator. He is thoroughly qualified for the position should it come his way.

Since the adoption of the constitution there have been thirty-three speakers formally elected, besides several who have been appointed speakers pro tempore for a period of ten days. The speaker of the First congress was Frederick Augustus Conrad Muhlenburg of Pennsylvania. He was also speaker of the Third congress.

The most distinguished of the early speakers and the man who was oftenest elected to that office was Henry Clay of Kentucky. He entered the house in the Twelfth congress after having already served short periods in the senate. He was chosen speaker on the first day of his appearance as a member of the house and is the only man who never sat in that body except as speaker. Twice he resigned from the house, but on re-entering that body was elected speaker again, quite as a matter of course. Altogether Clay was elected speaker in six congresses.

The next oftenest was Andrew Stevenson of Virginia, who was elected four times, resigning the last time to go as minister to England. The only speakers to have three full consecutive terms and no more were Nathaniel Macon of North Carolina, Schuyler Colfax of Indiana, James G. Blaine of Maine and John G. Carlisle of Kentucky. Thomas B. Reed of Maine has had three terms, but two congresses intervened between his first and second terms.

Samuel J. Randall of Pennsylvania was elected speaker three times successively, but the first time was for the second or short session of the Forty-fourth congress as the successor of Michael C. Kerr of Indiana, who had died during the recess of that congress.

Those who have had two consecutive terms and no more were Jonathan Dayton of New Jersey, Joseph B. Varnum of Massachusetts, James K. Polk of Tennessee, Linn Boyd of Kentucky, Charles F. Crisp of Georgia and David B. Henderson of Iowa. Henderson was the first congressman from west of the Mississippi to be elected speaker. The other speakers had one term only.

DIPLOMATIC CORPS.

Shifting of Our Representatives Abroad Is In Each Case a Promotion—New Minister to Brazil Was Once a Day Laborer.

The recent changes in the diplomatic service, by which five experienced representatives of the United States in foreign countries receive new portfolios and one man is appointed from private life to enter the field of diplomacy, are the direct results of the retirement of Embassador Andrew D. White from the post at Berlin.

The appointments, which go into effect Nov. 1, are promotions for merit in the case of the men already in the service, while the new man, although lacking diplomatic experience, is not unknown in public life.

In pursuance of his policy of recognizing the merit system in this branch of the public service, President Roosevelt has advanced Charlemagne Tower, now embassador to Russia, to the more important portfolio in Germany to be vacated by Mr. White. Robert S. McCormick goes from Austria-Hungary to Russia. Bellamy Storer, minister to Spain, becomes embassador to the Austrian empire. Arthur S. Hardy moves from Switzerland to Spain. Charles Page Bryan graduates from Brazil to Switzerland. The new man, David C. Thompson of Nebraska, follows Mr. Bryan to Brazil.

Charlemagne Tower of Philadelphia belongs to a well known family of that city and is descended from John Tower of Norfolk, England, who settled in Hingham, Mass., in 1637. Mr. Tower, who is now in his fifty-fifth year, is a graduate of Harvard university.

In 1878 he was admitted to the bar of Pennsylvania, but has not given much time to the practice of his profession. He is a director of the Lehigh Coal company and of the Reading Coal and Iron company. Mr. Tower is the author of a work on the "Marquis de Lafayette In the American Revolution." President McKinley nominated Mr. Tower for minister to Austria-

CHARLEMAGNE TOWER.

Hungary in March, 1897, and on Jan. 10, 1899, he was appointed embassador to Russia.

Robert S. McCormick of Chicago is a son of the great reaper manufacturer. He is about fifty years old and has always been prominent in literary circles. He rose from work as a reporter on the Chicago Tribune to an editorial post and married a daughter of Joseph Medill, proprietor of that paper, and since Mr. Medill's death has been associated with Robert Patterson, the other son-in-law, in the ownership and management of the property.

He was nominated for envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Austria-Hungary by President McKinley on March 6, 1901, was promptly confirmed by the senate and commissioned the next day. Largely through his representations the post was raised to the dignity of an embassadorship on March 27 of this year. Mr. McCormick is at present in this country.

The new embassador to Austria-Hungary, Bellamy Storer of Cincinnati, is a native of Ohio and is fifty-five years old. He is a lawyer and made his first entry into public life as a member of the Fifty-second congress. He was re-elected to the Fifty-third and was a member of the foreign affairs committee. He is a man of large private means. He was made minister to Spain in 1899.

Charles Page Bryan is a native of Chicago, but spent his youth in Washington, his father for many years being one of the commissioners of the District of Columbia. He is a graduate of the University of Virginia and of the Columbian law school, Washington. In 1897 President McKinley appointed him minister to China, but at his own request he was sent to Brazil instead, Mr. Conger being transferred from Brazil to China.

David E. Thompson of Nebraska is now in his forty-ninth year. Born on a farm in Michigan, he was left an orphan before his ninth birthday. Until his thirteenth year he worked on the farm and went to school. Then four years were spent in a jeweler's shop. Close confinement injured his health, and he entered the service of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad in June, 1872, as truckman in the freighthouse at Lincoln, Neb. The record of his rise from this position to a place among the most wealthy, influential and successful business men of the west reads like a fairy tale. On March 19, 1901, he was nominated by the Republicans for the short term in the United States senate.

SENATORS SAW CASSATT.

Rumor They Conferred With Him, In Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Oct. 11.—Senators Quay and Penrose arrived here from New York last evening and immediately disappeared. It was reported but the rumor could not be verified, that they were in consultation with President Cassat, of the Pennsylvania railroad, until a late hour.

Up to midnight Senator Quay had not appeared at the Hotel Walton, his stopping place in this city, nor did he present himself at Republican state headquarters.

Shortly before the arrival of the senators President Cassat met President Baer, of the Reading company, on the latter's return from New York. After a brief conversation Mr. Baer went to his home.

Senator Penrose was scheduled last night to attend a meeting of business men at Pottsville, at which Secretary of the Treasury Shaw delivered an address. Mr. Penrose, however, did not go to Pottsville, which adds strength to the belief that matters of importance pertaining to the miners' strike were considered by the senators after their arrival here.

No one saw Senator Quay leave the railroad station, although it is known that Senator Penrose proceeded to his home, where he remained only a few minutes.

Needed For Other Purposes.

A Georgia justice recently married a runaway couple who drove up to his house and went through the ceremony without descending from the carriage. When the ceremony was over, says the Atlanta Constitution, the groom fumbled in his pockets and fished up thirty-six cents.

"Jedge," he said, "this here's all the money I got in the world. Ef you've a mind to take it, you kin, but I'll say now that I done set it aside fer the honeymoon expenses."

"They say she isn't happy," commented the neighbor, "but I don't see why."

"Oh, some people never are satisfied."

THE CODE COMMITTEE CHANGES ITS MIND AS REGARDS BOARDS

Hostile Criticism Causes It to Make New Provision For Couucils—Boards of Review Are Favored.

From a Staff Correspondent.

Columbus, October 17.—The code conference committee has reversed itself again. Thursday night it changed the code so that the bi-partisan board of public safety, to be of either two or four members, council to determine the number, is to be appointed by the mayor, subject to confirmation of council. Two days before the committee provided that this board should be appointed by the sinking fund commission, which is to be appointed by the mayor.

This act met with such hostile criticism that the committee concluded it would be a good thing to change it. It was also decided to provide for rotary councils. Instead of the entire council going out of office at the same time a part will go out one year and part the next. There will be no change in the manner of selecting councilmen.

There will be no police court legislation, as the Democrats will not vote for the judiciary bill to provide for this, and without their help it cannot pass. The committee also abolished city boards of equalization and substituted therefore boards of review, to be appointed by the state auditor upon application of the county auditor. The Longworth act passed last winter created boards of review.

It has not been agreed whether the Guerin bill passed by the house or the Royer bill passed by the senate, each for the repeal of the Royer act shortening the power of the supreme court, will be adopted. There is little difference between them. Failure of the legislature to pass a repeal measure is causing the circuit courts much inconvenience and is tying up litigation.

The code committee will hardly report before Monday or Tuesday now. It is expected that the bill will be put to a final vote on Tuesday.

Mademoiselle Zera Got Away With Paraphernalia Despite Replevin Writ.

Constable Powell met with a cold bluff yesterday afternoon when he attempted to preempt the property of the Taylor snake show, which had been attached by the Columbian park management. Mademoiselle Zera, the snake charmer, was in an unamiable state of mind when the constable called and she gave vent to her feelings by giving him a tongue lashing. Sne did not attempt to use her wiles, but threatened if he laid hands on her property she would lay him out with the hammer she was holding. She managed to get away with a box of snakes, two trunks and some other stuff, in spite of the constable's presence.

"If that constable had touched that box of snakes, he'd be in bed today," said Mademoiselle this morning. "I'd have hit him with that hammer and laid him out flat. Why, do you know how much we've taken in since we've been here?" she replied. "Two dollars and ninety-five cents! The walkin's going to be crowded for some of those side show people," she concluded.

The box of snakes and trunks were on the wharf boat this morning.

VERDICTS OF GUILTY

Reached in the Case of Henry Mellon, Wellsville, And Edward Allen, Salem.

Lisbon, October 17.—(Special)—Three criminal cases were to have been heard in common pleas court yesterday, but owing to the absence of important witnesses court was late in starting, and the case of Henry Mellon, of Wellsville, dragged out nearly the remainder of the day. The arguments were conducted about 5:30, and court adjourned till 7 o'clock.

The jury brought in a verdict of not guilty, and the court proceeded with the hearing of Edward Allen, the Salem pickpocket. The state had a plain case, and by 9 o'clock the jury brought in a verdict of guilty. Judge Hole sentenced him to two years in the penitentiary.

TOWBOAT SUNK

EAST LIVERPOOL MAN NARROWLY ESCAPED WITH HIS LIFE.

Finally Rescued By Means of a Rope in the Nick of Time.

The towboat Fred Wilson, which left Pittsburg last Monday with over 30 barges of coal in tow, met with an accident near Cattlettsburg, Ky., yesterday and the Consolidated Coal & Coke company, of Pittsburg, suffered a loss of 150,000 bushels of coal, aggregating in cash over $12,000.

The boat missed the channel and her front barges swinging around struck the end of the dike, becoming immediately submerged. Rutherford Sellers and Howard James, two young men of the southeastern part of the state, but who have resided in East Liverpool for several months, were abcard the ill-fated boat when the disaster occurred, and it is said that ames had a very narrow escape from a watery grave. He was on one of the barges that got loose, and in attempting to land on one side of the secured boats fell into the river. A line was thrown to him and after sinking once he was able to seize it. He was rescued nearly exhausted.

BURNING PITCH

Started a Blaze at East Liverpool Pottery Which Threatened Much Damage.

A destructive fire was narrowly averted at the plant of the East Liverpool pottery at 10 o'clock this morning.

Workmen were engaged in applying pitch to a portion of the roof of the building, and had five gallons of the stuff in a large tank, under which a fire had been lighted. The pitch spilled over the edge and caught fire. For a time the blaze threatened to destroy the building. It burned fiercely, and in an attempt to extinguish the fire the man in charge of the work had his right hand and arm badly burned.

As the burning tar had almost reached the factory, J. J. Langley, dipper at the plant, jumped from the window of the dipping house, and after a great deal of hard work succeeded in putting out the fire with the aid of a hose. The fire department was called, but the blaze had been put out before it arrived.

SOUGHT TO DEFEAT FARM CONVEYANCE

Pennsylvania Concern Brought an Action Against a Woman Near Bayard.

LARGE SUM WAS INVOLVED

And the Question of the Constitutionality of an Act of 1898 Was Raised. Action of Wife Taken in Good Faith Held Valid.

Lisbon, October 17.—(Special.)—While the court was waiting for witnesses in the criminal cases yesterday an interesting civil case was argued before Judge Hole. It was the case of the Wolf company, a Pennsylvania manufacturing concern, against Hattie W. Hahn, near Bayard, this county.

The Wolf company brought action to set aside the conveyance of a farm near Bayard, made by John W. Hahn to his wife last spring. The paintiffs claimed the conveyance was made to defraud creditors, setting forth that they had obtained a judgment against the husband, which transaction they sought to defeat. They asked the court to set aside the conveyance and appoint a trustee to the sell the property and apply the proceeds to the payment of all debts of John W. Hahn

This action was brought under a statute passed in 1898, making void a conveyance made by anyone insolvent with intent to prefer any creditors. Attorney J. A. Martin, of Lisbon, answered for the defendant, saying that she had lent her husband $5,000 in 1893 to buy a farm and that he had given her a judgment note for it. The defense maintained the loan was made under the conditions that obtained before the passage of the act of 1898, and that under the laws then in force one might prefer his creditors.

Mrs. Hahn took judgment against her husband on this cognovit note last spring in this court for $9,000, and then in pursuance of the contract for preference he deeded her the property for $7,000, receiving a receipt for that amount. The defendant't attorney held that the act of 1898, forbidding preference of creditors, is unconstitutional and void in so far as it interferes with her right to a preference under the contract made witn her husband in 1893, being in conflict with a provision of the constitution declaring the legislature shall have no power to pass laws impairing the provisions of a contract. He asked that if the conveyance were set aside her receipt for $7,000 on this judgment be likewise cancelled and that she be given a first lien of $9,000 on the farm by virtue of her judgment.

The court overruled the demurrer to this defense, holding that a judgment taken in good faith on a cognovit note given in 1893 would constitute a valid lien, but sustained the demurrer to the defense that the act of 1898 was unconstitutional, for the reason the petition failed to allege that the contract was in writing. Attorneys Clark & Clark, of Canton, represented the plaintiffs.

WILLIAM JONES ON THE WARPATH

With Club and Stones He Was Spreading Terror When Apprehended.

FRIGHTENED MANY PEOPLE

Before He Was Seized By Officers And Taken to the Police Station—Mayor Gave Him a Fine And Warning of the Penalty Next Time.

Howling mad and raving like a maniac, William Jones, who when asked where he lives said, "Any old place I hang my hat is home, sweet home, to me," was arrested last evening by Officers McDermott and Saulsberry on Second street. Filled to the neck with red eye Jones was uncontrollable and for a short time had terrorized the residents. He secured a club and a handful of rocks and threatened the lives of every one on the street.

From on eside of the street to the other the man in his crazed condition ran, swinging his club and defying the best man in the city. A number of people, not realizing that he was simply drunk, became terribly frightened and made themselves scarce.

When about ready to center an attack on a passerby Jones was discovered by the officers and taken in charge, but not without a struggle. He was determined that he would not sleep in the city bastile and fought desperately for liberty, but he was small potatoes alongside of the two nervy policemen. Mayor Davidson assessed him $6.60 this morning and warned him that if he is ever arrested again on a similar cnarge he will get the full penalty, which is $50 and costs, with a workhouse sentence attached.

FRIGHTFUL EXPERIENCE

Woman Fell Through Floor And Was in a Vault Over an Hour.

There was an hour or more of intense excitement yesterday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Bower, on Florence street. Mrs. Bower's mother, Mrs. Denning, who lives in the West End, was a visitor at the house and about 4 o'clock, while in a rear building, by the breaking of a floor, fell into the vault eight feet beneath. Mrs. Denning cried out for some time before the people in the house heard her. They hastened to her assistance.

A rope was first tried, but she could not stand the strain. Finally a ladder was secured and she got out after over an hour of frightful experience. The shock greatly affected her.

SCRAP IN POSTOFFICE

Mrs. Minnis Resented Some Harsh Things Alleged to Have Been Said of Her.

Mrs. Hattie Minnis and Miss Sadie Harvey, two colored women, met in the postoffice last evening about 5 o'clock. Mrs. Minnis took Miss Sadie to task for some hard things she alleged her to have said about her and Miss Sadie denied the soft impeachment. Mrs. Minnis was not convinced and a war of words followed, much to the amusement of the people in the postoffice at the time.

The affair took a more serious turn, however, when they came to blows. It is not known who hit first but in the interchange of blows both received several hard ones. They were not molested by the police.

CLERKS AGREE

TO THE TERMS OFFERED BY THE LOCAL MERCHANTS.

Stores to Close at 5 p. m. During Four Months of the Year—The Compromise.

A joint meeting of the retail clerks and the merchants' association was held last night at city hall. There were 30 members of the clerks' union present and about 40 business men.

The counter proposition sumbitted to the clerks yesterday was accepted by them at the meeting, and while it contains a few minor changes from the original demand of the clerks, the latter organization considers it a fairly good compromise.

The agreement adopted calls for the closing of all stores at 5 p. m. during the months of January, February, July and August. It also asked that the stores remain open until 9 o'clock on Monday evening, but eliminates the former request that the five and ten cent stores be allowed to remain open until 11 o'clock on Saturday evenings.

The settlement is gratifying to both the merchants and the clerks, as it was thought at one time it would be impossiblle to adjust the matter without a fight.

POWELL VS. HOWELL

Lisbon, October 17.—(Special)—Richard Howell, of Wellsville, was placed on trial this morning for drawand appropriating a fellow workman's pay. He and a man named Abner Powell were in the employ of the Vulcan Clay company, of Wellsville. It is alleged that when the paymaster called Powell's name on a certain pay day, Howell received the envelope which contained $45.15. Later, when Powell complained that he had not got his pay, Howell's envelope containnig $1.60 was found in the office.

Howell denied having drawn the pay of Howell, and then disappeared before he could be arrested. He was captured soon afterward, and has been in jail since some time in July.

FINE RACES YESTERDAY

Speed Trials at Columbian Park Proved to Be Most Pleasing Events.

Around Which Much Interest Centered and Lively Betting Resulted.

H. S. RINEHART'S VICTORY

As a result of Wednesday's excellent program, fully 3,000 people filed into Columbian park yesterday afternoon and their anticipation of a repetition of pleasing events was realized. The races, special performances, music and the many other attractions on the grounds met the approval of all and the management received much praise.

The hillside was literally packed by lovers of horse flesh and the waving of handkerchiefs, together with vociferous applause as a favorite would come under the wire showed the general satisfaction. Owing to the fact that two horses belonging to East Liverpool men raced in the 2:22 pace interest centered mostly on that race.

Robert L, owned by George Larkins, and Redmond, owned by Harrison Rinehart, were the two of interest. Each horse had hundreds of admirers and when both left the wire for the first heat the crowd was almost breathless. In the first heat Robert L. was held back, owing to his getting a poor start and Redmond won the heat in a walk. In the second heat both horses ran for life. Redmond continued his gait, which is just a little too fast for Robert L. and again won the heat with Robert L. a close second The latter's backers were yet unconvinced of Redmond's superiority and when the third heat was called they persisted in shouting for their favorite.

A prettier heat was never witnessed. The horses started off well and came in as in the second heat, the winner making it in 2:22½. On this race large sums of money changed hands, Mr. Rinehart alone winning over $1,000. He made one of the most daring bets or record in local history. Before the race started he, it is said, bet $400 that his horse would win the first three heats. Had his horse lost a shoe or brokeen a couple of times the $400 would have gone. Luckily for him the animal took the trio and made him easy money.

The 2:30 pace was also a very interesting event. There were six starters in the race and six heats were necessary to decide which of three was the best. Kitty Wilkes, owned by a man in Londenderry, won the first heat with Litutenant Garcia, owned by Dr. Kinsey, of Wheeling, second and Roan View, owned by Kelly, of Charlerol, third. Lieutenant Garcia won the next two heats and all were confident that she had the race handicapped. Roan view came to the front, however, in the next and won the heat, with Lieutenant Garcia second.

In the next the latter horse was held back and Roan View again won a heat with Callot Boy second. The sixth heat was opened with only three starters, those not winning a place being barred. Betting ran high on this heat, but not at the poolsellers' stand. They held that it was an even toss between Lieuterant Garcia and Roan View and offered odds that did not suit the crowd. Roan View got a little the best of the start and took every advantage of it, keeping ahead of Lieutenant Garcia at all times.

Owing to the close approach of darkness but two heats in the free for all were allowed. Pilot Boy won them both from Texas Queen, but he had to put forth every energy.

Cute, the famous pacer and known as the guideless wonder, broke the track record by making a mile in 2:13. The record at the park is 2:21. She was driven by Mrs. Strong, who drove her in at Port Henry three weeks ago and broke the world's record at 2:10½. It is said that had not Mrs. Strong lost her whip on the last quarter Cute would have made it yesterday in 2:10.

Prof. Spoerhase with his three beautiful horses, tandem style, made a pretty performance.

General Manager George Smith announces that the races will be continued to Saturday, owing to the fact that it has been impossible to finish the races scheduled. The races to be

WITH THE WORKMEN IN THE CLAY PLANTS

POTTER ROBBED AND STABBED.

Fred Weaver, a young man employed at the pottery at Ford City, Pa., was on his way home yesterday in broad daylight with his wages, amounting to $53, in his pocket, when he saw two men standing in the road. Weaver paid no attention to them, but in passing he was struck over the head with a slung shot and staggered. As he recovered he sprang at the man who struck him and kicked him, when the other thug drew a knife and struck Weaver twice on the right breast, cutting him severely, the knife glancing the ribs. Weaver, however, held onto his pocket containing the money and the pocket was torn from his trousers in the scuffle. After securing the $53 the highwaymen threw Weaver over the river bank and left him for dead. He was found later and a doctor dressed his wounds, which are not serious, though painful.

WALKED FROM SMITH'S FERRY.

A number of the boys at the McNicol plant are laughing over the plight of a prominent physician who came across on the ferry the other night from Georgetown just in time to see the East Liverpool train disappear around a curve. WENDLING'S LECTURE

Noted Orator Captivates a Large Audience By His Eloquence—Bible His Theme.

Supt. R. E. Rayman, in a fitting manner, introduced the speaker of the evening, who, in the very beginning captured the audience by repeating those immortal lines of Shakespeare's Hamlet:

"To be, or not to be; that is the question;
Whether 'tis nobler in the mind to suffer
The slings and arrows of outrageous fortune
Or to take arms against a sea of troubles,
And by opposing end them."

After quoting fro mgreat and learned Socrates, he said: "But let me tell you a story which has been told in the many tongues of all the world." It was then, in choice and beautiful words that he told the pathetic story of the "Prodigal Son." Neither Shakespeare nor Socrates with all their eloquence shall outlive the bible —"The Imperial Book."

Then with wonderful word picturing and powerful expression, the speaker presented the place which is occupied by the bible in all nations. "Never shall it be decredited nor discarded," said he. Towards the last he pictured what all the world would be without this most wonderful and useful of all books.

Dr. Wendling closed his scholarly address with fitting remarks. The audience was captured and applauded generously.

THE SURPRISE CLOTHING HOUSE

MINERS' ACCEPTANCE HELPED.

Had Big Influence on Stock Market, Yesterday, as Did Rumor as to Shaw's Intention.

New York, Oct. 17.—The formal announcement that the coal miners' representatives had agreed to submit their difficulties with the coal operators to the board of arbitration appointed by President Roosevelt removed any lingering doubts that existed in Wall street as to a possible hitch in the efforts to bring about a satisfactory solution of the matter. Advices from abroad that the situation was viewed there with great cheerfulness intensified the optimistic feeling and caused heavy buying of the general market. London followed its satisfaction over the outcome by creating a strong and active market for American securities there and supplemented it with some large buying orders here. Prices opened with a rush upward, and huge blocks of stocks were bought at rising prices. The opening in the coalers was wide and there were 6,000 shares of Pennsylvania purchased on a fractional spread. Initial gains were well over a point throughout the active list, and after a temporary setback the rise was renewed with vigor and advances of two and even three points became numerous. The buying movement embraced all of the usual favorites and at times was heavily centered in various groups, particularly in the Pennsylvania group. The pronounced strength of the market brought out the usual crop rumors regarding special stocks, particularly Norfolk and Western, which advanced over six points to 80 over reports of an increased dividend. Much of the heavy buying throughout the list was credited to a heavy operator who has recently returned to the street after an absence abroad. After the first burst of enthusiasm over the favorable aspect of the coal strike situation the street began to regard that incident as a secondary factor in the market and commenced to discount the expected easing up of the monetary situation through the rumored bond purchases of Secretary Shaw. Room shorts showed much concern over the heavy absorption of stocks and covered pretty extensively in many of the leaders.

Monetary conditions yesterday were more favorable to borrowers and there were more liberal offerings of time money below recent rates.

Trading was in immense volume in the closing hour and there were many blocks of a thousand shares and upwards taken, one block of 5,000 shares of Norfolk and Western changing hands at 80. Prices all around were quite generally lifted to the best and the closing was very active and strong.

EAST END

SPORT AT THE PARK

Colored Men Were Having a Big Crap Game But Were Rudely Disturbed.

About a dozen colored men were having a high old time last night in one of the stables at Columbian park. They had improvised a crap table using several bales of straw and a horse blanket. Two lanterns furnished all the light necessary for them to count the spots on the "bones" and for the money transactions.

One of the drivers happened along and heard the familiar "Two bits he don't nine" and other phrases familiar to the game. In a spirit of levity he shouted, "The cops are coming" and in a moment all was confusion. The lights went out and there was a lively scramble for the open air.

ELEMENTS AT PLAY

Electrical Storm, Presaging Cold Weather, Witnessed in East End This Morning.

Everything was quiet in the East End today, the principal topic of general interest being the electrical storm and the eclipse. The storm began about two o'clock this morning and continued for an hour. The lightening flashes were very sharp and the thunder claps very distinct. There was a slight sprinkle of rain in some places.

One man who witnessed the play of the elemtns said there was usually a storm of this nature every October and that it was a sure sign of colder weather.

Saw the Eclipse.

Captain Terrence, of the East End fire station, witnessed the eclipse of the moon last night. "It began promptly at 11:17, the time scheduled for it by the astronomers," said the captain, "and from then on the dark shadow spead slowly until the moon was completely hidden. One peculiar feature was that the middle portion of the eclipse was much blacker, for on either side I could see the moon's faint light."

Side Show Attached.

Constable Powell, from Justice McCarron's court, served attachment papers yesterday evening upon the effects of the owners of four of the side shows at Columbian park. The attachments were secured by the park management, owing to the failure of the men to pay the privilege fees. The side show men are in hard luck as their patronage so far has been very slim.

Ministers Will Build.

The Eclipse of the Moon Was Watched With Interest By Many.

The moon was obscured by the earth's shadow for almost an hour this morning, causing a phenomenon that was observed with much interest by astronomers in every part of the United States. The lunar eclipse began at East Liverpool at 11:17 o'clock last night, while the beginning of its totality was observed at 12:19, the total ending at about 2 o'clock and the partial eclipse at 2:50 o'clock this morning.

The sky was perfectly clear last night and when fair Luna entered the penumbra of the shadow of Mother Earth many persons in and about the city watched the brilliant disc diminish in size and then apparently melt into black space. A short time before the eclipse started the moon shone brilliantly amid a mountain of white clouds.

ANOTHER C. & P. WRECK

Twelve Cars Demolished in a Smashup at New Salisbury.

The breaking down of an old car at New Salisbury, near Irondale, at 12 o'clock Wednesday night, caused a disastrous wreck on the main line of the C. & P. railroad. Twelve cars were piled up and demolished, and it took the three wreck crews from Conway, Alliance and Wellsville 12 hours to clear the track.

The two midnight passenger trains were run over the Fort Wayne railroad from Alliance to Rochester.

ANOTHER CAWLEY ARRESTED.

Brother of Wholesale Murderer Confesses to Highway Robbery.

Pittsburg, Oct. 17.—James Cawley, the elder brother of Charles Cawley, who is alleged to have killed his mother, younger brother and two sisters with an ax last Friday morning, was held for court yesterday morning in $1,000 bail on a charge of highway robbery. There was a large crowd present at the hearing for the purpose of seeing this member of this unfortunate family, and they were rather disappointed at the brevity and intense apathy of the whole proceedings.

Like a terrible climax to the Homestead tragedy of last Friday came the arrest of Charles' oldest brother, James Cawley, for highway robbery. The police officials were surprised.

None could rid himself of the thought but that a mistake had been made, but yesterday morning, when he pleaded guilty to the charge, the terrible reality was forced, almost unwillingly, upon them.

In Homestead the surprise caused by his arrest is even greater. James Cawley had been praised as the hero who had overpowered his maniac brother, and turned him over to the police, thus preventing further bloodshed, and had been pitied by all the townspeople for the terrible calamity that had befallen him. In the churches special collections had been taken for his benefit, and sympathy was showered upon him by hundreds. That he was guilty of any crime never entered their minds.

When the case of Cawley was called, it was announced that the prosecutor was Chester Johnson, of Miamisburg, O., who alleged that the defendant was one of a gang of three that attacked him and his companion, William Huff, of Finleyville, at midnight, Saturday, Oct. 4, when Huff was run down and killed by a shifting engine at Glenwood, while escaping from them.

English Commons Suspends O Donnell

London, Oct. 17.—During an exciting scene in the house of commons yesterday Premier Balfour moved the suspension of John O'Donnell, and the latter crossed the floor, stood in front of Mr. Balfour, shouted defiance and shook his fist in the premier's face. Mr. O'Donnell was suspended by a vote of 341 to 51.

Persian Customs.

In Persia, as well as in Turkey and throughout the orient generally, modern waterworks are unknown, and in every Persian town the women and girls may be seen at daybreak on their way to the common wells just as in old Bible times. They carry their pitchers on their shoulders and bring water for the household uses of the day. The well is the general clearing house for news. Another common sight in Persian towns is the tea seller. He carries a big brass teapot in either hand, the one full of hot water, the other of tea. His cups are in a tray, which is fastened to his belt. He cries in a singsong tone: "Hot tea! Sweet tea! Tea of crimson color!". His tea is prepared with herbs and has a delicious thymy odor. Wine is carried about in beefskins, which, plumped out to their original form by the fluid within, present a startling appearance to the novice. It is one of the impossible things for the western barbarian to attain admission to the Persian royal harem, but the rage for photographs has penetrated even that sequestered spot, and photographers have lately been admitted for the purpose of photographing the royal infants.—New York Tribune.

Plants and Gravitation.

The sense of gravitation in plants is that sense, for example, that makes a pine tree grow straight upward. A plant that curves assumes that position because its sense of gravitation makes it take the one best suited to its needs. Some flower stalks are very curiously guided by the gravitation sense. The narcissus is an example. At first there is a straight shaft piercing the ground with its compact pointed flower bud, but as the flower opens the stalk bends close to the top and brings the flower tube into a roughly horizontal position, where it shows off its bright colored crown to attract the insects, on the visits of which it depends for fertilization. The flowers are guided to the right position by the gravitation sense, and they increase or diminish the angular bend in their stalk until the right position is attained.

Hugo and the Poets.

"One day," said Turgeneff in his "Reminiscences," "we were discussing German poetry. Victor Hugo, who did not like others to monopolize the talk when he was by, interrupted me with a disquisition upon Goethe. 'His best work,' he remarked in an Olympian tone, 'is "Wallenstein."'

"'Pardon me, cher maitre, "Wallenstein" is not Goethe's, but Schiller's.'

"'No matter; I have read neither of these authors, but I understand their spirit better than those who know them by heart.'

"What could I reply?"

Cheerful Prospect.

Patient—Tell me candidly, doctor, do you think I'll pull through?

Doctor—Oh, you are bound to get well. You can't help yourself. The Medical Record shows that out of a hundred cases like yours one recovers invariably.

"That's a cheerful prospect."

"What more do you want? I've treated ninety-nine cases, and every one of them died. Why, man alive, you can't die if you try! There's no humbug about statistics!"

Sagacious Bird.

Mexico has a clever bird, called the melanarpes, which has discovered a use for the telegraph pole. At the foot of the post this bird makes a large hole, in which it rears its family. Somewhat higher up the post it makes an observatory, from which bored holes permit it to observe the horizon in every direction. Still higher this sagacious bird makes its storehouse, and thus the pole serves as its home, fortress and warehouse.

Instinct of the Mudfish.

The remarkable instinct of the mudfish to roll himself in a ball of mud when the dry season approaches is a wonderful provision of nature intended solely, it would seem, to prevent the extinction of the species. The most interesting fact about this fish is that it breathes by means of its gills when in its native element and by means of lungs during its voluntary imprisonment in the mud cocoon.

A Light Sentence?

A gentleman now living in New York tells the following story of a negro in Tennessee whose son had been convicted of killing a fellow workman. A few days after the trial the father was asked what disposition had been made of the case.

"Oh," he answered, "dey done send Johnson to jail for a mont."

"That's a light sentence for killing a man, don't you think?"

"Yes," answered the darky, "but at de end of de mont dey done goin' to hang 'im."—New York Times.

HEAD OF SHIP COMBINE.

C. A. Griscom, Who Has Long Been a Power In Maritime Affairs.

Clement A. Griscom of Philadelphia, who has just been elected president of the new shipping combine, has for many years been president of the International Navigation company, which is the center of the new combination recently organized by J. Pierpont Morgan.

The name of the new combination is the International Mercantile Marine company, and it has a capital of $120,000,000. The stock will not be quoted in open market, it is said. It has been subscribed and paid for by those interested in the combination.

Clement A. Griscom, the head of the new company, is a native of Philadelphia and is now in his sixty-second year. As a boy he entered the employ of the shipping firm of Peter Wright & Co. in 1857. He studied marine architecture and became so useful to his employers that in 1863 he was made a member of the firm.

He is the founder of the International Navigation company, which owns and operates twenty-six transatlantic steamship lines. As president of this line he bought the Inman line, changing it to the American line. This company also owns practically all the stock of the Red Star line, a Belgian corporation; also the International Navigation company, limited, of Liverpool, and of the Empire Transportation company of Seattle.

Mr. Griscom was the first president of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers and has since been re-elected each year. When the foreign built ships New York and Paris were added to the American line fleet, Mr. Griscom was instrumental in securing special congressional legislation permitting those ships to sail under American register.

Mr. Griscom has been specially honored and decorated by foreign governments, belongs to the principal clubs and commercial organizations and is at the head of leading banks, insurance companies and great industrial corporations.

He was married in 1862 to Miss Frances Canby Biddle. His home is at Haverford, Pa.

Hope For the Future.

"Come, comé!" cried the candidate's friend, "don't be disheartened so easily."

"But I'm sure to be beaten," replied the candidate dismally.

"Nonsense! Let your motto be, 'He who runs and fights away, may live to run another day.'"—Catholic Standard and Times.

TWELVE PAGES.

The retirement from the diplomatic service of Charles S. Francis as minister to Greece has afforded President Roosevelt an opportunity to exemplify the principles of the merit system in the federal service, for which he has stood consistently and tenaciously during his entire public carreer. He has taken advantage of the opportunity in a way that is highly gratifying to civil service reformers and to those who long ago appreciated the fact that it is only through the merit system that our diplomatic and consular service can be raised to the standards maintained by European nations.

England's task in the reconstruction of South Africa is hard enough under the best of conditions, but some of the continental European papers are endeavoring to throw additional obstacles in the way of the reorganizers by telling the Boers to demand more favorable terms than were agreed to in the peace treaty. The war is over and the Boers know it, if their fool friends do not.

Attorney General Knox is one of the ablest lawyers in the country. His views on restraining the powers of trusts are thoroughly practical. He has ppinted out the way to secure relief from existing abuses. There is more sound sense in one paragraph of his recent Pittsburg speech than in all the tirades against corporations that all the Democratic orators have ever uttered.

Fire losses in the country generally have been far less than usual during the past year. Builders have learned that cheap structures are often most costly. In erecting the modern business block or sky-scraper it is sought to make it as nearly fire proof as possible. The result is beginning to tell.

The Republican who abandons his party principles long enough to give a complimentary vote to a Democrat has strange notions of loyalty. Lending aid and comfort to the enemy is just as rash and unwarrantable in political warfare as in warfare of the sterner sort.

Probably the Pennsylvania soldiers will be just as glad to be sent home as the people of the mining region will be to see them depart.

It is time for action in the direction of arousing interest in the coming election and arranging to get the vote out. Is the Republican city executive committee doing all it ought and should along that line? Now is the time that effort will count.

Santos-Dumont proposes, if a $200,000 prize is put up, to try to travel from Paris to San Francisco by airship. Somebody may call his bluff, then what will the poor hot air operator do?

Neither Tom Johnson nor his newspaper organs are able to acquit the Cleveland mayor of the charge of tax-dodging. The great Democratic apostle of tax reform stands convicted.

Grover Cleveland has not abandoned hope for the Democracy, but he fails to furnish an accurate diagram of the base on which he erects the statue of the gentle goddess.

George F. Baer has been reelected president of the Reading railroad. Had it been a political office for which he was running all his money would not have saved him.

More atrocities by Turks against Christians are reported. The sooner the so-called Turkish government is obliterated the better for Christianity and cilvilization.

The eclipse of the moon was a very complete affair, but nothing to equal the eclipse the Democratic party will suffer November 4.

Tom Johnson's red automobile now has a breakdown every day. Its owner appears also headed for a political smash.

There is but one issue. That one is: "Shall prosperity continue?"

FIRE DRILL AT SCHOOL

The Central School Building Cleared of Scholars Twice Yesterday.

A fire drill was given yesterday, the first for some time, at the Fourth street building. During chapel hour in the morning the fire signal was sounded and immediately the high school left work for the drill.

Again yesterday afternoon during study hours when the pupils were least expecting it, a signal was given and the entire building containing between 900 and 1,000 pupils, was vacated in about three minutes. The signals always given when least expected and consist of three rings of the gong.

LEARNING A LANGUAGE.

It Is Comparatively Easy to Acquire a Working Vocabulary.

"It doesn't require any great length of time to learn a language if one has patience," said a man who has mastered several languages, "and when I hear a man regret that he is not able to speak French or German or Spanish or some other language unknown to him I cannot conceal my amusement. In nine cases out of ten I might say that the men who express a regret of this sort handle English very poorly if that happens to be their language.

"The chances are that their vocabularies are extremely limited, and it would probably surprise them to know that despite the advantages of birth and education they could not command more than 600 or 700 words in English if their lives depended upon it. Yet they are able to carry on intelligent conversation, and many of them may become forcible and even axiomatic in their sayings, and they plunge into discussions of literature, art, music and other subjects of such fine elegance and do it rather successfully too.

"Now, how long ought it to take for a man to learn 600 or 700 or even 1,000 words in any lauguage? Certainly it ought not to take any great length of time, and from my own experience I know that it does not. Of course I am not speaking now of mastering so that one can get the full benefit of all the refinements of speech in a particular tongue.

"But I have in mind the idea of speaking intelligibly in a given language, and being able to understand perfectly what is said in return. I have a system which I have worked out, and it has been of vast benefit to me and has enabled me to learn a number of languages. It occurred to me while I was in Mexico a few years ago on important business.

"I could not speak a word of Spanish and could not understand the language. I concluded that I would learn the language. My plan was simply this: I made up my mind that I would not retire at the close of any day as long as I was there without learning at least three words in Spanish, how to pronounce them and what they meant. That would give me ninety words per month, or something over 1,000 in a year's time."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

IN MANDALAY.

Mandalay has its own sky, soft and gray and incurving like a tent, with white cloud lines that seem meant for scrolls if one could read. It is the Very Sacred City, the city of contemplation, the city of all the monks. A thousand pagoda bells give tongue to the wind there when the sun goes down; a crumbling thousand more give up to time the testimony of outworn things.

It lies in a curved arm of blue hills, and something broods over it with solicitude. This you suspect from the air of the place and the way the shrill talk of the parrots and the complaint of the goats and the laughter of the people come to you wherever you are sitting. Afterward you go out, as I did that morning with the commissioner, and see under the very zenith, where the low gray sky is caught up, the square of the dark red crenellated walls of the old royal city, three miles each way, and outside the walls the parallel clear moat thinking back at the sky, and then you are sure that over and above the government of India some spirit is in possession here, some spirit that bends in affection over finished and forgotten things.

Seven roofed kiosks stand at intervals over the gates in the wall—they are called pyathat, but they strike the eye like peaceful conclusions—and low white stone bridges raised in the middle span the moat. The buttresses of the gates are painted deep gray and white, and the bank that slants steeply from the wall to the water has here and there a low, twisted, spreading tree on it, purely for decoration. You may stop at a corner and look two ways along the reflecting water, with bridge after bridge receding across, and pyathat after pyathat diminishing above, and each red and gray and white vista so picked out and finished under the quiet light slipping adorably into the near blue of the hills.

Mandalay seemed aware with bunting that day, flags and arches of welcome everywhere and crowds flocking—aware and almost awake—but you looked again and saw that she only turned in her sleep and smiled, as at a dream.—Exchange.

WELLSVILLE

In All Its Features Was the Dance Given By Local 55, N. B. of O. P.

A dance, which for attendance far surpassed any that has been held in this city for a number of years, was held last evening in the city building by the young ladies of local union No. 55, N. B. of O. P. Shenkel's orchestra, of East Liverpool, furnished the music and rendered several new walzes and other selections which were greatly appreciated. Light refreshments were served late in the evening and added much to the success of the occasion.

Fully 250 couples were present. The hall was so crowded that good dancing became difficult. A goodly share of those present were from East Liverpool, while there were also a few present from Toronto, Salineville and New Cumberland. The dance was so successful, financially speaking, that the girls have about decided to hold another one in a month or so.

Plans for New Building.

At a recent meeting of the improvement committee of council it was decided to erect a small frame building on the city's lot near Commerce and Eighteenth streets, to be used as a city tool house and give shelter to the street sweeper, sprinkler and scraper. The improvement committee was given power to act. Plans will be drawn up at once by City Civil Engineer Leith and the committee will advertise for bids within a few days. The new machines have been left out of doors and have been damaged somewhat as a result.

Charged With Robbing a Till.

Jacob Nagle, a lower Main street grocer was robbed of nearly $5 in cash Wednesday evening. It is charged that Merritt Jacobs, of the West End, went behind the counter and opened the till and immediately began to rid the drawer of its contents of about $10 or $12. He had succeeded in getting about $4.50 when Mrs. Nagle came suddenly into the room and started after the young man. He escaped and a warrant is out for him.

Some new Monte Carlo coats came in and they are the "prettiest ever." We advise any lady who wishes a very stylish, exclusive garment at a moderate price to come in and see them. The Leader, Washington street.

A Useful Rhyme.

If poisoned, take mustard or salt, tablespoon.
In a cup of warm water and swallow right soon.
For burns try borax and a wet bandage, too;
If blistered, then oil and dry flannel will do.
For children's convulsions warm baths are the rule;
With castor oil dose, too, but keep the head cool.
Give sirup of ipecac when croup is in store;
For fainting stretch patient right out on the floor.
To soak in hot water is best for a sprain;
Remember these rules, and 'twill save you much pain.

"That," answers the thoughtful wife, "is the new health food."

"It ought to be healthy," declares the husband. "I'll bet no germ of any sense would try to live on it!"—Baltimore American.

COUNCIL MEETING

LIGHTS FURNISHED THE TOWN MUCH CRITICISED.

Attorney Ingram Objects to Ten Councilmen for Chester—Other Discussions.

At the meeting of Chester council last night all the members were present. Mayor Shrader reported that the railroad company wished to have another day set for a meeting with the street committee in regard to the First street grade crossing. The matter will receive attention the latter part of next week.

The light committee's report indicated that it was disgusted with some of the lights. Mr. Johnston stated that he was not in favor of paying for lights that did not give light. Riley and Wetzel also criticised the lights.

General business was then taken up and a bill of Street Commissioner Severs was read. The total was $336.96, and it was ordered paid.

Mr. Goppert, of lower Chester, was present and asked council to look after a road leading to his mother's house. Some discussion arose as to whether the council had any jurisdiction over the road. Mr. Johnston thought it had been annuled. Mr. Riley thought it still public. The matter was finally left for the street committee to look into.

Attorney G. D. Ingram was present and in an eloquent little speech opposed the action taken by the council at the last meeting in the matter of having five wards and ten councilmen. He said in part:

"I oppose it as a citizen and doubt its legality. I regard so many councilmen as dangerous to the welfare and best interests of the town. I am sure it will be difficult to get ten men in this town who are competent and interested in the best welfare of the town of Chester.

"You know that men who have large interests here and men seeking office can far more easily direct the action of 10 councilmen than five. I do not refer to any individual, but to all. I ask your honorable body to give this matter careful thought, and after due consideration I hope you will vote to reconsider this action."

The subject was then discussed by all members of council, but no action taken.

E. S. Good notified council to keep the surface water off his property. His request caused some sharp discussion.

SUPPOSED SHOOTERS

Arrested By Chester Officers—One Demands Requisition Papers Before Leaving Ohio.

"Slim" Storm and William Scott, colored men supposed to be implicated in the shooting on a Chester street car, were arrested in East Liverpool yesterday by Chief Allison, of Chester. Storm refused to go without requisition papers. Scott went and before 'Squire Johnston was acquitted on giving bond to appear as a witness. Slim is locked up and requisition papers will be secured.

Ten per cent of the stock has been paid in. Something like a thousand dollars' worth of stock has been taken by New Cumberland people and more will be taken.

Will Go to Louisiana.

Rev. J. D. Donehoo and son James have been the guests of Senator Donehoo and family at New Cumberland for the past week. Rev. Mr. Donehoo will shortly go to Monroe, La., where he will have charge of the finest parish in the state. He has been located at Marshall, Mo., for the past ten years.

ANGRY MAN'S CRIMES.

WIFE SUED HIM FOR DIVORCE.

Read Papers Filed Then Went to His Father-In-Law's and Shot Wife's Father and Mother—Then Hurried Home, Killed Child and Shot Self.

Mt. Pleasant, Mich., Oct. 17.—Archie Woodin, in a fit of jealous rage, yesterday, killed his father-in-law and mother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gulick; his own 1-year-old child, and attempted to kill himself.

Woodin's wife had left him and sued for divorce. After seeing the papers filed in the suit, he went to his father-in-law's home and killed his wife's parents; then he went to his own home and killed his child. Then he wounded himself, but not fatally. His wife was working at a neighbor's.

GOVERNOR LIKELY TO APPOINT.

Claimed He Will Name Safety Boards For Many Ohio Cities, if Provision Is Adopted.

Columbus, O., Oct. 17.—At the meeting yesterday afternoon of the conference committee having in charge the municipal code, the amendment adopted Wednesday placing the appointment of the members of the board of public safety in the hands of the commissioners of the sinking fund was stricken from the bill and in its stead was inserted a provision that this board, to consist of two or four members, as council may determine, is to be appointed by the mayor and confirmed by a vote of two-thirds of all members elected to the council. If council fails to confirm within 30 days after the nominations are made the governor is to appoint.

This provision, it is claimed, practically provides that almost every city in the state, more especially those with Democratic mayors, are to have boards of public safety appointed by the governor. In few, if any, of the municipalities of the state will either party have two-thirds of the council, and all that will be necessary in Democratic cities to insure the appointment of the fire and police boards by the governor, will be for the Republican members of the council to vote against confirmations of the appointments made by the mayors.

The sections relating to the city councils were redrafted and provision made for rotation in office of councilmen.

UNION PARTY TURNED DOWN.

Dauphin, Pa., Judge Decides All Nominations Illegal.

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 17.—The certificates of the state nominees of the Pattison and Pennypacker factions of the Union party were declared invalid by the Dauphin county court in an opinion filed by Judge Simonton yesterday.

The nominees of the Pattison faction were Robert E. Pattison, of Philadelphia, for governor; George W. Guthrie, of Pittsburg, for lieutenant governor, and Lewis Emery, Jr., of Bradford, for secretary of internal affairs.

The candidates of the Pennypacker faction were Samuel W. Pennypacker, of Philadelphia, for governor; William M. Brown, of Lawrence, for lieutenant governor, and Isaac B. Brown, of Erie, for secretary of internal affairs.

TO SUPREME COURT.

Controversy About Corner Stone Laying Will Be Taken There Soon.

Bellaire, October 17.—That Bellaire cornerstone matter, it seems, is not to end in the Belmont county common pleas court. It will be readily recalled that at the time arrangements were being made to lay the stone upon which was cut a sertain inscription, Judge Hollingsworth issued what was supposed to be a temporary restraining order to to prevent its being laid until such time as all the facts in the case could be laid before the court. The actual laying of the forbidden stone and the subsequent contempt cases are of too recent occurrence to require re-publication.

As matters have stood since the contempt cases were dismissed, those who were opposed to the laying of the stone seems to have been defeated without an opinion as to the merits of the case ever having been rendered. In order to have this opinion, it has been decided to take the case to the highest court in the state.

The motion which involves making permanent the temporary restraining order issued by Judge Hollingsworth will come up for argument at an early date. The case will then be taken to the circuit court and from there to the supreme court.

The national organization of the Knights of St. John are behind the movement to have the highest tribunal in the state to pass upon the matter. Supreme President O'Connor, of Buffalo, was in St. Clairsville, Tuesday, in consultation with Attorneys Nary and Rees who have had charge of the case and who will follow it up.

EDUCATIONAL WORK

And Temperance Discussed By Synod—Beal And Anti-Canteen Laws Endorsed.

The Ohio Presbyterian Synod at Steubenville yesterday took up the theme of aid for schools and colleges. The annual report for Wooster university was read and an able address was made by President Holton in behalf of this famous Presbyterian college. In the report of the trustees they make the statement that as soon as possible they will begin a campaign for $500,000 endowment, and that owing to concentration upon rebuilding of the university, the annual deficit still remains a debt upon the nistitution to the extent of $16,881.65. Upon the completion of the new buildings there will be eleven buildings devoted to college and preparatory work.

These buildings, with the campus, comprising 30 acres, valued at $30,000, make up the real estate owned by the University of Wooster. With over a half million invested in this educational plant and $142,000 invested endowment, the college will begin the year 1903, under favorable auspices.

Rev. Trumbull Lee read a resolution to increase the gift of the synod last year from $1,500 for the aid of colleges to $2,500. This created a hot discussion from the friends of Wooster and it was modified to extend general aid to other colleges without pledging the synod to a special amount.

The report of the committee on temperance and Sabbath observance was as follows: "We rejoice in the passage of the Beal law and all members are asked to co-operate to have it apply to other towns. We emphatically approve of the anti-canteen law and disapprove of attempts to interfere with its effective operation."

The work of the Anti-Saloon League was indorsed. Delegates to the Anti-Saloon League convention at Washington, D. C., are F. A. Wilbur, of Zanesville; Rev. W. F. McCauley, of Youngstown; Rev. James T. Black, of Dayton.

Rev. E. Layort, D. D., addressed the synod in the interest of the American Bible Society.

The Ultimate End of the Watch.

A prominent watch manufacturer is said to be continually deluged with questions as to where all the watches go. This country takes them at the rate of 8,000 a day, and this rate is kept up year in and year out, added to by countless importations.

"I never was able to answer the question," said the manufacturer. "Nobody in the trade ever tries to. We find that the life of a watch is but five years, yet if you will stop fifty men and ask how long they have carried their watches forty-nine of them will say they have only had one watch in their entire lives.

"We cannot explain the disappearance of watches. They do not go into the ash bins. I remember when the New Jersey watch factories closed that in ten years we could not find one of their watches anywhere. They had disappeared off the face of the earth, yet millions had been made. Look at the key watches. Up to some twenty years ago we made nothing else. In that twenty years these millions and millions of key winding watches have disappeared, and the question asked unremittingly, 'What becomes of the watches?' remains unanswered to this day."—Jewelers' Circular-Weekly.

Fine Flour and Teeth.

Why do colored people as a rule have such splendid teeth? Mostly because they have lived on course food, which made demands on the teeth. People as a rule now do not want to do any chewing. They demand meat which is so tender that it will melt in the mouth, etc. Nature, prodigal as she is, never bestows anything where it is not used, and the result is that the civilized races are losing their teeth. If the style continues to forbid our teeth to do any grinding, our progeny of, say, 2902 A. D. will be born toothless or with only rudimentary teeth. As individuals we cannot grow good teeth in our heads by eating coarse food. We are beginning to get bad teeth by heredity. But there is almost no tooth or bone forming material in fine white flour, and the avoidance of coarse foods undoubtedly hastens the decaying of our teeth. Perhaps the millers and the dentists are in a secret league to work for mutual interests. Who knows?

PERPETUAL FRANCHISE

Tom Johnson the Only Ohio Man With Any.

The Sweeping Bill the State Senate Rejected For Him — The Cleveland Perpetual Franchise He Signed For Standard Oil.

The first perpetual franchise granted by any city in this state, so far as is known, is that secured and signed for the Standard Oil company by Mayor Johnson of Cleveland, for piping natural gas into that city.

The only act ever submitted in the Ohio legislature for a perpetual municipal franchise was Senate Bill No. 34, with the amendment to it made personally by Tom L. Johnson to give all electric railroads a franchise without limit of time; with no protection to the people in the way of revenue, without anything said about any revision, either periodical or otherwise, and without a word about the referendum. It did provide for giving the electric railroads a right refused them now, that of eminent domain so as to condemn even public highways, and took away from the people their present right to petition for or against electric roads by the frontage of their properties. The Republicans rejected this in the senate.

Mayor Johnson of Cleveland and Tom L. Johnson, the party responsible for this bill, are one and the same, and it is the identical Johnson who is now parading up and down the state talking against "perpetual franchises," and although a tax dodger, talking about "fair taxation." He is the same advocate of "home rule," who goes into Democratic counties and dictates to the local Democrats those on their tickets whom they shall support, and those whom they shall bolt.

This, too, is the same Johnson who talks about 3-cent railroad fare and makes that an issue in state politics in contradiction of his own conduct in Detroit. The full history of that has just come to light in a recent issue of the Street Railway Review, saying that it was Johnson, as principal owner of the Detroit Citizens' railway lines, who fought Mayor Pingree's attempt to introduce 3-cent fares in that city, and carried the case through the city court, the United States district court and circuit court, and the supreme court of the United States. Johnson, it will be observed by this, in going into the United States court by injunction to keep Cuyanoga county out of collecting half a million dollars in back taxes from him, is experienced in his use of the federal courts to keep the people out of what they believe to be their just dues.

FARMERS AND SINGLE TAX.

How Johnsonism In Ohio Would Hit Them Hardest.

In one of his recent circus speeches Tom Johnson attempted to play the farmers for suckers. He told them they should support the single tax proposition, because the burden of taxation would fall upon the valuable land embraced in the cities. Mr. Johnson is either very ignorant of the facts or he was deliberately attempting deceit.

In 1890, the valuations of the two classes of land property were officially returned as follows:

Value of farm lands $494,451,573
Value of lands in cities, villages and hamlets..$371,050,158

And in Seneca county where Johnson made this assertion, the valuations are:

Value of farm lands.....$8,621,846
Value of land in cities, villages and hamlets ...$2,253,874

It is clear then, that a tax on land values would fall most heavily upon the farmers. And the latter must not forget this additional fact—that the single tax theory contemplates virtual confiscation of all lands by imposing an annual tax equal to the full rental value of the land. The farmer might hold the empty title to his land; but the government, under the single tax, would take from him all the land would bring. He would simply be a rent paying tenant, in effect, while the costly buildings in cities, the stocks and bonds and bank credits of the wealthy man would pay no tax whatever. The single tax is so called because it contemplates but one single kind of taxation, that on land values and proposes to tax no other form of property whatever.—Toledo Blade.

More Democratic Evidence.

The Brooklyn Eagle, a Democratic paper, has this to say of Tom Johnson, at one time of Brooklyn, but now of Cleveland: "Candor compels the admission that Johnson will not do. He was largely interested in Brooklyn railroads, but never at any time did he have a word to say about three-cent fares. So long as Mr. Johnson does not own the ox, he is more than willing to have it impaled. It is conceivable that he would favor a one-cent fare, always providing that this fare was not collected in his cars or upon lines in which he had a financial interest. There is no scarcity of humbugs, and among them is the man who would prescribe for others that which he himself would repel if asked to take it, as though it were a pestilence. So Mr. Johnson will not do."

Balzac and Black Coffee.

Balzac was addicted to the use of strong black coffee and depended upon it as a nervous stimulant during the hours which he devoted to composition. Its effect he has himself described in these words:

"The coffee falls into your stomach. Immediately everything starts into action. Your ideas begin to move like Grand Army battalions on the battlefield, and the battle opens. Memories arrive at a run, standards flying; the light cavalry of comparisons breaks into a magnificent gallop; the artillery of logic dashes up and unlimbers; thoughts come rushing up as sharpshooters; characters spring up on all sides; the paper becomes covered with ink, for the struggle has begun and ends in torrents of black water like the battle in black powder."

That Number 13.

So prevalent is the prejudice against the number 13 that car companies in many cities have been obliged to omit it, as the car bearing it did not "earn its living." In St. Joseph, Mo., No. 13 happened to be the car oftenest run over a certain line in a locality chiefly inhabited by negroes. It was discovered after a time that these would walk blocks out of their way to take the cars of a rival line, but as soon as No. 14 was sent down in their district the company's receipts resumed their previous figure. Thirteen as a house number also is looked upon with suspicion, and the expedient of 11, 11½ and then 15 is often employed.—New York Tribune.

One of the Great Dinners of Venice.

Perhaps the most expensive banquet ever given in Venice was that to Henry III. of France. He was feasted in the great hall of the doges' palace, and there were silver plates for 3,000 guests. At another time the same monarch was entertained at a sugar banquet—the napkins, plates, knives, forks and even the bread (so called) were all of sugar. The Venetians were mightily pleased when Henry took his napkin in his hands and to his surprise found that it broke to pieces. At this feast 1,260 different dishes were served, and 300 sugar effigies were distributed among the ladies.

MINISTER MUST QUIT

Christian Church General Board Asks Rev. Brown, of Denver, to Resign.

SENSATIONALISM IS CHARGED.

Big Temperance Rally Continued—A Speaker Says More Women Like Mrs. Nation Are Needed In Kansas. Welcoming Exercises Were Held.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 17.—Probably 1,500 delegates to the national convention of the Disciples of Christ arrived on early trains yesterday. Chairman Payne, of the general committee, had been notified that the Kansas and Missouri delegations would reach the city 5,000 strong during the day Several hundred delegates registered during the morning from Illinois, Kansas, Texas, Oregon, Nevada, Colorado, Wyoming, Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska and California.

The big temperance rally planned for at the convention in Minneapolis last year, which began Wednesday night, was continued yesterday under the leadership of W. H. Boles, of Alma., Olls., chairman of the temporary committee of the Christian church. Dr. George F. Hall, of Chicago, delivered an address on the "Irrepressible Conflict." Dr. Hall said the Christian people of the country were in the conflict for prohibition to stay and that they were laying the foundation for a movement that would make an aggressive fight against the liquor traffic for all time to come.

Ohio Man One of the Speakers.

G. L. Wharton, of Hiram college (Ohio), was the next speaker, his address being on "The Liquor Traffic in Foreign Countries." Dr. Homer J. Hall, of Franklin, Ind., then delivered a discourse on "Alcohol and Medical Science."

Dr. D. R. Dungan, ex-president of the Christian university, of Canton, Mo., had for his subject, "What Shall We Do With the Legalized Saloon?" A prohibition song by "The Beveridges" was followed by an address by W. J. L'Hamon, dean of the Bible college, of Columbia, Mo., on "The Triple Appeal to Prohibition." He was received with a round of cheering that indicated his popularity with his denomination.

Dr. L'Hamon's address concluded the morning session.

At 2 o'clock, after a praise service, S. W. Emerson, of Topeka, the Prohibition candidate for governor of that state, spoke on "The Saloon War in Kansas."

The afternoon session was opened with an address by Mr. Emmerson. He described in detail the conditions existing in Kansas and referred to Mrs. Nation's campaign, remarking that the state needed more women like her. A general discussion followed. Other addresses were delivered.

The first session yesterday was devoted to addresses of welcome and responses.

Minister Asked to Resign.

The general board of the church announced that Rev. Brice Brown, pastor of the Central Christian church of Denver, has been asked to resign on the ground of "sensationalism," confirming action by the local church board of elders. It was stated in connection with the announcement that Mr. Brown has invited to his pulpit laymen to discuss labor and other questions, and that at one time he permitted an avowed enemy of the Christian churcht o speak from his pulpit, in order that he might combat the man's views in a formal answer.

$800,000 FOR MISSIONS.

American Board Decides This Should Be Minimum Raised Next Year.

Oberlin, O., Oct. 17.—The session yesterday morning of the ninety-third annual meeting of the American board congregational missions was devoted chiefly to reports from committees on the missions and addressed by missionaries. President Albert T. Perry, D. D., Marietta, presented a report on missions in charge of Secretary Barton, and Dean Frank K. Sanders, D. D., New Haven, Conn. made the report on the missions superintended by Secretary Smith.

The report of the committee on home department was presented by the Rev. Willard B. Throp, of Chicago. He advocated the raising of $800,000 next year as a minimum sum, and this proposition was heartily received. The missionary addresses were by Rev. John Howland, Mexico; Rev. C. N. Ransom, South Africa; President C. F. Gates, Harpoot, Turkey, and Rev. George A. Wilder, Mt. Silania Africa.

NARROW ESCAPE FOR THE VICTIM

GOOSE PASTURERS CHASED YOUNG MAN.

The Jokers Were Far More Frightened Than He, Fearing the Man Had Been Killed.

Pennsylvania avenue was the scene of another goose pasture last evening, and the victim narrowly escaped serious if not fatal injuries. He was one of the easiest marks yet taken into the net and the gang that played the game had no end of enjoyment up to the time that he gave evidence of being actually hurt.

Having just recently arrived in the city he was not acquainted with the avenue, and as a result when he started on his mad run for safety he jumped from the frying pan into the fire. The name of the fellow could not be learned, but it is said that he is an amateur elocutionist and hails from the Long Reach settlement.

As usual three young fellows were stationed a short distance above Fisher's bakery and when the victim, accompanied by several youngsters who had promised to make him acquainted with some of East Liverpool's fairest, arrived at the designated spot, they fired a number of pistol shots and burst forth with shouts of "Hold up your hands." One of his companions starting on a run, the victim also took to his heels, and up the avenue he bounded like a frightened hare. The supposed robbers gave chase and when they saw th emark go stumbling into a pile of rocks at the brink of the hill and heard him yell in despair as if he had started over the precipice, matters changed considerably.

Fearing that the worst had been realized they speedily ran to the spot whence the cries came and were joyfully surprised when they found him lying uninjured and only badly scared. He took the joke good naturedly and had the laugh on the gang as they were perhaps more frightened than he.

Another case occurring at about the same time has been reported from Smoky Row. In this one the gang was interrupted by the appearance of Officers McDermott and Saulsberry on the scene. The officers chased the entire bunch up past Thompson's pottery and had they captured them all would have been placed under arrest. There is no doubt that unless radical steps are taken by the police force to stop this work of the two well organized gangs there will be a fatality to report one of these days.

OBSTRUCTIONISTS.

Democrats Endeavor to Defeat Anti-Trust Laws.

OPPOSED THEM AT ENACTMENT.

Have Since Thwarted Attempts to Strengthen Statute or Act of Congress or Constitution — Republican Presidents Enforced the Law, Democrats Did Not—Democratic Praise of Sherman Law.

It will not be many weeks until the arraignment in the courts of the beef trust and the Northern Securities company by direction of President Roosevelt to test how far they are amenable to the Sherman anti-trust law will be in the course of actual hearing. The period intervening since the cases were filed has been occupied by the department of justice in gathering and arranging the material for the proper trial of the cases, and it is fair to presume that litigation will be pushed to its conclusion with no more delay than is incident to the process of a suit in court.

We have the assurance of one of the most distinguished attorneys among the Ohio Democrats, given at a great Democratic mass meeting, that this Sherman law is amply adequate to check the onward movement of any illegal combination. This is gratifying indorsement, because the Sherman law from first to last has been purely a Republican measure. It was the first bill introduced into the senate of the Fifty-first congress and its author was Ohio's distinguished statesman, Hon. John Sherman. Thus it was Republican in its birth and has remained Republican ever since. The Republican senate passed it and on May 1, 1890, William McKinley, another of Ohio's great Republican leaders, from the committee on rules reported an order for its immediate consideration. This was stoutly resisted by the Democrats with adverse speeches by all their great leaders in congress. They said that nothing but free trade would touch the trusts, the same song they are still singing. Nevertheless the Republicans went ahead and passed the bill, and the Republican president, Benjamin Harrison, signed it, making it a law July 2, 1890.

Prosecutions under it began at once by direction of President Harrison and later by President McKinley. Upon this point we also have Mr. Clark's assurance at the Tom Johnson meeting in Columbus, that it is a law that proved effective and has been sustained by the United States supreme court in some of its most essential features. The Democratic president, Grover Cleveland, did nothing under the law, but President Roosevelt is testing its efficacy at this time and will give it a thorough trial.

Thus this is a Republican law, has been administered only by Republicans, and none but Republicans have attempted to make it still stronger. The supreme court at one time pointed out a weak place in it and the Republicans in congress have tried to strengthen that place, but have been thwarted thus far by Democratic opposition. To make the position of the government even stronger than a mere statute, the Republicans have tried to secure the enactment of an amendment to the constitution that would shut up the last loophole of escape to the trade combinations, but the Democrats in this, too, have been obstructionists only. This is briefly the record of the two parties in regard to the law that this Democratic orator has so highly and justly commended.

JUDGE BY THE FRUITS.

The Policies and Performances of the Parties Contrasted.

Senator Lodge in his speech to the Massachusetts Republican convention said: Few remember many even of the leading names connected with the last Democratic administration, but nobody forgets that its four years were years of the lean kind, and the thin years of hard times and low wages, of mills closed, of capital alarmed, of reduced employment, of the old story of collapse so true and so often told. And yet the men to whom the policy that wrought this result was due were honest men, and the republic was able to endure their government—for their allotted term. But not longer.

Then came the policy of the Republican party. Then came McKinley. As if by magic, as if it were a flood of sunshine came the most prosperous years the country has known. They have not put a silver spoon in everybody's mouth, but what an improvement, and who would set it back? That prosperity is the direct result of the policies and principles of the Republican party, and while the republic will survive their suspension, it has learned that they are the very spring of its present industrial and commercial greatness and glory.

Republicans, Democrats and independents alike are concerned in prosperity. It means business, bread-and-butter, work and wages. It will make good living for the poor and luxury for the rich.—Troy Press.

Campaign Explanations Deny His Sworn Statement.

Tom Johnson's Haughty Defiance to All to Find His Untaxed Millions. Was He a Citizen of Ohio or New York—Tax Dodging Difficulties.

Was or was not Tom L. Johnson a citizen of Ohio, and even entitled to vote in this state at the time of his being a candidate for mayor of Cleveland? That was in April, 1901. Nov. 8, 1899, in his petition in the United States circuit court to enjoin the treasurer of Cuyahoga county from collecting nearly a half million dollars of delinquency in taxes and the penalties thereupon, claimed from Mr. Johnson, the latter alleged that he had not been served with a legal notice, but that he had received a notice in the city of New York where he was then residing. He made this the basis for a farther claim that County Treasurer Lander, unless restrained, would act illegally by proceeding to collect by distraint, taxes on Johnson's property for the years 1894, '95, '96, '97, '98, '99, and the injunction was asked for on that account.

Mr. Johnson's own sworn statement therefore at the end of 1899, was that he then resided in New York, and not in Ohio. A year later and not quite two years ago Mr. Johnson told a distinguished citizen of Ashtabula county, Hon. Henry Apthorp, in New York city that he lived in that city. Mr. Apthorp said, "I thought you lived in Cleveland?" To this Mr. Johnson replied: "I keep my residence there, but my business interests are here." Then it would seem from the turn of his words that he claimed a sort of technical residence in Cleveland, but he was out of politics at that time and was attending strictly to the street car business on an immense scale in Brooklyn.

If Mr. Johnson in his talk with Mr. Apthorp considered himself technically a citizen of Ohio, what did he mean in his sworn petition to the United States court that he was a resident of New York, and if he was a resident of New York when under oath, what right had he to run for office in Ohio. It will be remembered that the Cleveland Plain Dealer opposed the talk worked up there for Johnson's nomination for mayor openly on the ground that he was a non-resident, and no answer was ever made to this assertion. If he was a non-resident there was not his conduct a violation of the election laws of Ohio? If he was a citizen of Cleveland was not his petition to the federal court a falsehood? And if it was not a falsehood, how can he escape his responsibility for taxation which he sought to dodge through that petition?

One point more about Mr. Johnson's taxes in the very form of his defense. His Brooklyn properties appear to have been sold, realizing several million dollars, and yet the mayor of Cleveland returns for taxes in Cleveland this year under oath only $13,080. Most of this is for the furnishings of Mrs. Johnson's house, for he owns no real estate. Only $2,000 of it is cash in hand, and not a cent of it for stocks or bonds, or for any other form of wealth—nothing for poor Tom to live on.

Worse than that, he defies the people to find his untaxed millions. His closest personal newspaper organ says: "Johnson has repeatedly told the men who have brought the suit that he will pay not only the taxes claimed in full, but will give them half the property if they will find it for him." It seems to think this smart; but it sounds very much like Boss Tweed's defiance of public indignation, when his one answer was to the wrath against the Tammany ring: "What are you going to do about it?"

With a franchise grabber like Tom Johnson making anti-monopoly speeches throughout Ohio it would seem that the acme of demagoguery had been reached.

Congressman Griggs, chairman of the Democratic congressional committee declares that Roosevelt is the strongest speaker for the Democrats in the field. No doubt of it. No doubt of it. He is defending the rights of all the people, and what is good for Republicans and everybody else, is likewise good for Democrats.—St. aMry's Graphic.

Fifty-two per cent of the families of Ohio live in homes owned by themselves. Are the heads of those families willing to vote for a ticket headed by Rev. Do they feel like supporting men who demand a taxation policy which would virtually confiscate their farms and homes?—Toledo Blade.

Some of the supposedly devoted subjects of the Johnson-Bigelow oligarchy are now in open revolt against the self-appointed leaders who suppose that wealth, cheek and a batch of cranky ideas constitute a combination that the Ohio Democracy can not resist. If to be a present day Democrat means to wear the Johnsonian tag, we do not wonder that rebellion has begun in dead earnest.—Mt. Vernon Republican.

The imperialism of Tom L. Johnson is enough to alarm even those who favor the imperialism of expansion. The new Democratic boss brooks no opposition to his will. His word is the supreme law of his organization. He does not concede the right of free thought and free speech. Free moral agency is a thing of the past. Johnson demands to be allowed to do the thinking, speaking and acting for the whole Johnson party. — Zanesville Times-Recorder.

The last Republican legislature cut down the state taxes nearly one half and doubled the rate on railroads. The Democrats never passed a law to reduce state taxes or to increase the railroad tax rate. Yet Tom Johnson, who refuses to pay his taxes, on his millions, because they were increased by the tax appraisers, is going around the state with a hippodrome, telling the people that the railroads don't pay their proportion of taxes, and is thus seeking to make it appear that he and the Democratic party are in favor of lower tax rates on the people and higher rates for the millionaires and monopolies. The gall of the man is amazing.—Bellefontaine Republican.

Think What It Means

Dispensia, Liver and Kidney Troubles, Impoverished Blood and General Exhaustion.

During the last year thousands of Americans have flocked to Germany, to avail themselves of the wonderful curative powers of the famed

TRAUBENKUR OR GRAPE CURE

The fame of these cures for such diseases is world-wide and the astonishing results have been recognized by physicians the world over. There can be no doubt or no quibbling. The grape cures have restored health to many thousands of Americans. Their absolute worth is no longer questioned, but only a few can afford the time and expense of a visit to the Traubenkur. It has remained for an American Chemical Co., the Lightning Medicine Co., of Rock Island, to combine all the best elements of the Traubenkur in and it has now been placed on general sale throughout America in drug stores at only 50 cents per bottle, so the suffering of all classes have the full benefit of these great curative agents.

Think what it means to you if you are suffering from any of these troubles. It is the most important development in a medical way in America for a decade.

WORTH ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.

LOUIS BONHART of Lawrence, Neb., says: "I have been afflicted with stomach trouble for the past three years. At times it grew so severe and annoying that I was compelled to quit work for two or three days each week, when the pains in my stomach were beyond endurance. I took but three bottles and am today perfectly well. I used nothing else but Mull's Grape Tonic. To me it is more than worth its weight in gold."

If you are suffering from dyspepsia, constipation, liver or kidney trouble, or nervous exhaustion you owe it to yourself to give Mull's Grape Tonic a trial. The cost is small, and you will be astounded and gratified at the result. Our faith in it is so absolute that those who buy it and get no benefit may have their money back.

If used with a little chopped ice it will be found a delicious drink.

MITCHELL ACCEPTED.

Sent a Message to the President Agreeing to the Arbitration Board.

MINERS TO MEET MONDAY.

They Will Then Vote Upon Time to Return to Work—General Resumption Likely by Thursday—Operators Getting Ready.

WILKESBARRE, PA., OCT. 17.—PRESIDENT MITCHELL HAS NOTIFIED PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT OF THE ACTION OF THE THREE EXECUTIVE BOARDS. HE WILL NOT GIVE OUT THE TEXT OF THE MESSAGE.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 17.—The executive board of the three anthracite districts of the United Mine Workers of America, in joint session yesterday, unanimously decided to recommend to a delegate convention of striking miners the acceptance of the arbitration proposition submitted by the president of the United States, and it is reasonably certain that the advice will be followed and the great struggle brought to a close. The convention will be convened in this city next Monday morning, and it is the hope and the belief of the officers of the union that the mining of coal will be resumed before the close of next week, after a suspension of more than five months.

Miners Not Rejoicing Yet.

While the great "third party" is satisfied with the promise of an early coal supply, it cannot be truly said there is great rejoicing among the striking mine workers at this time over the result. They admit the near ending of the long idleness is extremely satisfactory to them and that they have won a great victory in gaining arbitration, but they feel that the real reward in putting up such a stubborn struggle is still to come in the award of the arbitration commission. The citizens of the entire region, however, are much elated that the strife is almost over, because business in the coal fields has been practically paralyzed since the strike began.

From the time the news was received, late Wednesday night, until about 10 o'clock yesterday morning, there was some doubt as to how the miners would receive the modified plan. President Mitchell was asked to make some expression on the proposition, but he steadfastly refused. He was pressed by the correspondents for a statement, and finally at 10 o'clock he cleared up the situation by issuing the following bulletin.

Statement Issued by Mitchell.

"Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 16, 1902.

"Appreciating the anxiety and impatience of the public and the mine workers for some authoritative statement from this office, I issue this bulletin to say that I was unalterably opposed to the acceptance of or acquiescence in the form of settlement proposed by the coal operators, because it restricted the president of the United States in selecting the men who were to determine the questions involved in the strike.

"These restrictions having been removed and a representative given to organized labor, as well as to organized capital, I am now prepared to give my personal approval to a settlement of the issues involved in this strike by the commission selected by the president; and shall recommend to the executive officers of Districts 1, 7 and 9, in their meeting today, that an immediate call be issued for a convention, whose authorization is necessary to declare the strike at an end.

"In the meantime I trust that the people of our country will be as patient as possible, as we are moving as rapidly as the interests of our people will permit.

JOHN MITCHELL,

"President United Mine Workers of America."

When this was read to the arriving district leaders and groups of miners who came to headquarters to learn the news, general satisfaction was expressed that Mr. Mitchell was willing to accept the modified plan, and from that time on there was no doubt that the strike would be brought to a speedy close. It was not until 2 o'clock that the 37 members of the three district boards were called into session, which lasted 2 hours and 15 minutes. There was some opposition manifested in the meeting against certain features of the plan, but after a full discussion of the objectionable parts a unanimous vote was taken to recommend to the convention on the acceptance of the proposition. As the conference was held behind closed doors and a bond of secrecy was placed on every man present, the specific objections were not officially announced. These are the same executive boards which, on May 8 last, ordered the strike to begin, which action was approved, in the face of Mr. Mitchell's opposition, by the Hazleton convention a few days later. It is expected that some objection will be raised on the floor of the convention, but the officers of the union are confident that opposition will disappear when President Mitchell explains all the features of the modified proposition to the delegates.

A question was raised yesterday as to whether Commissioner Wright, who will be the recorder of the commission, shall have the right to vote in case the six other members of the board are equally divided on any question in connection with a settlement. Mr. Mitchell, when asked, did not appear to be sure that he had not, and other officials of the union were also uncertain of Mr. Wright's status. The matter of the term of years that the agreement shall be in force was also a source of much inquiry. The union was strongly opposed to the operators fixing the term of years. One district president said this feature had been left to the discretion of the commission, as suggested in Mr. Mitchell's proposition, while other officials did not know anything about it. President Mitchell, for some reason, did not care to discuss any feature of the arbitration agreement while the matter was still in the hands of the miners.

May All Resume by Thursday.

If the plans of the strike leaders are not disarranged a general resumption of mining will take place about next Thursday. It is expected the convention will last two days and that there will be an interval of one day from the time the convention adjourns until the time set for the men to go back to the mines. If the convention should be in session on Wednesday, it is probable that resumption would not take place until Friday. There will not be much work at first for all the strikers, as it is the intention of the companies not to dismiss the non-union men who have stood by them during the strife. The organization will take care of such other men as are unable to immediately find work. It is estimated that all the strikers will not find work until two or three months have elapsed. This is due to the condition of the mines. Some of them are wholly or partially flooded and others need repairs.

GENERAL JAMES H. WILSON.

One of Arbitrators Appointed by the President.

It was a lively day around strike headquarters. From early morning until after the announcement was made that a convention would be called a crowd was congregated at the place. Mr. Mitchell spent an extremely busy day. In the morning he had many callers, who congratulated him, and in the afternoon he was engaged with the three district boards. Telegrams of congratulation from all parts of the country came to the leaders of the miners during the day.

GALLEY TWO—Strike

Companies Prepare to Resume.

The coal companies, anticipating the end of the strike next week, are busily engaged in preparing for resumption. Tens of thousands of coal cars are in the regions ready for loading and extra efforts will be made in moving them to the large distributing centers once mining is resumed. It is estimated that more than 200 of the 300 collieries will be in operation by the end of next week, and will produce enough coal to relieve the situation. An authority in coal mining said yesterday the coal companies, as a result of the strike, are 30,000,000 of tons behind.

There is considerable talk heard that the withdrawal of the troops will begin in a day or two, but this cannot be confirmed. The soldiers are spending their time quietly in the camps. Major General Miller, in command of the entire force in the field, inspected the camp of the Ninth regiment here yesterday and also those of the Eighth, which is divided between Nanticoke and Plymouth.

Official Call For Convention.

Wilkesbarre, Oct. 17.—The following is the official call for the delegate convention of the anthracite districts of the United Mine Workers of America, to be held here next Monday:

"Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 16, 1902.

"To the Officers and Members of all Local Unions in Districts 1, 7 and 9.

"Gentlemen: At a meeting of the executive boards of Districts 1, 7 and 9 it was unanimously agreed to issue a call for a delegate convention and recommend to that convention that all mine workers now on strike return to their former positions and working places, and submit to the commission appointed by the president of the United States all questions at issue between the operators and mine workers of the anthracite coal fields.

"In pursuance whereof you are hereby notified that a convention will be held in the city of Wilkesbarre, Pa., beginning at 10 a. m., Monday, Oct. 20.

"The purpose of the convention will be to act upon the proposition submitted by the president of the United States.

"Local unions will hold meetings not later than Friday night and elect delegates to attend said convention.

Basis of Representation.

"The basis of representation will be one vote for each 100 members or less, and an additional one for each additional 100 members or major fraction thereof. The president and secretary of each local union will fill out one credential and one duplicate credential for each delegate elected. The duplicate credential should be given to the delegate elected and the original should be placed in the hands of the district board members not later than Saturday night. The district board members are instructed to have all credentials in the hands of the credential committee Sunday afternoon.

"It is recommended that delegates be given full power and authority to act in behalf of their local unions.

"The name of the hall in which the convention will be held will be announced later. Hotel accommodations are being arranged and will be announced to delegates upon their arrival.

"Respectfully submitted on behalf of the executive boards of Districts 1, 7 and 9.

"President U. M. W. of A.
"W. B. WILSON,

"GEORGE HARTOLINE,
"Secretary of meeting."

SOME APPOINTEES ACCEPTED

President Roosevelt Received a Long Telegram From President Mitchell Yesterday.

Washington, Oct. 17.—There was received at the White House last night quite a long telegram from Mr. Mitchell, of the Mine Workers' union, in reply to a message the president had wired him Wednesday, giving the final result of the strike agreement, with certain suggestions from the president, that had been accomplished. It was the president's wish to have a speedy resumption of mining. Mr. Mitchell's response gave what had been done in Wilkesbarre yesterday toward declaring the strike off.

It was not made public last night.

Acceptance of places on the commission have been received from Mr. Parker and some other members of the commission.

OPERATOR IS PLEASED.

Likes President's Appointees—Illinois Man Praises Spalding.

New York, Oct. 17.—During yesterday afternoon Presidents Truesdale, Fowler and Underwood and Chairman Thomas called at Mr. Morgan's office. President Underwood was asked what he thought of the commission appointed Wednesday night by President Roosevelt.

"It is a good commission," he said. "Nobody could have appointed a better one."

Asked if that was the general opinion of the operators, Mr. Underwood replied:

"I don't know. I haven't seen any of the operators since the appointment was made.

The president of a coal road was asked how soon the coal stringency would be relieved by the developments of the last couple of days.

"The stringency is ended now," he said. "You must remember that everybody has been holding up in case of an emergency until certain of a supply from the mines. All this stored coal will now be released and will be brought to New York."

Asked how soon New York might receive this supply, the speaker said:

"In about two weeks, I should say."

Robert C. Grier, secretary of the Peoria (Ills.) board of trade, was seen yesterday afternoon in Wall street. He was asked regarding the appointment of Bishop Spalding as one of the commission to arbitrate the coal difficulties.

"Protestants and Catholics alike," he said, "in the vicinity of Peoria will commend the appointment of Bishop Spalding. No better ecclesiastical selection could have been made. He is a man of great charity and of wide influence throughout the soft coal district, of which Peoria is a center. I saw Bishop Spaulding less than a week ago and he expressed at that time great sympathy with the coal miners."

President Castro's Artillery Reduced From 15 to 4 Guns.

Willemstad, Oct. 17.—The battle near La Victoria, Venezuela, between the army commanded by President Castro and the revolutionary forces, which began Monday morning and resulted in the retirement of President Castro to La Victoria Tuesday afternoon, was resumed again fiercely at 5 o'clock Wednesday morning. At that time the president had over 6,000 men engaged against 7,000 revolutionists.

The artillery played a part never before seen in Venezuela. Shortly before 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon the revolutionists appeared to have gained a slight advantage. The president's artillery, which numbered 15 guns, had been reduced to four guns.

La Victoria was crowded with wounded, and there were no provisions in the town.

Little Creatures About Our Homes

VIII.—House Flies and Other Flies.

OF the diptera, or two winged insects, the common house fly is probably the best known, for it is found wherever man makes his home. This last fact is so well authenticated that were a roving crew of some vessel to find the domestic fly on some newly discovered island in midocean they would be safe in concluding that the island was then inhabited by human beings or that it had been so inhabited at no very distant period. In spite of this fact, but comparatively few persons ever pay any attention to this little domestic pest except to devise some means of ridding themselves of its presence in their homes. If very strong green tea be well sweetened, flies will sip it with avidity, and it is a sure poison to them, but good screens and absolute cleanliness are the surest preventives.

Despite its being seemingly an "unmitigated nuisance," the fly is a very interesting little creature when studied. The body is divided by well marked constrictions into head, thorax and abdomen. The head is large and is supplied with two very large compound eyes, made up of about 8,000 simple eyes, or ocelli. Besides these compound eyes, it has three simple eyes above and between the others. The mouth is only a little tube or proboscis, which is bent backward under the body when not in use. There is a fleshy, tonguelike organ, ending in two soft, flat organs somewhat rough on the under surface, and it is these which tickle the top of a bald head or other exposed spot when the fly licks the surface to obtain the matter thrown out through the pores of the skin. There are also two rather short antennæ, or feelers, three-jointed and having feathery ends. To the thorax are attached the two wings and six slender legs. The wings are transparent and are moved very rapidly in flight, about twice as rapidly as the wings of a bee and forty times as fast as those of the butterfly, or between 300 and 400 times a second. The feet have two claws facing each other, and between these are two soft pads covered with hairlike tubes which secrete a sticky fluid. The claws enable them to hold firmly to rough surfaces, and the sticky secretion to smooth surfaces, though some authors contend that air pressure rather than adhesion is the force that enables the fly to walk back downward on a smooth surface and others that the two forces act together.

The fly, like other insects, does not breathe through the mouth, but through little holes in the surface of the body. These are called spiracles and are so guarded by interlacing fibers that foreign matter cannot enter. The spiracles open into little tubes, which are kept from collapsing by minute spiral springs, and some of them lead to little air sacks or rudimentary lungs, while others ramify and are distributed to all parts of the body, even the membranous wings, where they are easily traced. What we see in the wings, however, are blood vessels, each having a still smaller air tube inside of it, so that the blood is aerated while circulating through the system.

The eggs of the house fly are laid in dung and soon hatch into little maggots, which feed upon the organic matter surrounding them and grow very rapidly. In fact, the entire growth of the insect is made during this stage of its existence. This accounts for the fact that the house flies which we see are nearly all of the same size. Of course we see small flies and large flies, but they are not of the same species.

Flies live on liquid food, which they lap up with the fleshy tongue. They are very fond of sweet things, which, when found in a solid state like sugar, they dissolve with their own saliva and then lap up the sirupy fluid. A few flies manage to get into some place where they survive the rigor of our winters, and it is thought that these are the progenitors of the swarms that annoy us the following summer. It is possible, however, that some of the maggots, or some of the pupæ, live through the winter and assist in the propagation of the species.

The house fly has a body about three-eighths of an inch long. The maggots grow to a little more than that length, and then the soft white skin hardens and changes to a very light brown color. This pupa form lies apparently dormant for a time, but during this period a wonderful change is wrought. The wingless, legless and almost headless maggot has changed to the lively creature we have been endeavoring to describe, and it comes forth from its pupa case full grown and fully matured to sip a few sweets, propagate its species and die.

Flies make their appearance in considerable numbers during July, and by the end of August they have multiplied enormously and are then the pest of the household, especially if the house be located near stables or manure piles.

There is another species closely resembling the common domestic fly. Its proboscis is longer and more slender, and it is not quite so large. It is known as the stable fly. It is a wicked little creature and torments animals most cruelly by its piercing bite, for by the aid of little lancets much finer than a needle point it will penetrate their thick skins and cause a smarting pain. It frequently attacks mankind and will immediately return to the attack when driven away. We seldom see it about our houses except late in summer or early in autumn, when it is most common. Sometimes it is driven into houses for shelter on the approach of foul weather. Like the house fly, it lays its eggs in dung, and the young are hatched there and pass through the same changes from larva, or maggot, to pupa and from pupa to imago, or mature insect.

In all the lower orders of insects we find that the female is careful to deposit her eggs where the young when hatched will be likely to find an abundance of the kind of food they need, and many of the insect larvæ, being flesh eaters, become important to man as scavengers. Among the scavengers of the insect tribes some of the flies rank very high. Linnæus is authority for the statement that the larvæ, or maggots, from three females of the species of flies commonly known as bluebottles will devour the carcass of a horse as quickly as a lion would, and when we consider the fact that the flesh fly, a near relative of the bluebottle, is very prolific, so much so that a single female will produce 20,000 larvæ, each of which will, under favorable circumstances, increase in weight two hundred fold in twenty-four hours, we can easily see how the above statement may be true. Few fully realize how much we owe to insects for devouring decaying animal matter. In this order of insects diptera the one most injurious to man from a pecuniary point of view is probably the Hessian fly. This fly, though very small, does an immense amount of damage to the wheat crop of the United States annually, some years destroying many millions of dollars' worth. Nor is this all, for rye and barley are also much injured by it.

The body of this little fly is not more than one-tenth of an inch long, and its abdomen is about two-thirds of that length. The legs and the many jointed feelers, surrounded by whorls of short hairs, are long and slender. The wings are almost without veins. The balancers—two little rods with knobs on the outer ends—situated just back of the wings, are very prominent, considering the size of the insect. In form it resembles the crane fly, which looks so much like a gigantic mosquito. The specific name of the Hessian fly is destructor. It lays about twenty eggs in the crease of the wheat leaf over the midrib when the plant is only a few inches in height. These are hatched in about a week into little footless maggots, which crawl down the leaf into the sheath around the stalk and there live on the juices of the plant. Two or three of these maggots will suck the life out of a wheat plant, and it soon withers and dies. The pupæ resembles flaxseed in form and color. These in some cases are found in the straw, but they are usually left in the stubble. The best known method of destroying this pest is by burning the stubble soon after harvest. The Hessian fly should not be considered identical with the wheat fly, so destructive to that grain in England and at one time in the eastern part of this country. The wheat fly deposits its eggs in the corolla of the wheat flower, and the maggots eat out the heart of the flower and render it abortive. The Hessian fly was first seen in this country in 1776 on Long island and is thought to have been imported in some straw brought over by the Hessian soldiers; hence the name.

There are three species of diptera, closely related and called respectively the bottfly, the gadfly and the breeze fly, which demand attention.

The bottfly glues its eggs to the hairs on the legs and sides of the horse where they can be reached by the horse's tongue and leaves them to their fate. When about ready to hatch, the licking of the horse breaks the egg, and the little maggot adheres to the tongue and is swallowed with the food passing into the stomach of the horse, where it fastens itself by two little hooks and there remains until full grown. It then releases itself and passes on out of the body and completes its metamorphosis in the ground.

The gadfly pierces the skin of the ox, sometimes of the horse, in several places and deposits an egg in each puncture. When the egg hatches, the irritation caused by the maggot under the skin of the ox causes swelling and the formation of pus, upon which the maggot feeds until ready to enter into the pupa state, then it backs out of the hole which it has kept open for the admission of air and drops to the ground, where it finishes its transformation into a fly.

The breeze fly lays its eggs in the nostrils of the sheep, and the young maggots stay in the sinuses of the sheep's head until full grown and then drop to the ground to complete those mysterious changes that awaken our wonder and admiration. None of these animals is very much injured by the insects.

As there are more than 20,000 species of diptera, or flies, the field is certainly large enough to furnish new and interesting facts to any who care to investigate.

FACTS NOT FICTION

A Plain Statement of a Bad Condition And a Cure That Never Fails.

Mr. Cyrus Hanselman, of No. 279 Sugar street, East Liverpool, Ohio says: 'Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills are a fine medicine. It has done for me more to cure my old rheumatism than anything I ever took. The rheumatism had hung on for five or six years and was all in the legs and shoulders. I could not sleep and at times could not move with pain. I was told of the Nerve Pills and got them at Larkins' Drug Store and they took hold finely, something nothing else ever did—the pain and stiffness is about gone. I am feeling strong and get about and sleep well. It won't take many more to cure me completely."

NOTABLE COLLEGE EVENT.

How Princeton Is to Be Honored at Inauguration of Its President.

The inauguration of Dr. Woodrow Wilson as president of Princeton university, which is to take place Oct. 25, will be made notable by the presence of President Roosevelt and ex-President Cleveland. President Roosevelt will be on the platform with ex-President Cleveland, Dr. Patton, the late head of Princeton, and Dr. Wilson. The latter three will make addresses. President Roosevelt may speak, but that has not been definitely fixed.

After the inaugural exercises Dr. Wilson will turn the first soil for a dormitory to be erected by the class of

'79. The members of the class will reserve the first right to the rooms for their sons who will enter Princeton.

Dr. Wilson's election to the presidency of Princeton last June was the surprise of the college commencement season. Up to the time of its occurrence there had been no intimation that Dr. Patton intended to resign.

Dr. Woodrow Wilson is a native of Staunton, Va., where he first saw the light forty-six years ago. He was a member of the famous class of '79 at Princeton. It was only recently that this class did what no other class has done. It presented to the university a dormitory to cost $100,000.

After his graduation Dr. Wilson studied law and for a time practiced at Atlanta, Ga. He then took a postgraduate course at Johns Hopkins university. After leaving Johns Hopkins he became professor of history at Bryn Mawr college, and from 1888 to 1890 he was professor of history and political economy at Wesleyan university. In 1890 he returned to Princeton as professor of politics and jurisprudence, which chair he retained until his election as president.

Dr. Wilson was married in June, 1885, to Miss Ellen Louise Axson. They have three children, all girls.

Knew What to Do With It.

A miserly landlord was going round collecting his rents the other day. At one house he was greatly interested in a little girl who watched, open mouthed and open eyed, the business of paying over the money and accepting the receipt.

He patted her on the head and started out to search his pockets, saying, "I must see what I have got for you." After searching his pockets for some time he at last brought from a remote corner a peppermint. As he handed it to the girl he said, "And now what will you do with that?"

The little girl looked at it, then at him and replied, "Wash it."—London Answers.

OHIO REPORTS GOOD RESULTS.

Republican Rule Results In Reduced Taxation.

OVER $3,000,000 A YEAR SAVED.

More Than Half the State Tax Rate Taken Off the People and Put Upon Corporations Under Laws Resisted by Democrats.

Governor George K. Nash in his speech at Sidney talks entirely about state affairs, making a most complete report of the results of Republican rule. Other parts will be printed later, the present quotation being of the part of the address relating directly to taxation. Governor Nash, upon this point, stated these facts, which are, absolutely beyond all controversy:

In the Democratic platform it is asserted that "under the long continued control of the Republican party in this state, monopoly has been fostered and protected, the farmer and the small home owner have been burdened with excessive taxes, that the beneficiaries and favorites of that party might be permitted to escape their just share of the public burdens." As to how much truth there is in this allegation, let us judge by the votes and acts of the Democratic members of the general assembly of Ohio at the session of that general assembly commencing on the first Monday in January of this year and ending on the 12th day of May. A scheme of taxation was devised by the Republican members of that body and put in force by the enactment of various laws by which it was possible to reduce the rate of taxation for state purposes upon the personal property of the citizens of Ohio, and upon the real estate, including the lands of the "farmer and the small home owner," from 28 9-10 cents per $100 to 13½ cents. By this reduction of the state levy the owners of personal property, the owners of real property, of farms and small homes in Ohio, will be relieved during each of the ensuing two years of paying the enormous sum of $3,080,000.

This was made possible, partly by not raising more money than the state actually needed; partly by compelling the insurance companies doing business in Ohio to pay 2½ per cent of their gross receipts into the state treasury; partly by levying upon domestic corporations a tax of one-tenth of 1 per cent upon their issued and outstanding capital stock; partly by levying upon foreign corporations a tax of one-tenth of 1 per cent upon their capital stock employed in doing business in Ohio, and partly by an excise law which will compel, during the next year, electric light companies, artificial gas companies, natural gas companies, street railway companies, waterworks companies, express companies, telephone companies, telegraph companies, sleeping car and freight line companies and railway companies to pay 1 per cent of their gross earnings, which will this year amount to the sum of $1,429,818, to the support of the state government. Every one of these bills was made a law against the solid vote of the Democratic members of the house of representatives except three.

That part of the Democratic platform which I have just quoted is untrue. During the last session of the general assembly the burden of taxatiton upon personal property and real estate, upon the farm and upon the small home, was materially reduced, and the burden was transferred in great part to the corporations of the state and to foreign corporatiotns. All this was done against the protests and the votes of the Democratic members of the general assembly.

I regret to say that all the people of Ohio do not receive the benefit of the reduction made by the state of Ohio, 15 4-10 cents upon the $100, in her rate of taxation. In the city of Cleveland during the ensuing year the rate of taxation per $100 will be $3.05; in the city of Toledo it will be $2.96; in the city of Columbus it will be $2.75, and in the city of Cincinnati it will be $2.31. In Cleveland, where Mayor Tom L. Johnson reigns supreme, the rate of taxation last year was $2.67 upon the $100. Under his management the 15 4-10 cents upon the $100 has been entirely consumed by local taxation and has been increased 38 cents upon the $100. In one year local taxation in Cleveland has been increased 53 4-10 cents upon the $100.

In Toledo the rate of taxation last year was $3.04 on the $100, in Columbus $2.85 and in Cincinnati $2.48. In Toledo, where Samuel M. Jones, a "Simon pure" Democrat of the new school, is mayor, the rate of taxation for local purposes has been increased 7 4-10 cents upon the $100, and all but 8 cents upon the $100 given by the state has been consumed. In Columbus, where J. N. Hinkle, a Democrat, is mayor, local taxation has been increased 5 cents upon the $100, and the people have been deprived of all but 10¼ cents upon the $100 of the benefit conferred upon them by the state. In Cincinnati, where Julius Fleischmann, a Republican, is mayor, surrounded by Republican officials, the people get the benefit of all the reduction made by the state, and in addition thereto the local taxation is shows that Treasurer Lander in the following February (1900) filed his answer, in which he said the property had been placed on the duplicate after a full hearing of Johnson's attorneys. Johnson had been notified, said Lander, but had failed to appear before the auditor and show he did not own the property with which he was charged. Later Johnson's attorneys filed a reply to that answer, purely technical in its character, and there the matter has rested.

Johnson's apologists now claim that it is up to Cuyahoga county to make the next move, but if he has dodged no taxes and has turned in the millions of personal property which he claims to own, instead of concealing it, the way of an honest man, frank and open, would be to go into the matter at once, without any three years' delay or any intervention of attorneys, and show that his hands are clean and without one "damned spot" upon them.

Instead, Johnson practically acknowledges his immense wealth. The amount of it claimed as concealed from taxation was, in 1894, $850,000; 1895, $1,000,000; 1896, $1,200,000; 1897, $1,450,000; 1898, $2,350,000; 1899, $3,054,000. Even on the basis of the railroads, according to Tom's own speeches, this would rate him as worth $15,000,000 in 1899. Since then he is understood to have sold his immense Brooklyn street railroad interests, amounting to many millions, but none of it has ever got upon the Ohio tax duplicate, not one cent.

Three more years are thus to be accounted for. This year, while mayor of Cleveland, he made his tax return under oath, putting in less than $15,000, and only $3,000 of it was in cash, with no stocks or bonds or any of the other things required under the statutes of Ohio, which he, as mayor of its largest city, has taken special oath to maintain and defend. If ever there was a clear case of concealment of property from tax appraisement and payment, here it is. It is the most flagrant tax-dodging that Ohio has known, considering the official position of the offender, and his campaign for "just taxation" addressed to the entire state. No wonder that his followers are worried to death about it and want nothing said about it before the voters.

Johnson's attitude, however, is one of defiance. His closest newspaper organ uses these words: "Johnson has repeatedly told the men who have brought the suit that he will not only pay the taxes claimed in full, but will give them half the property if they will find it for him." He don't deny its existence by this, but simply says that "I have got it hid away so carefully, so completely, that no one can get at it. I have plenty of money for all kinds of purposes, millions of it, but not one cent for just taxation."

WHEN MILLS WERE IDLE.

Shall Over-Confidence Call Those Times Back Again?

In his speech at Steubenville, Senator Hanna, referred to the evidences of thrift and prosperity wherever he had gone, particularly all through that section, and said:

If there is any danger in this campaign in Ohio or in the United States, it is because the people are too well satisfied with their environment; too apt to be apathetic; too apt to forget their duty. Therefore, I say, if I have any work to do in this campaign, it is not only to admonish the boys to stand pat, but to admonish every Republican who has any interest at stake to realize the responsibility that rests upon him and him only. This responsibility, which so affects our well being, good government and good morals, is a responsibility that can not be divided. Your neighbor's shoulders are not broad enough to help you. Therefore let us at the opening of this campaign realize the responsibility, and yet appreciating the good things that have come to us at the hands of the Republican party and the prosperity which has only just begun, if we are faithful to our trust and which is the price of vigilance and duty, and the continuation of which must be had by the action of the people themselves.

I come only to sound that note of warning to my fellow citizens, to avoid the apathetic conditions that sometimes follow closely after great victories. Don't feel that your victory is done, nor half done, for it is not. The duty you owe to society and your neighbors is just as much a part of politics as the success of the candidates. Aye more. If the principles of your party have brought results satisfactory to the country; if the promises made through all these years have been faithfully kept; is it not enough of an inspiration for every man to take home to his fireside?

Change that house of representatives and give over the control of that body to the Democratic party, and what will follow? I will wait, you will wait, to see the effect of it. Every man who is engaged in any enterprise or business will wait to see how that change will affect his interest, what will be the effect on the money market, and that waiting will slow down the wheels of industry, and the waiting will continue just as long as that house is Democratic. Therefore, people of Ohio, take warning and don't indulge in the fallacy that it would make but little difference to your conditions if that result should follow.

"The Democratic party has neither a man to lead nor a principal to espouse this year."—William C. Whitney, Democratic Secretary of the Navy, 1885-1889.

MEET OF THE W. C. T. U.

THE COMING CONVENTION TO BE HELD IN PORTLAND, ME.

Spread of the Movement Over the World—How Lady Henry Somerset Became Interested—Signed the Pledge With Her Tenants.

Among all the noted temperance advocates and workers for improved social conditions who will meet in Portland, Me., on Oct. 17, at the convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance union none is better known or will be more warmly received than Lady Henry Somerset, president of the British Woman's Temperance association. Lady Somerset comes as a delegate from the English organization, which is the largest in Great Britain.

The Woman's Christian Temperance union originated in the United States twenty-eight years ago. It was the Hillsboro (O.) antisaloon crusade, followed by similar movements in Fredonia, N. Y., and Washington Court House, O., which led to the foundation of the organization at Chautauqua in 1874.

For ten years the organization was confined to this country, and not until 1885 did England follow the example of the American women by establishing a similar society. The British Woman's Temperance association was founded by Mrs. Margaret Bright-Lucas, the sister of John Bright, the great statesman. The movement gained much favor in that country and found many supporters among the ladies of the English aristocracy.

Lady Henry Somerset became so interested in one of the late Frances Willard's books that she began to correspond with the author and soon became one of the most active workers of the young organization. When Mrs. Lucas because of ill health was compelled to resign, Lady Henry Somerset was elected president. She invited Miss Willard to be her guest in England, and during the year the American organizer spent with Lady Somerset the British society was fashioned after the American pattern.

Although the English organization carried on its work with considerable success, the American association took the initiative in every effort to extend the movement beyond the limits of the United States and England. With this object in view the first missionary was sent out, Mrs. Mary Clement Leavitt of Boston, who devoted six years of labor to the interests of the cause. She visited India, Japan, South America and other countries and met with encouraging success.

Thanks to the unceasing efforts of the mother organization, there are at present similar organizations in nearly every country of the world.

The rapid increase of the movement during the first ten years of its existence suggested the idea of uniting the various organizations into a world's union and a convention of delegates representing the branch societies. Again the American women took the initiative and called a world's convention of the Women's Christian Temperance unions, which was held in Boston in 1891. There the world's organization was founded and an agreement reached to hold biennial world's conventions, in which all branches of the organization should be represented by delegates.

Isabel, Lady Mary Somerset, is the eldest daughter of the Earl and Countess of Somers and is fifty-one years old. She was married in 1872 to Lord Henry Somerset and since 1885 has been active in temperance and philanthropic work. She began the crusade against the liquor traffic which has given her worldwide fame by publicly signing the pledge with forty of her tenants in the village of Leilbury.

Her tenants in London, numbering nearly 100,000, next claimed her attention, and by doing mission work in the London slums and giving fetes at Eastnor castle to as many as 10,000 at a time she did a noble work. As editor of the Woman's Signal and leader of the Temperance association she has exerted a great influence.

WILCOX'S LETTER RECEIVED.

Tells President Miners Are Restraining Interstate Commerce.

Washington, Oct. 11.—President Roosevelt has received the communication from David Wilcox, of the Delaware and Hudson Railroad company, and has referred it, together with the former one, of which Mr. Wilcox speaks, to the attorney general.

New York, Oct. 11.—David Wilcox, vice president and counsel for the Delaware and Hudson Railroad company, and one of those present at the recent conference, called by President Roosevelt, at Washington, has sent to President Roosevelt a letter demanding that the federal government proceed against the miners' organization in the courts on the ground that it is a conspiracy to prevent interstate commerce.

Mr. Wilcox, it is said on authority, represents all the coal operators in this action, and was selected as their spokesman. The letter was made public in this city yesterday, together with a letter written several months ago to the president along the same lines.

The Earth's Other Motion.

The earth, in addition to its diurnal and annual revolutions, has a slow wabbling of its axis, a motion seldom mentioned even in the textbooks of astronomy. This curious motion may be properly likened to that imparted to a top by a touch of the finger on its rim when it is in rapid movement, the touch causing the upper end of the top's stem to describe a small circle. So, too, the mighty sun lays hold of the rim of the great terrestrial top, and it begins to oscillate in the long period of 21,000 years—that is to say, on Dec. 21, 1248, the earth made its nearest approach to the sun, and it will approach equally near in 10,500 years from that time, or on the 21st day of June in the year 11,748. This has all to do with climate both north and south of the equatorial line.

In the period comprising the first our northern winters are short and mild and our summers are long and sunny. But during the period of which the year 11,748 will be the middle our winters will be awful in their severity and our summers short and cool. Even now the northern hemisphere is slowly but surely losing its long, sunny summers, and if you should live until the winter of the year 11,748-49 you could tell a story of cold and snows that would pale to insignificance the stories of the cold winter of 1833-34, for the whole northern hemisphere will then be in the midst of its great and terrible winter.

The Kingfisher.

Koskomenos, the kingfisher, still burrows in the earth like his reptile ancestors. Therefore the other birds call him outcast and will have nothing to do with him. But he cares little for that, being a clattering, rattle headed, self satisfied fellow, who seems to do nothing all day long but fish and eat. As you follow him, however, you note with amazement that he does some things marvelously well—better, indeed, than any other of the wood folk. To locate a fish accurately in still water is difficult enough when one thinks of light refraction, but when the fish is moving and the sun glares down into the pool and the wind wrinkles its face into a thousand flashing, changing furrows and ridges, then the bird that can point a bill straight to his fish and hit him fair just behind the gills must have more in his head than the usual chattering gossip that one hears from him on the trout streams.—Country Life In America.

The Next Speaker

Men Who Would Wield the Gavel Henderson Is to Lay Down : : :

THE unexpected refusal of Speaker David B. Henderson to become a candidate for re-election in the Third congressional district of Iowa, which has ten times sent him to congress, has given rise to much speculation among Republicans as to his probable successor as speaker of the house of representatives.

Among Republicans, who expect to control the Fifty-eighth congress, there is much talk of Henderson's successor. Some of the names most frequently mentioned are J. G. Cannon of Illinois, James S. Sherman of New York, T. E. Burton of Ohio, Charles E. Littlefield of Maine and J. W. Babcock of Wisconsin. Besides these C. H. Grosvenor of Ohio and E. H. Bingham and John Dalzell of Pennsylvania have been discussed as possibilities for the high position.

Mr. Sherman of New York was the principal opponent of Henderson three years ago, but the candidacy of Sereno E. Payne, also of New York, made it impossible for an Empire State man to land the place.

Mr. Sherman is one of the best presiding officers the house has ever had, as he has had ample opportunities to show as chairman of the committee of the whole house on the state of the Union.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon was a candidate three years ago, but A. J. Hopkins of the same state also came out for speaker and divided the Illinois delegation, thus killing Cannon's chances.

Littlefield, the "man from Maine," is regarded by some as too new a member to be invested with the dignity and power of the speakership. Besides, he has not always acted with his party. He opposed the Porto Rico bill and the Cuban reciprocity measure, and the Republicans, if they control the next house, may not feel like putting him forward. Still, he is a strong possibility.

Burton of Ohio is not fully in accord with Mr. Hanna and might find it difficult to get the delegation from his state. Burton is serving his fifth term in congress and is chairman of the rivers and harbors committee. Congressman Grosvenor of Ohio is serving his eighth term in congress. His ability and experience fit him for the position, but he has the handicap of age, having begun his seventieth year.

The two Pennsylvania men, Dalzell and Bingham, are both veterans in congress. Mr. Bingham has seen nearly a quarter of a century of service in the house, having been elected continuously since he entered the Forty-sixth congress. Mr. Bingham is the "father of the house." Mr. Dalzell is serving his eighth term and is considered a strong man. He ranks second on the ways and means committee.

Babcock of Wisconsin is a man who must be reckoned with. He is in a strong position, and the contest may be between him and Cannon. They are about equal as to parliamentary skill.

Mr. Babcock is chairman of the congressional campaign committee of his party and in that place has put a number of men under obligations to him. He fairly represents the sentiment out west on the tariff and trust issues.

Cannon and Babcock are men of about the same intellectual caliber. Neither is brilliant; both are hardheaded, common sense men with very few illusions about anything.

But should the Republican expectations be wrong and the Democrats win the house there will be no lack of aspirants for the speaker's job. Mr. Richardson of Tennessee was the party candidate against Henderson in the last and in this congress. He is an admirable presiding officer, having often been tried in that capacity. It is not likely, however, that he would have a walkover for the speakership.

Mr. De Armond of Missouri was Mr. Richardson's opponent for the minority nomination for speaker last year. He has been mentioned as the possible successor of Henderson should the Democrats win. Whether or not he could land it is an open question.

Mr. Griggs of Georgia, chairman of the Democratic campaign committee, will undoubtedly be pushed by his friends in case of victory for the Democrats. Mr. Underwood of Georgia, the Democratic whip, will also have a chance should there be a deadlock among the leaders in the race.

Williams of Mississippi is said to be also in the field. He is a man of education, a fine lawyer, a thorough parliamentarian and a finished orator. He is thoroughly qualified for the position should it come his way.

Since the adoption of the constitution there have been thirty-three speakers formally elected, besides several who have been appointed speakers pro tempore for a period of ten days. The speaker of the First congress was Frederick Augustus Conrad Muhlenburg of Pennsylvania. He was also speaker of the Third congress.

The most distinguished of the early speakers and the man who was oftenest elected to that office was Henry Clay of Kentucky. He entered the house in the Twelfth congress after having already served short periods in the senate. He was chosen speaker on the first day of his appearance as a member of the house and is the only man who never sat in that body except as speaker. Twice he resigned from the house, but on re-entering that body was elected speaker again, quite as a matter of course. Altogether Clay was elected speaker in six congresses.

The next oftenest was Andrew Stevenson of Virginia, who was elected four times, resigning the last time to go as minister to England. The only speakers to have three full consecutive terms and no more were Nathaniel Macon of North Carolina, Schuyler Colfax of Indiana, James G. Blaine of Maine and John G. Carlisle of Kentucky. Thomas B. Reed of Maine has had three terms, but two congresses intervened between his first and second terms.

Samuel J. Randall of Pennsylvania was elected speaker three times successively, but the first time was for the second or short session of the Forty-fourth congress as the successor of Michael C. Kerr of Indiana, who had died during the recess of that congress.

Those who have had two consecutive terms and no more were Jonathan Dayton of New Jersey, Joseph B. Varnum of Massachusetts, James K. Polk of Tennessee, Linn Boyd of Kentucky, Charles F. Crisp of Georgia and David B. Henderson of Iowa. Henderson was the first congressman from west of the Mississippi to be elected speaker. The other speakers had one term only.

DIPLOMATIC CORPS.

Shifting of Our Representatives Abroad Is In Each Case a Promotion—New Minister to Brazil Was Once a Day Laborer.

The recent changes in the diplomatic service, by which five experienced representatives of the United States in foreign countries receive new portfolios and one man is appointed from private life to enter the field of diplomacy, are the direct results of the retirement of Embassador Andrew D. White from the post at Berlin.

The appointments, which go into effect Nov. 1, are promotions for merit in the case of the men already in the service, while the new man, although lacking diplomatic experience, is not unknown in public life.

In pursuance of his policy of recognizing the merit system in this branch of the public service, President Roosevelt has advanced Charlemagne Tower, now embassador to Russia, to the more important portfolio in Germany to be vacated by Mr. White. Robert S. McCormick goes from Austria-Hungary to Russia. Bellamy Storer, minister to Spain, becomes embassador to the Austrian empire. Arthur S. Hardy moves from Switzerland to Spain. Charles Page Bryan graduates from Brazil to Switzerland. The new man, David C. Thompson of Nebraska, follows Mr. Bryan to Brazil.

Charlemagne Tower of Philadelphia belongs to a well known family of that city and is descended from John Tower of Norfolk, England, who settled in Hingham, Mass., in 1637. Mr. Tower, who is now in his fifty-fifth year, is a graduate of Harvard university.

In 1878 he was admitted to the bar of Pennsylvania, but has not given much time to the practice of his profession. He is a director of the Lehigh Coal company and of the Reading Coal and Iron company. Mr. Tower is the author of a work on the "Marquis de Lafayette In the American Revolution." President McKinley nominated Mr. Tower for minister to Austria-

CHARLEMAGNE TOWER.

Hungary in March, 1897, and on Jan. 10, 1899, he was appointed embassador to Russia.

Robert S. McCormick of Chicago is a son of the great reaper manufacturer. He is about fifty years old and has always been prominent in literary circles. He rose from work as a reporter on the Chicago Tribune to an editorial post and married a daughter of Joseph Medill, proprietor of that paper, and since Mr. Medill's death has been associated with Robert Patterson, the other son-in-law, in the ownership and management of the property.

He was nominated for envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Austria-Hungary by President McKinley on March 6, 1901, was promptly confirmed by the senate and commissioned the next day. Largely through his representations the post was raised to the dignity of an embassadorship on March 27 of this year. Mr. McCormick is at present in this country.

The new embassador to Austria-Hungary, Bellamy Storer of Cincinnati, is a native of Ohio and is fifty-five years old. He is a lawyer and made his first entry into public life as a member of the Fifty-second congress. He was re-elected to the Fifty-third and was a member of the foreign affairs committee. He is a man of large private means. He was made minister to Spain in 1899.

Charles Page Bryan is a native of Chicago, but spent his youth in Washington, his father for many years being one of the commissioners of the District of Columbia. He is a graduate of the University of Virginia and of the Columbian law school, Washington. In 1897 President McKinley appointed him minister to China, but at his own request he was sent to Brazil instead, Mr. Conger being transferred from Brazil to China.

David E. Thompson of Nebraska is now in his forty-ninth year. Born on a farm in Michigan, he was left an orphan before his ninth birthday. Until his thirteenth year he worked on the farm and went to school. Then four years were spent in a jeweler's shop. Close confinement injured his health, and he entered the service of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad in June, 1872, as truckman in the freighthouse at Lincoln, Neb. The record of his rise from this position to a place among the most wealthy, influential and successful business men of the west reads like a fairy tale. On March 19, 1901, he was nominated by the Republicans for the short term in the United States senate.

SENATORS QUAY AND CASSATT.

Rumor They Conferred With Him, In Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Oct. 11.—Senators Quay and Penrose arrived here from New York last evening and immediately disappeared. It was reported but the rumor could not be verified, that they were in consultation with President Cassat, of the Pennsylvania railroad, until a late hour.

Up to midnight Senator Quay had not appeared at the Hotel Walton, his stopping place in this city, nor did he present himself at Republican state headquarters.

Shortly before the arrival of the senators President Cassat met President Baer, of the Reading company, on the latter's return from New York. After a brief conversation Mr. Baer went to his home.

Senator Penrose was scheduled last night to attend a meeting of business men at Pottsville, at which Secretary of the Treasury Shaw delivered an address. Mr. Penrose, however, did not go to Pottsville, which adds strength to the belief that matters of importance pertaining to the miners' strike were considered by the senators after their arrival here.

No one saw Senator Quay leave the railroad station, although it is known that Senator Penrose proceeded to his home, where he remained only a few minutes.

Needed For Other Purposes.

A Georgia justice recently married a runaway couple who drove up to his house and went through the ceremony without descending from the carriage. When the ceremony was over, says the Atlanta Constitution, the groom fumbled in his pockets and fished up thirty-six cents.

"Jedge," he said, "this here's all the money I got in the world. Ef you've a mind to take it, you kin, but I'll say now that I done set it aside fer the honeymoon expenses."

Her Opportunity.

"They say she isn't happy," commented the neighbor, "but I don't see why."

"Oh, some people never are satisfied."

"That's right, and it's her own fault if she isn't happy, because she's able to buy clothes that will make all the other women envious."—Chicago Post.
